DAMAGED PRODUCE

Cut sand bruises cause a serious loss of fruits and vegetable and often result in lower prices to producers.

John Bagby, A. P. I. Extension Service Horticulturist, has observed many small bruises, hardly noticeable at the time the produce was packed, become unsightly, darkened spots before the products reached the consumer. He points out that bruised and scarred produce will not growers shelf until it finally spoils and has to be thrown into the garbage. This results in a loss to the grower and to the farmer who grew the products.

A little care in handling produce during the harvesting and packing will help prevent damage. This will mean increased sales and better prices to producers.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Last year some 210,000 families lost father, a mother, or a child to cancer. Of these more than 100,000 were in the prime of life, between the ages of 30 and 65. They were stricken when their families, their work and their communities needed them most.
Those who have lost a dear one know cancer as a terrible threat.

They know that the disease reaches beyond the patient to family and loved ones all of whom must share a serious burden.

Happily, there is a brighter side.
Physicians can now cure half of those who develop cancer if the disease is diagnosed early and treated promptly. Today, however, only about one

BEST WAYS TO TAKE CARE OF PLANTERS

Auburn, Ala.— All planters should be kept in good alignment and first-class mechanical condition, according to J. T. Gaillard, A.P.I. Extension Service farm mechanization specialist.

He advises that shelter for planters be provided if at all possible. When storing, protect planter frames from being bent and rest furrow openers on boards away from the damp soil.
Keep livestock away from the implements and do not let chickens roost anywhere about or on the machines and implements.

"Also," adds the specialist, "coat all bright or land polished surfaces with grease or rust preventative when not in use. Always remove any protective grease before taking planter into the field. Check operation with seed in hopper. If ground driven, jack-up drive wheel and turn it by hand; if driven from rear wheel of tractor, jack-up tractor drive wheel, and check."

HERE ARE TIMELY GROCERY BARGAINS

Those who buy groceries should keep in mind foods that are abundant at the time of purchase if they want real bargains.

A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist, says that this month eggs are plentiful because of peak production.

The plentiful list also includes frozen fish fillets; cottage cheese; broilers and fryers; peanuts; peanut butter; dry beans; turkeys; honey; fruits and vegetables; and canned tuna, sardines, and mackerel.

In four, who have the disease, are being saved.

We as individuals have a great responsibility: we can strike back at cancer through spreading life-saving facts and through contributing to the Cancer Crusade. Lives will be saved—in our country, our state, our community, and perhaps in our own families.

Therefore, I, C. Fenn Jones, Mayor of Clanton, take great pleasure in proclaiming April as Cancer Control Month. I call on all citizens to join in the Cancer Crusade of the American Cancer Society. I heartily subscribe to the Crusade's theme: Guard
Your Family. Strike Back. Give to Conquer Cancer.

Hold Interviews For Applicants

Congressman Edward deGraffenried announced today that he has been advised by the Department of State that three representatives of the Department will be in Tuscaloosa for three days in April for the purpose of interviewing and recruiting clerical personnel for jobs in Washington, D.
C. and overseas.

Miss Ann Tanor, Miss Irene G.
Smith, and Miss Stella Makara will have their headquarters at the U. S.
Employment Service, 2129 6th Street, Tuscaloosa, on April 5, 6, and 7, and will interview typists and stenographers for positions with the Department of State. Mr. deGraffenried stated that it is his impression that applications will be approved or rejected on the spot and that applicants will not have to wait the usual length of time it takes to process applications for employment with the Federal government.

Congressman deGraffenried said that applications will also be accepted for jobs other than clerical with the Department of State, but these will not be processed until after Misses Tanor, Smith and Makara have returned to their offices in Washington, D. C.

The Tuscaloosa congressman urges that all qualified stenographers and typists of the Sixth Congressional District who are interested in employment with the Department of State, either in Washington, D. C. or overseas, contact the representatives of the Department while they are in Tuscaloosa.

CRIMSON CLOVER SEED MAY NOW BE CERTIFIED

The seed of any field or fields of reseeding clover may be certified under the designated name of "Alabama" reseeding crimson clover, provided the fields have reseeded satisfactorily for a period of two years or more as evidenced by inspections made by the Alabama Crop Improvement Association.

Ralph Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service seed crops marketing specialist, states that the general certification provision was recently announced by the A.C.I.A., Alabama's certifying agency. It applies to all reseeding clover regardless of origin or history.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Terrace lines were run on 15 acres of cropland for J. W. Littlejohn.

Soil and water conservation farm plan was written on Howard Maddox farm. O. H. Lawrence replanted his. All rough and bad eroded land is planned for sod crops.

Don't put off planting the rough, steep eroded land until another time of year. It can be utilized for water disposal, hay or grazing.

Farmers interested in planting wildlife borders for quail should prepare their land soon. Early cotton planting time is a good time to plant.

The State Department of Agriculture is furnishing the seed free or, viding the land is prepared and fertilized.

Tom Smith, Dewey Collins and Richard Gill still plan on planting leuca-

Fertilizer applied now to leucaena and sericea will increase the quantity and quality of hay or grazing.

N. W. Latham is preparing to sow
30 to 50 acres of sericea.

STATE BROILER HOUSES ARE GROWING IN SIZE

Auburn, Ala.— The broiler business in Alabama continues to grow, and the business gets larger so do the houses.

Most Alabama broiler houses in the beginning of the industry had a capacity of about 3,000 broilers. At present several houses have a capacity for 5,000 to 10,000 birds. Right now Mr. C. L.
Whitely of Choccolocco has built a house with a capacity of 20,000 birds.
The house is 50 feet wide and 300 feet long, being one single room. It will be heated with infra-red heat lamps.
Feeding will be done with automatic feeders, and an overhead feed room will eliminate any lifting of feed.

"Large houses are desirable from the standpoint of efficiency in the use of labor," says John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension Service poultryman, "but growers should take into consideration the daily capacity of processing plants thru which broilers will be handled before planning the construction of an unusually large house. It is desirable to move all birds from a single house at the same time, and for this reason, the capacity of a house probably should not exceed the daily operating capacity of processing plants."

SETTING SWEETPOTATO PLANT

Warm weather in early March often tempts some farmers to get their plant out too early. If Porto Rico sweetpotato plants are set in the field before the temperature reaches a day and night average of 70 degrees, they will not grow well. The usual planting date is one month after the average last killing frost.

JOAN OF ARC ESSAY CONTEST SPONSORED BY CLANTON DRIVE-IN School children of Chilton County have until Tuesday night, midnight, April 17th, to get their Essay on Joan of Arc in to the Chilton County News or The Union-Banner.

Students of both high schools and elementary schools are eligible to enter the contest which is being sponsored by Clanton Drive-In Theatre. Three valuable prizes go to the three best Essays on "Joan of Arc."

Prizes will be a one-year pass for two as first prize; a six-months pass for two as second prize, and a three-months pass for two as third prize.

All you have to do is sit down and write a short essay, not exceeding 250 words on the subject, "Joan of Arc." Sign your name and address and mail to the Chilton County News or The Union-Banner before midnight, April 17th. Of course the earlier you can mail your essay the better.

Judges will be J. H. Bookholdt, Supt. of Education; T. E. Wyatt, Editor of The Union-Banner, and R. M. Tucker, Editor of Chilton County News. Winners in the contest will have their picture and their essay published in the county newspapers.

Here is what one release has to say:

'JOAN OF ARC' COMES AS DRAMATIC SPECTACLE

One of history's most inspiring climatic events, the epic crusade of "Joan of Arc" is brought to the screen starring Ingrid Bergman in a Victor Fleming production in color by Technicolor.

Joan's career of the intrepid Maid of Orleans whose faith and devotion triumphed over the English armies and made her the world's best known heroine, is presented on a lavish scale. Concentrating upon the last two years of Joan's life, the picture details her adventures in striving to win the confidence of the weak-willed Dauphin, her persistence in reorganizing his army, and her flaming victory at Orleans.

Subsequent highlights of the remarkable film include the colorful coronation at Rheims, the betrayal of the Maid to her enemies and to the sinister Bishop of Beauvais, and her dramatic trial and execution on the ironic charge of heresy.

Football Squad Train Hard At Verbena

The Verbena High School football squad is out for its first week of spring training. With such outstanding players as Messer, Nelson, Turner, Bryant, Johnson, Rice, Calloway and Pison, a starter for two years, is back this year. Bobby Moore, who played guard during the previous season, is now playing fullback. Red Burdette has been shifted from tackle to end. Harold Pierce is back at tackle. Homer Robinson is at right half, Gordon Burkhalter has been switched to left half, and Sanders will probably start at quarterback.

The 1951 team will be lighter than the 1950 team. In spite of so much loss, here's hoping we'll do well.

4-H Club Boys Bat For Uncle

Chilton County 4-H Club boys have stepped up to bat again for Uncle Sam. Each boy is expected to receive a batting average of a bale or more per acre at the end of the season. Of course, this is old King Cotton we are talking about. There are now eighty-four 4-H Club members signed up for cotton projects ranging from one to six acres each.

In a recent series of meetings in nineteen clubs, cotton demonstrations were presented by demonstration teams from each club. In this manner a great deal of interest was created as well as presenting scientific information from the Auburn Experiment Station.

Letters have been written to each of these boys encouraging good land preparation, recommended amount of fertilizer, and early planting. In the summer, project tours will be arranged in an effort to create greater interest.

Cancer Committee Make Urgent Plea For Help

The County Commander of the Cancer Control Program wishes to commend wholeheartedly the splendid work being done by Mrs. Russell Williams, Chilton County Chairman of the Cancer Crusade Campaign. This campaign is a drive for special funds conducted during April.

The grave need and privilege of this campaign is accentuated and given prominence by a special Act of Congress designating April as Cancer Control Month.

At this time the American Cancer Society urgently solicits funds from the general public for this great humanitarian work to support its three-point programme of research, education and service.

Mrs. Russell Williams heading the campaign in Chilton, knows that people are willing and anxious to contribute but they must be approached, and she is tirelessly and endlessly working for the success of this drive for funds. Mrs. Williams, and through all her committees, are making an all-out effort to place Chilton over the top of her goal—$875.00—and the first county in the State to achieve this record. Won't you give until it hurts?

The A.C.S. is probably the only organization anywhere that did not increase its goal this year, but our quota is a minimum quota and your county can make a contribution to the reality of freedom, we must maintain a spiritual and intellectual defense against the invasion of the right to think for ourselves, and must achieve the reality of freedom. The convention will be in session April 9-13.

A TRIP TO MOUNDVILLE AND THE SMITH HALL MUSEUM IN TUSCALOOSA

On March 23, 1951, Mrs. Thomas's class of the Clanton Elementary School, went to Moundville and the Smith Hall Museum. We went in six cars. There were seven people who went in the car I went in. The name of every one in the room is really the Better Speech Club, but their personal names were Billy Todd, Leon Glenn, Carolyn Tucker, June Gwathney, Mayblane Butler, Marie Wesson, and Betty Sue Bolton. Of course there was the driver, who was Bobby Tucker. The ones who rode in Bobby's car, those named above, had a really good time. We played every good game going on. We played mostly Comedy—Come and Cow—poker. When we got tired of those games, we sang songs. We stopped at Centreville and got something to eat. We looked at the dogwood on the sides of the highway the rest of the way. We really had fun!

When we arrived at Moundville, we got in our squad groups. We have squad leaders who are Linda Wade, Myra Vines, Arthur Robinson, and Ralph Vines. My squad leader is Linda Wade. When we all got in our squad groups, we went into the museum at Moundville. It took a dime to get in. We started from the front and went all through it. First, we saw the skeletons of Indians who lived a long time ago. The first way the skeletons were located was by a man, who was plowing in his field. It happened that he plowed up one of these Indian skeletons. Then every one started searching for the skeletons, and many found some. It is said that they haven't ever been touched. Some of the bones were already decayed when they were found. Of course it was cemented inside. There they lie just like they died. Some had their mouths opened. They lived only to be about 25 years old. The fire places were there, too. Their cooking vessels were there, also. The things they liked best were buried with them. There were shells on stones. Some of their teeth were decayed. These Indians were said to belong to the Yellow Race of Indians. There have been about 3,300 skeletons found.

Then we went through another part of the museum. The things we saw there were trinkets and tools made by the Indians. The Indians charred wood, made art, made bone hairpins, and they farmed and made fine crops, also. They had ornaments. We saw the jewelry worn by the Indians. The Indians made their cooking vessels which were mostly pots.

Then we went to the other Indian cemetery. They were almost like the others. Only there was a little baby Indian's skeleton. It was about two months old. That was the most interesting thing. This was the most important cemetery. This was all we saw at this museum.

Then we went out and played a while and talked about what we had seen. We ate lunch at the picnic ground. Mrs. Teel took care of the coca-colas for 'us. We took our lunches.

Next we went to Mound B. It was a very high mound. The class raced up it. It was hard to climb, but it was fun. Mrs. Wade took our pictures as we were standing on the mound. The Indians made the mounds.

Next we went to Smith Hall Museum in Tuscaloosa. It was very interesting. First, we saw all kinds of rocks. Some of the rocks we saw were the azalea, quartz, sand calcite, celestite, dolomite, fluorite, and quartz crystal. We looked in a high stand and saw a wonderful change of rocks. When the light was off, it was really wonderful. When the light was on, it looked like plain rocks.

Then we went upstairs. This was the most interesting thing. We saw a huge snake in water and one in a cake. I cannot name all the things I saw up there, but there was one animal that everyone really enjoyed. I think it was the most interesting thing we saw. It was a big bear weighing 1500 pounds. It was wonderful to look at.

It is wonderful to have such things to go see. One more thing that is wonderful, also; that is to have a teacher kind enough to take us. The teacher who is Mrs. Thomas, couldn't take all of us, so some pupils' mothers and one brother were kind enough to take us. I think the one who took me and the ones who took others also. It was wonderful! I enjoyed it and I am sure everyone who went did. — Betty Sue Bolton.

A VISIT TO MOUNDVILLE

Away to Moundville sped our cars,
As we had interesting talk.
We watched the blooming dogwood,
We watched where people walk.

Our Mother Nature at her best,
Had trees of many kinds.
And there was handiwork of man
And many electric lines.

The clouds would scurry with the wind,
The sun would shine more bright.
Then cumulus-nimbus would pile up
And there would be less light.

At length we reached azalea land
While speeding on our way,
And, entering by a gate—way there,
What beauty! Oh, how gay!

At last the monument we reached
And saw those ancient things
Where plowmen slowly turned the sod
Where men had forged those rings.

Where toiling daily, year by year,
They built those ancient mounds
And now they there before us lay
Just bones, no human sounds.

Away we hastened from the place
And found a pretty spot.
'Tis right beside the Warrior

A well preserved lot.

'Twas here we stopped to have our feast
When once the prayer was said.

'Twas here we gathered, in the breeze
And gently bowed our heads.

Then hurriedly we took our leave
To climb Majestic B.
And eagerly we mounted her
To see what we could see.

Our route then to the city went
And into old Smith Hall
Where every kind of rock is found,
Some round, just like a ball.

Reluctantly we started home
To talk of what we'd seen.
And as I all these days rehearse
It seems just like a dream.

—MYRA VINES.

A VISIT TO MOUND STATE MONUMENT

Earlier in the year our class, the Better Speech Club, during social studies period, was studying about fossils being unearthed in Central America and Mexico. Mrs. Thomas, our sponsor, suggested the fact that fossils and skeletons had been unearthed in recent years in Moundville, Ala., and that her class in previous years had made trips to this historic place.

We were very eager to visit it. We decided that it would be convenient and less expensive to ride in cars, and we chose March 23rd as the date for this wonderful trip.

After weeks, yes, months, March 23rd finally came! We boarded the cars that we were assigned to and were off.

At the end of a long drive we reached this remarkable place!

We got in squads and went into the museum. I didn't think I would find anything that would interest me, but to my surprise, I found I was enjoying it thoroughly.

Moundville was probably inhabited by the Choctaw or Creek Indians about 500 years ago. The mounds were used as temples or meeting houses, where they all came together. No one knows if they inhabited Moundville before the last glacial period or not. These people were probably the real discoverers of the New World.

The homes of the Moundville people were constructed of small logs, placed upright in trenches, pulled together at the top and covered with canes, grass, and sometimes plastered with mud.

They were very superstitious people, so, when they buried their dead under their floors, they left their homes for a period of time so the spirits could have their dead and haunt their homes while they weren't there. They would return when they thought the spirits had gone.

We learned that the difference between a man's and a woman's skull is that a woman's skull is smaller, smoother, and doesn't have deep ridges. A man's skull is heavier, rugged, and has deep ridges.

We went into another part of the museum, where we saw skeletons of Indians.

We had a beautiful view overlooking a lake which drained into the Warrior River.

After lunch we climbed into our cars and went to Mound B, which is about fifty-eight and one-half feet high. It is so high that it seems to touch the sky!

About two o'clock we found ourselves hurrying to the University. There we visited Smith Hall, where we saw many rock formations and we learned that Alabama is one of the richest mineral states in the United States.

The guide took us to another floor where we saw a petrified tree. The tree is believed to be about three to four million years old.

On our way home, we went by Bryce's Hospital for the insane.

The drive home seems so short! I think it is the most interesting trip we have made this year. I am sure that everyone enjoyed going to Moundville. — Mayblane Butler.

DON'T LET MILK SOUR ON ITS WAY TO MARKET

"As the weather warms up, many people will start having milk returned to them because it is soured," says Pete Turnham, A.P.I. Extension Service dairyman.

He points out that if milk utensils are not properly sterilized, enough bacteria may be left to cause souring. Milk should be cooled immediately after it is drawn from the cow to prevent growth of those bacteria that are present. Do not mix cool milk as souring usually results when this is done.

Remember that a can of milk is worth several dollars, and if it sours the money is lost.

MY TRIP

To Mound State Monument we did go
To see those skeletons lined in a row,
But not before writing to the lady in charge
Of all those wonders, the small and the large.
There were tomahawks, spears, and all those things
That the Indians used, who had worn copper rings.
One thing I had for my lunch was a cake,
And I sat there eating it not far from a lake.
Then hurriedly we went to high B Mound
Where we could easily see all over the ground.
We raced up the mound, which looked like a hill,
But some of them tired and stopped dead still.
Reluctantly we started back home,
In the wonderful mounds never more to roam.

Jacksonville, Ala. — High school seniors from Chilton County and other counties surrounding Jacksonville State College have been invited to visit the college campus on April 13 for the annual Spring Festival. This is one of the highlights of the year at Jacksonville, both for the students and for the visiting high school seniors and their faculty sponsors. The college students enjoy showing their friends from "back home" around the campus and entertaining them for the day.

The program will be as follows: Registration, 1:00 p.m.; open house, ROTC, 1:30-2:30; reception in Graves Hall for visiting teachers and college faculty, 1:30-2:30; band concert, 2:00; physical education demonstration, 2:00; football game, 3:00; crowning of "Miss Festival," ROTC drill, between halves; ROTC Retreat, 5:00; supper 5:00; variety show by music department, Leone Cole Auditorium, first performance, 6:00; dancing in gym, 6:00-9:00.

Last year between 1500 and 2000 seniors attended the Festival and approximately that number is expected this year.

Samuel Mims, Clanton, was among the students making the dean's list for the Winter Quarter. To be eligible for this list students must have an average of B blue.

AT MOUNDVILLE AND TUSCALOOSA

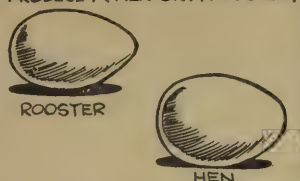

To tunc a race all the way up Mound B
And eat by the river was fun, as you can see,
But there by the river the rings in each tree
And the museum skeletons really impressed me.
There were skeletons large and skeletal tall,
And a little baby skeleton near the wall.
Then, following the teacher thru the town,
We really got lost and went 'round and 'round.
In Smith Hall was another sight.
We'd see colored rocks when she turned off the light.
On the third floor I felt of a buffalo's hair,
On the other side I saw a huge brown bear.
I truly did not want to come back,
So I was glad a train stopped on the railroad track.

—BILL TODD.

To clean a good brush wash it in warm soapy water, rinse, shake briskly to remove any surplus water, and hang up to dry at room temperature. Do not place the brush in the hot sun or out in freezing temperature to dry, as such treatment weakens the fibers.

QUESTION ON FABRICS PERMANENTLY-PLEATED

How permanent are so-called "permanently-pleated" fabrics and garments on the market today?
"Consumers and dry cleaners are having trouble with the 'permanently-pleated' petti-pleats," warns Levice

Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialists. "They come out when water is spilled or used on them, although they are not affected by dry cleaning solvent. Such pleats cannot be reset; it is necessary to send the garment to a commercial pleating firm for repleating."

Miss Ellis adds that the petti-pleat-ing is done on mixed fabrics, such as 40 per cent wool or 60 per cent rayon, and on spun rayon, butcher linen, wool jersey, and cellulose acetate rayon and nylon combinations. Labels on rolled pleats say "dry clean only—do not press."

Such fabrics cannot be classified as serviceable. They are bought at

NO WASTE WHEN FISH FILLETS ARE SERVED

Auburn, Ala. — There is no waste when buying fish filets—those boneless slices of fish cut lengthwise away from the backbone.

Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist, points out that one pound of whole fish makes only two servings after being cleaned and dressed. On the other hand, a pound of boneless filets makes four servings, allowing a quarter pound for each person.

Also, fish remains on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for April, and there are many tempting ways to prepare fish.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Montgomery, Ala. — Motor vehicle accidents alone killed more Alabamians in December than 12 well known diseases and conditions combined, the State Department of Health pointed out today.

Ninety-four deaths were attributed to motor vehicle accidents, it said. Only 98 deaths were attributed during the same period to diphtheria, appendicitis, whooping cough, malaria, diabetes, pellagra, poliomyelitis, rheumatic fever, influenza, bronchitis, cirrhosis of the liver and all diseases and conditions associated with pregnancy and childbirth.

The State Health Department pointed out that this announcement was based upon provisional reports prepared by its Bureau of Vital Statistics. These reports may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available, it explained.

TELEPHONE LINES ARE HUMMING FOR DEFENSE

This country's telephone service is one of its greatest assets in time of emergency. It unites millions of people—helps thousands of businesses to get things done quicker—and is a vital part of our national defense.

In the past five years Southern Bell has nearly doubled the number of telephones in service . . . nearly doubled Long Distance circuits, tripled rural telephones and made the service faster and better. And we're busy right now providing more telephone facilities throughout the South—to keep pace with its growing prosperity and expanding defense activities.

All this growth—and maintaining the financial strength to keep on expanding—will be increasingly important to the South and the Nation in the days ahead. One reason this country can out-produce any other is because it has the most and best telephone service in the world.

Farmers Beware

Forest Fire Law Has Teeth

By I. R. MARTIN
A.P.I. Extension Forester

MANY farmers and other landowners are evidently unaware of the Alabama Forest Fire Law, or else they would be more careful when burning new ground or broom hedge before land preparation begins.

Twelve months in jail and a $1,000 fine is the maximum fine for allowing fire to cross from your land to adjoining woodland or grassland. The minimum fine is ten dollars and 10 days in jail.

In counties under organized fire protection it is unlawful to burn your own land without first notifying the county forest ranger and taking other necessary precautions.

Burning woodlands is not like parking two hours in a one-hour zone. Both are breaking the law, but fires bring about many more lasting results. Thousands of dollars of stumpage worth twenty to forty dollars per thousand feet are lost. Erosion carries away unprotected soil. Wells have to be dug deeper to provide adequate water. The flow of artesian wells dwindles down to a dribble.

Water is a "must." Annual forest fires are slowly but surely reducing our available supplies.

Since forest fires cannot be controlled without the cooperation of all landowners and farmers, it is necessary for everyone to work the job of stopping woods burning and the effects caused by fires.

Farming--The Seed Production Way

PRODUCING seed is a full time business for W. O. Grimwood, of Hazelgreen. Mr. Grimwood has turned his entire farm to seed production within the last few years: One of his special crops is button clover. He is shown examining a sack of Alabama button clover with Assistant County Agent R. O. Magnusson, left, and County Agent D. S. Wyld, right.

Grimwood is set up to clean all kinds of seed, but has very little time for custom work. Crimson clover, button clover, lespedeza, sericea, fescue, and grain sorghum grown on his farm usually keep his seed cleaning plant busy.

Pulling Together

Washington County Farmers Solved Their Problem

WASHINGTON County farmers faced a big marketing problem last year but they licked it by working together.

They didn't have a convenient market for their livestock so they banded together and did something about it. At a county-wide meeting last August they got the idea of building a cooperative auction sales barn of their own, and that's exactly what they did. They immediately began to sell stock in the co-op and construction was started right away. On January 22 the Washington County Stockyards, Inc., opened for business and the first auction sale was held.

At the end of the first three weeks of operation a check-up revealed that over $46,000 had been paid to farmers in Washington and surrounding counties. The auction handles hogs, cattle, sheep, and goats.

The co-op is organized with a set of officers, a board of directors, and 225 stockholders. Clayton Davidson is president, G. V. Odom, vice-president, Earl Reynolds, treasurer, Oscar Braun, secretary, and O. R. Platt, regular member of the governing board.

Townpeople of Chatham also did their part to get the enterprise started; the town council helped in several ways, and Scott and Porter, attorneys, did all of the legal work free. Officials of the cooperative market report that the land, buildings, and equipment are all paid for now and the future looks bright for the Washington County folks, who believe in doing things—by working together.

Coming Jersey Cattle Events

ALABAMA'S Jersey cattlemen are making big plans for two coming events in the field of Jersey cattle.

First of the two Maytime Jersey cattle "doings" will be the annual field day and heifer sale set for May 17. The event will be held at Hall Brothers Dairy Farm near Montgomery. Fifty of the state's best Jersey heifers will be offered for sale at this event.

Applications are now being made, and schedules are being arranged for the statewide classification of registered Jersey herds. Classification work is being scheduled for the entire week of May 21. Breeders who are interested in having their cattle classified should notify Professor W. H. Eaton, secretary of the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club, Auburn, before the middle of April.

sections with ease. These pipes are used to carry the water from the lake to the pasture.

Irrigation Solved Their Problem

Dry Weather Bothers These Cattlemen No More

THE old saying "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it" is familiar to everyone. But E. B. Stowers and W. W. Ward of Conecuh Farms near Evergreen have taken a long step toward doing something about it. They have rain on their beef cattle grazing land any time they want it.

Stowers, like many other farmers, has suffered when short dry weather spells stunted his grazing crops. So last year he decided to gamble time and money on a system for irrigating pasture land for beef cattle.

Before putting his idea into practice though, Stowers tried to find out all he could about irrigation. He went to see agricultural leaders in five Southern states, and they all told him just about the same thing—nobody knew much about the subject. However, he went ahead and started the project on his own.

As soon as his pasture got dry last fall, about Sept. 1, the area was irrigated with water from three farm ponds. Twenty-four acres of fescue and crimson and ladino clover have been well supplied with water since early September. And it's paid off in good grazing for the beef herd.

Four-inch aluminum pipes are used to carry the water from the ponds to the field. A heavy duty electric pump forces the water through the pipes and out through the rotating sprinklers, located at intervals along the line.

The most important point about irrigation is whether it pays for itself. Ward and Stowers believe that it does.

Accurate records on every animal grazed on the trial pasture have been kept, and daily gains are running very high—from 2.37 to 2.70 pounds per animal per day.

The 24-acre pasture has carried an average of one animal per acre for the past five months. County Agent M. H. Huggins says that on pasture that had not had extra water, cattle did well to hold their own during this period.

The biggest expense in irrigation is buying the equipment, say Stowers and Ward; costs for pumping the water and moving the pipeline are next to nothing. "We can put one inch of water on one acre for a pumping cost of about 30 cents," says Stowers. The aluminum pipe is light and one man can handle several 20-foot lengths at one time.

The two men are slow to recommend that others try irrigation for beef cattle because they say they haven't tried it long enough to be sure of it. However, they think so much of the system that they are getting ready to increase their acreage to be watered this year.

Dates To Remember

APRIL 29 through May 5 has been designated as National Home Demonstration Week. While taking part in the national observance, home demonstration club women here will celebrate the 25th anniversary of club work in Alabama.

The annual fat stock show circuit got underway late last month with the Montgomery show which was held March 20-21. Other shows and dates are listed as follows: Mobile, April 3-4; Decatur, April 5-6; Dothan, April 10-11; Selma, April 12-13; Gadsden, April 19-20, and Birmingham, May 3-4.

Along the Way

with R. O. Davis
R. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, APL EXTENSION SERVICE

U. S. farmers are asked to produce this year three and one half per cent more than they have ever produced in one year. Few people are on farms to produce more. Many young men have left farms for military service and for industrial employment.

To produce more with fewer people each farm person must either work more or accomplish more per hour by use of power equipment, more fertilizer, control of insects and other things.

A national movement is now in progress in behalf of grassland farming, or more grass for more and better cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry.

It is sound in every way. Especially is this true in Alabama where soil, rainfall, and other conditions combine in favor of more grass and more livestock.

Farmers who are doing this in the right way are increasing their income, improving their land, making more money.

But these are not all. They're producing a better diet for more people. About 40 per cent of the people in the U. S. eat too little meat and 50 per cent eat too little protein. Meat, milk, and eggs supply these needs.

If you're a cotton farmer you're concerned about boll weevils. You may be in doubt as to when to poison. On the right time to poison I have some definite conclusions, based upon years of observation and study. Two of them are:

- 1) The weevil that punctures squares, or bolls, is the weevil that you want to kill because he's the one that does you damage.
- 2) Normally, a cotton plant sets a crop in about three weeks.

These two facts added together reveal to me that the right time to poison cotton to kill boll weevils is when the plants are fruiting.

W. A. Ruffin, our extension entomologist, says that a farmer should start poisoning as soon as the plant is big enough to fruit, provided 25 per cent or more of the squares are punctured. Follow this with two more applications five days apart. When again 25 per cent of the squares are punctured apply three more applications. Keep this up until bolls are too big for weevil attack.

Pre-square poison is not recommended. Wait until the plant is ready with enough weevils on it.

The Coastal Plain Community in Tallapoosa County did the best job of cotton improvement of any Alabama community in 1950. Because of this they were awarded $2,000 in cash. Half of this was by the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers Association; half by the Alabama-Florida Cottonseed Production Association.

Harold Johnson told us that they won by 355 farmers working together. County Agent Fletcher Farrington said that the "community way" is the best way to get things done. He's right.

A. H. Baker, president of the Coastal Plain One-Variety Community, said that $500 of this money will go to the club house at Elam $500 to the club house at Carrville, $500 for buy equipment for the vocational school, replace equipment burned recently, and $500 for the Piedmont Youth Center, Dadeville. This money will be spent for materials. People will do their own work.

Hogs make up a part of the livestock enterprises on the Brewer farm near Samson. Deway Brewer, shown at left, scratches a hog as he tries to remember how many top animals they've carried to market during the last six months. With pasture on the place to keep cattle grazing all year Frank Brewer never has to worry too much about the condition of his cows. Frank's smile proves that. At right he is kneeling in a four-acre patch of white Dutch clover that gave his cattle 1,300 days of grazing during 1950 and kept up nine sows and their pigs besides.

More pasture will be growing on the Brewer place this year than ever before. Frank and Deway (inset) are talking seriously here about this 12 and one-half acre plot of pasture they have cleared and seeded. Once a useless area of wire-grass woods, the land will be green with clover and grass before long.

Good Cotton Despite Weevils Was Made By Howard Mitchell

HOWARD MITCHELL of the Union community is one of many farmers in Randolph County who know that good cotton can still be grown in that county in spite of the boll weevil.

Mr. Mitchell admits that it does cost more and requires a little more labor and better farming practices to produce extra good cotton, but he says it pays off when picking time rounds.

Mitchell made 4,900 pounds of lint cotton on his seven-acre crop. The farmer planted the last week in April and fertilized with 800 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre. He later sidedressed the cotton with 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate.

Mitchell started poisoning his cotton the first week in July and poisoned eight times between then and the latter part of August.

The Randolph producer says that he intends to profit this year by some of the mistakes he made last year. The big mistake, according to Mitchell, was in stopping too soon with his poison. He is quite certain that he could have made at least two more bales of cotton if he had poisoned three or four more times, starting one week earlier and controlling the weevils until he was ready to start picking.

Frank Brewer Proves It

Row Crops And Livestock Go Well Together

THAT'S a mighty good cotton farm Frank Brewer has out on Samson, Rt. 2. Proof of it is found in the 13 big bales Frank and his son Deway picked from their 11 acres last fall.

With weather and weevils working against them, the Brewers made their place produce cotton while many expert farmers all over the state gave up on the year's crop.

The farm also made 25 tons of peanuts on 32 harvested acres and averaged 30 bushels of corn on 50 acres.

However, row crops are not all the Brewer place is famous for. Those boys have some livestock projects as hard to equal as their cotton record.

From eight brood sows they sold over $2,000 worth of hogs last fall and winter and still have some 40 shoats to market. Raising hogs, the Brewers use the cross-breeding system. Four of their sows are purebred Durocs, four are grades, and their male is a registered Berkshire.

"We figure these purebred and grade crosses give us some mighty thrifty pigs," Frank muses. "We like them better than purebreds for our use."

You can't forget the beef cattle on this 100-acre farm either. From the herd of 20 grade Angus the father and son expect to raise 12 calves during 1951. By the next year, when heifers will come into production, they'll be aiming at 20 calves a year.

It's hard to believe Frank and Deway Brewer made it through this severest of winters in many years without buying feed—their winter grazing suffered the same as everybody's—but they struggled through. The only bought feed was protein supplement for hogs. The hogs had eight acres of peanuts to harvest themselves, and the cows had stored hay from 25 acres of dug peanuts. And on all but 15 acres of the 50-acre corn crop livestock did the harvesting.

Then, there's another big item. In spite of the bad season for green pastures last fall and winter, the Brewers had a little green grazing. The farmers are mighty proud of one four-acre patch of white Dutch clover they planted in the fall of '49. In June, August, and October last year they got 1,300 days of cattle grazing from the patch. In addition they started nine sows on the clover in February, 1950, and kept them there till their 100 pigs were sold in the fall.

They've planted an additional nine acres of improved white Dutch and have cleared 12½ acres of wiregrass woods which they planted in Bahia grass and Kentucky 31 fescue.

In line with the national call, Frank Brewer and his son will try to improve their cotton production this year. In self defense, however, they will continue expansion of their livestock-production program as well.

She Needs No Horseshoe

MRS. J. F. WAITES, of Billingsley, Rt. 1, has a horseshoe hanging on her pantry of canned food, but it isn't necessary. She always has good luck with her canning, and she does plenty of it.

Each year Mrs. Waites cans about 600 jars of food, and sometimes she puts up more than that. Everything from fancy preserves to beans can be found on the full pantry shelf. There aren't many things that this farm wife hasn't canned. A couple of specialties are small Irish potatoes and young tender sweetpotatoes.

Most of the canned food is used to feed the family, but each year Mrs. Waites sells a few cans to regular customers. Some of her customers have been buying canned delicacies for longer than she can remember. Mrs. Waites, left, is shown by the pantry with Autauga County Assistant Home Agent Sue White.

Recipe For April

PECAN pies are a favorite of young and old, and there is no better way to use the nuts gathered last fall.

If you have a good supply of peanuts, try substituting one cup of lightly parched and salted peanuts for the same amount of pecans.

3 eggs, beaten
½ cup sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup melted table fat
1 cup pecan meats
Uncooked 9-inch pastry shell
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix eggs, sugar, syrup, salt, vanilla, and salt. Spread nuts in bottom of shell and pour in the filling. Bake 15 minutes in a 450° F. oven. Then reduce heat to 350° F. and bake 35-40 minutes.

Coastal Plains Cotton Growers Come Out On Top

Bad weather, boll weevils, and numerous other difficulties confronted the cotton producers in the Coastal Plains one-variety community last year, but none of these calamities kept that group of Tallapoosa County farmers down for long.

They started 1950 off with the determined conviction that they could win the big $2,000 first prize in the annual Cotton Improvement Contest, and they finished the year, feeling the same way. In late February the product of their long year's work came home to roost. They won the big prize and chalked up a pretty good cotton crop besides.

On hand for the presentation program held at the Carville Clubhouse were, left to right, (seated) J. H. Owens of Roanoke, who presented a check for $1,000 from the Alabama-Florida Cottonseed Products Association, and Miss Ann Adams of Tuscaloosa, Alabama's 1951 Maid of Cotton. Standing are Dan Herren, Sr., member of the board for the farm group; Harold Johnson, vice-president of the club; F. N. Farrington, county agent; J. Craig Smith of Sylacauga, who presented $1,000 on behalf of the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association; P. O. Davis, director, A.P.I. Extension Service, and A. H. Baker, president of the one-variety community club.

District winners in the annual cotton improvement contest were: Cedar Hill, Limestone County; Aliceville, Pickens County; Sardis, Dallas County, and Fleahop, Elmore County.

Number Six

Berkshire Breeders Form State Association

SWINE breeding took a step forward in February when breeders of Berkshire hogs met in Hartselle to organize the Alabama Berkshire Breeders' Association. This new club brought the total number of breeder associations in the state to six.

Instrumental in forming this new organization were Smith Brothers, of Killen. They have one of the oldest Berkshire herds in the state. On hand to aid the hog breeders with their plans were G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension hog specialist; Morgan County Agent L. T. Wagnon, and Assistant Agent L. H. Douglas.

The Berkshire breeders wrote a constitution and by-laws and elected officers. Officers of this newest hog association are Noble Holland, Rogersville, president; G. Z. Cardwell, Oneonta, vice-president; and Hollis C. Smith, Florence, secretary-treasurer. Directors are L. G. Brown, Enterprise; F. E. Stoke, Elberta; Ralph Wilson, Lexington; Bill Campbell, Athens, and L. H. Davis, Lexington.

Fifteen breeders of Berkshires were present for the meeting, and 10 of these hog producers are now charter members of the association. Any Berkshire grower who would like to become affiliated with the state association should contact the organization's secretary, Hollis C. Smith, of Florence, Rt. 1.

This Month on the Farm by A.P.I. EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

FOR an early crop of sweetpotatoes, set slips as soon as possible after the last frost usually about the middle of April in central Alabama. This early planting will furnish vine cuttings for the main crop by early June and the first crop should be ready for harvest by late July when the price is usually high.

EARLY hatched pullets should be vaccinated this month for fowl pox and Newcastle disease. This should be done when the pullets are 10 to 12 weeks old. Another poultry job for April is the culling of non-laying hens as they go out of production. A flock laying at a high rate is a profitable flock.

FARMERS who desire to treat posts in late summer can "bug-peel" their posts now. Bug action loosens the bark in a few months if posts are stacked under hardwood shade in warm weather. Care should be taken to treat the posts before decay sets in. Bug-peeled posts will soak up more preservative per post, but this method saves much labor in removing the bark.

PROPER fertilization of farm ponds is very important during this month. Fertilization of ponds builds up an abundant supply of food for bluegills so they can form eggs for the spawning season. The number of young bluegills produced determines the amount of food base will have available. Each application of fertilizer should consist of 100 pounds of 6-8-4 plus five pounds of ammonium nitrate or 10 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre.

MANY farmers wait too late to cut sericea for hay. For best results, sericea should be cut when it is 10 to 14 inches high. Waiting longer will result in tough and woody stems and the leaves are likely to shatter badly. For grazing, cattle should be turned in on sericea when it is three to four inches tall. At this stage the plants are tender and juicy.

UNCOMFORTABLE pigs can't make a comfortable profit for livestock owners. Lousy pigs rub off profits. Spending a few cents to make two dollars is a good investment, and that's all it costs to treat pigs for lice and mange. The loss to each infested animal amounts to about two dollars. One application of a spray containing either lindane or benzene hexachloride will clean up a bad case of both mange and lice in one thorough treatment.

CATTLE under two years of age that have not been inoculated this year for black leg should be given this protection as soon as possible. Dehorning and castrating should be finished this month. Spring calves should be castrated when they reach a week or 10 days of age.

BROILER flocks are likely to have coccidiosis during the summer months unless adequate steps are taken to prevent it. Acute attacks can be prevented by following a sound sanitation program and by using feed containing drugs such as sulfaquinoxaline or nitrophenide.

PRODUCTION GETS PRIORITY—in the Chilton County dairy program. County Agent M. R. Glasscock (right) shows a map of the county giving locations of imported production bred bulls. During 1950, 27 high quality bulls were brought in from other states to help step up the production of Chilton County dairy herds.

Peaches And Cream

Peaches And Dairying Pair Up In Chilton

CHILTON County is the undisputed peach capital of Alabama, but beef cattle and dairying also do their part for the county farm income. Dairying brought in about $100,000 to Chilton farmers last year.

A grade B milk route was started there two years ago, and 64 farmers are now selling milk on the route. Ten grade A dairymen producing milk for local school lunchrooms and milk processors in Montgomery bring the county's total to 74 dairymen.

Chilton farmers are interested in all of the major phases of a good dairy program, but breeding better animals is one of their main objectives. During the past year 27 high quality registered bulls were brought in to improve the quality of dairy animals.

Part of these bulls are owned by the Chilton County 4-H Club Council and loaned to dairymen on a 50-50 basis. The rest of the bulls are privately owned.

Typical of the new dairymen is O. H. Lawrence of the New Cedron Community. Up until two years ago Lawrence was a full-time cotton and truck farmer. He started out selling grade B milk from eight registered cows, but switched over to grade A production last summer. Lawrence now sells 500 one-half pints of milk daily to the Vermont and Isabella Schools.

The dairyman has a fine group of replacement heifers, and he's looking way ahead with his breeding program. He has two registered bulls for use in building up the quality of his herd. One is a young bull that will take over the job of herd sire in a year or two.

Lawrence has a new milking parlor style dairy barn. Two cows at a time are milked in the 8 by 12 foot parlor, and the milk is piped directly from the milking into the cooling room.

Another new dairyman is W. A. Williams, of Clanton, Rt. 4. Williams sells about 45 gallons of milk per day to school lunchrooms from his 33 cow herd.

County Agent M. R. Glasscock and Assistant Agent R. H. Kirkpatrick have worked with the dairy program from the very beginning. They have helped the farmers set up their dairy programs on a sound basis with plenty of home grown feed and good management practices taking priority. Good bulls have been distributed so that every community has at least one top quality breeding animal.

Despite the growing interest in other farming enterprises, Chilton County farmers are not relinquishing their place as peach growing champions of the state. Many of them are predicting a bumper crop this spring.

What they are doing though is taking advantage of a few well known facts. Peach growing is not a full time job, and labor and equipment are not used economically. But as any dairyman will tell you, dairy farming is a year around job, and the two of them together can add up to only one thing—prosperity.

Cotton Emphasis Week Proclaimed By The Governor

WHEREAS, cotton is most important in the economy of this state because it furnishes a livelihood for the million Alabamians who produce and process the crop, which last year brought $131,000,000 to farm families, $160,000,000 to textile workers, and furnished income for thousands of people who work in oil mills, gins, and warehouses; and

WHEREAS, this nation in 1951 needs a 16,000,000-bale crop—60 per cent larger than that of last year—for use at home and abroad to supply the usual needs and markets plus enough for the more than 11,000 military and defense items in which it is used; and

WHEREAS, the vital place of cotton in Alabama's economy and the pressing need for a large crop this year should be and is being brought to the attention of all Alabamians through the Alabama Cotton Promotion Committee and the 67 County Cotton Committees of the County Extension Service Councils—both composed of representatives of all segments of the cotton industry—so that there will be fuller appreciation of cotton's job and the job of those who grow and process it; and

WHEREAS, the higher production of better quality cotton has steadily advanced due to research of the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station and the direction given by county agents of the Alabama Extension Service and others interested in improving the industry from a five-year average yield of less than 200 pounds of poor quality and staple cotton 15 years ago to a current five-year average of 269 pounds of cotton that in quality and staple excels that of any other state in the southeast.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Gordon Persons, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby designate the period April 1 through April 7 as when all citizens may join in recognizing the importance of cotton through meetings, press, radio, and otherwise.

They were in town along with a large group of other dairymen to attend the two-day dairy school which was held during DeKalb County Dairy Week, February 5-10. Conducting the school were John Parrish, A. P. I. Extension dairyman; Pete Turnham, assistant Extension dairyman, and County Agent Pate.

Etowah Farmer Makes Hill Land Pay

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago E. L. Bailey bought some land in Etowah County. It couldn't be called a farm, at least not by the standards people in those days used to judge whether a place was a farm or just some land put there to hold the world together.

The 95-acre place Bailey bought was the hilliest, roughest, sorriest looking spectacle he had ever seen. Many men would have moved on, but E. L. Bailey was just a little more determined than most folks. He stayed, won the battle of the hills and gullies, and conquered the place.

The farmer says he isn't farming the land now that he bought back in '24. That land was washed away years ago. But that business of losing the land has been stopped now. Mr. Bailey keeps a cover on the land the year around, holding the soil firmly against erosion forces.

The farm is still about the roughest and steepest place in the county, but it produces. The slope on the entire farm averages about 12 per cent, and some of the fields are about 25 per cent or more. This land that goes up-hill so fast is now producing over 100 bushels of corn per acre. On one 10-acre field last fall Bailey made 1,180 bushels of corn.

The entire farm has been turned to livestock production—growing feed for poultry, hogs, and beef cattle. The few acres of corn each year are the only row-cropping done.

A three-fold program is making the farm pay off now. Mr. Bailey sells hatching eggs from his flock of 320 hens. He gets around 75 per cent production from the flock. Home-grown grain goes into the feed troughs, keeping down feeding costs. He feeds breeder mash and about one bushel of corn per day to the hock.

The rest of the corn is marketed through hogs. Thirty top market hogs were sold last year. Mr. Bailey watches the market closely, and as styles change in market demands, he tries to change his style of farming to keep up with the times.

Seventeen beef cattle make up the other department in his farming operations. Home-grown feed, such as corn, crimson clover, and kudzu, makes this part of the farm more profitable.

Mr. Bailey laughingly refers to his farm as bottomland, and he has an argument to back it up. Although the hills are so steep a man can hardly walk up them, it's still bottomland he says. He explains that the top of the soil has been washed away, leaving only the land underneath—or bottomland.

the family budget. Thirteen dollars and a little ingenuity did the job.

Mrs. Ellis, at left, shows Blount Home Demonstration Agent Mildred Gilbert the remodeled chair. The barrel chair is displayed at right.

WHEN Mrs. Kinard Ellis, of Cleveland, Rt. 1, talks about her barrel back chair, she knows just what she's talking about.

The chair is made from a wooden barrel. The Blount County farm woman and her husband took an old wooden barrel, some cotton, and some plastic material and made the chair. The total cost of the project was only eight dollars.

An old armchair got the works, too, from the young couple. They added new springs, new padding, and covered the old standby in yellow plastic. This remodeling job cost only five dollars.

The two chairs make a nice pair for the living room, and they didn't put a strain on

Watermelon Disease Control

By R. L. SELF, Associate Plant Pathologist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

A number of watermelon diseases are common throughout Alabama. Most of these diseases can be controlled or prevented by seed treatment, dusting with fungicides, crop rotation, or planting resistant varieties.

Descriptions of the symptoms and control practices recommended by the Experiment Station are listed below:

Gummy stem blight is a fungus disease which is both soil and seed-borne. It is recognized by the cracked stems, especially near the center of the hills and a gummy material oozing from the cracks. Leaf spots are also produced and are sufficiently numerous in wet weather to kill the leaves.

Anthracoase is another seed and soil-borne fungus disease. Most of the damage occurs to the leaves which are completely killed or "burned" in wet weather.

Damping off is the killing of young plants before or soon after they emerge. It may be caused by any of several microscopic organisms present on the seed or in the soil, including those organisms causing anthracnose and gummy stem blight.

The mutilated root system of this plant shows the effect brought on by a serious infestation of the root knot nematode. Treatment of the soil with a suitable soil fumigant prior to planting is necessary if watermelons or similar plants are to be grown on land that has become infested with nematodes.

Wilt or stem rot is another soil-borne fungus disease. The organism gains entrance through the roots. It plugs the water-conducting vessels and produces poisons which eventually cause the plants to wilt and die. Once the soil is infected, the organism may remain there for 15 years or more in the absence of any succeeding watermelon crop. Use of the resistant varieties, Blacklee and Leesburg, and long rotations are the only control measures.

Root knot is caused by microscopic eel-like worms which bore their way into the roots and stimulate the production of knots. Infected plants are stunted and yellow and are much more susceptible to the wilt disease. Control consists of planting in a new ground or following two or more years of corn, small grains, or velvet beans. Watermelons may be grown on land infested with the root knot nematode if the soil is spot treated with suitable fumigant prior to planting.

Seed treatment will control anthracnose, gummy stem blight, and damping off. Soak the seed in mercuric chloride, one part to 1,000 parts of water, for five minutes. Rinse in clear water and dry. This kills those organisms on and inside the seed coat. Before planting, treat the seed with arasan or spegon at the rate of 0.3 per cent by weight of seed (one-fourth teaspoon per pound), to protect them against damping off.

Dusting the foliage with a dust containing Z-78 or copper will control leaf spot diseases. Three to four applications of the material should be applied at seven to 10-day intervals, beginning when leaf spots first appear.

To Cut Living Costs Plant A Good Garden

By J. C. FORD
A.P.I. Extension Gardener

THERE is a pressing need for good gardens in 1951, even though there is no present emergency in the vegetable situation.

Prices of vegetables, fresh and processed, are expected to be higher than last year unless there is a good increase in production.

The acreage of vegetables for commercial processing needs to be increased by 22 per cent, according to the best estimates from Washington. That situation emphasizes the need for those who must watch the budget to grow as much as they can of their own food.

A word of caution is in order. Only those families who have suitable garden land and who have the labor and know how should grow gardens. Most people will lose money if they break up lawns or flower beds in order to grow vegetables. They will also waste seed, fertilizers, and insecticides.

The making of a good garden depends on correct planting, fertilizing, and pest control. If either of these three jobs is neglected, results may be very disappointing.

To keep up the supply of food during the entire summer, plant corn twice a month until early June in South Alabama and mid-June in the northern counties; new plantings of tomatoes in May and July; a second crop of okra in June; field peas, two or more plantings, April to June; snap beans as needed until August; lima (butter) beans until July, and table soybeans until June.

The garden needs a heavy application of manure each year and lime once every four or five years. In addition 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of a complete cotton fertilizer are needed each year (4 to 6 quarts to 100 feet of row—rows 3 feet wide.) Along with manure and cotton fertilizer, extra nitrogen is also needed for best results.

The problem of pest controls is simpler now than it used to be. The Auburn-approved, general-purpose garden dust will control most of the common insects and diseases of the garden. It contains one per cent rotenone for insects and five per cent zineb (a zinc compound) for diseases.

Cryolite is the best remedy for blister beetles. Sabadilla dust is better than rotenone for harlequin (calico) bugs and green stink bugs.

THE past nine years have brought about many changes in the thinking of most folks, but the passing of time hasn't changed A. C. Newman's ideas a bit.

Back in 1942 Buck, the name Newman answers to around Opelika, was a 4-H Club member in Lee County, and he gave the other club boys plenty of competition with his beef calf projects. He was making his plans then to become a cattleman, and three years in the army and four years in college at Auburn didn't change his mind at all. In fact, Buck was busy getting his cattle farm started all the time he was in school learning the technical side of farming.

The young cattleman has come a long way since he entered his first grade beef calf in the Lee County show in 1942. (He is shown with that first calf at left above.) Buck now has a herd of 55 brood cows and two registered bulls. The registered shorthorn bull he is posing, at right above, was purchased at a recent sale. He also has a good Angus male.

Newman has around 300 acres in his cattle spread, and 200 acres of the land are in sericea. Reseeding crimson clover is also planted on 160 acres of the 200 in sericea. Fescue, ladino clover, and 10 acres of alfalfa round out his grazing program.

Buck has the land, grazing crops, and a good herd of cattle to work with. All he needs now is a little time to make his boyhood dreams of successful cattle farming a reality.

For Better Yield

Peanut Demonstrations Show The Way

LAST fall a group of Crenshaw County peanut farmers proved for themselves and their neighbors that a ton of peanuts per acre is a yield within the reach of almost every farmer in the county.

They got started with their project by taking part in the 1950 Crenshaw County 4-H and adult peanut demonstration program.

Crenshaw's Champion Peanut Producer

JUDGE I. R. Reddoch, of Luverne, was the top peanut producer in Crenshaw County last year. He is shown with Louis Knox, right, of the Luverne Peanut Company.

Reddoch and Knox are examining a sample of certified Dixie Runner peanut seed. The Judge is just a little bit partial to Dixie Runners, and he has a good right to like them—they produced at the rate of 2,684 pounds per acre on his farm last year.

The champion peanut producer limed his peanut land at the rate of 2,000 pounds per acre. He used

This plan was worked out by the Luverne Peanut Company, the Luverne Rotary Club, and County Agent Owen Reeder.

These groups decided that accurate information on peanut production in their county was needed badly. So they set out to find the answers they needed by getting farmers and club boys to keep complete records on their crops. Those who took part agreed to follow the A.P.I. Extension recommendations made by County Agent Reeder. And each farmer who followed instructions, kept records, and turned them in to the peanut company when the nuts were sold, received a $10 per ton premium for his crop.

But that wasn't all they got for their work. The big pay-off was in the increased yields they made.

The farmers averaged 2,002 pounds per acre. They did the job by following recommendations to the letter. In each case the nine farmers who took part in the program did a good job of preparing and fertilizing their land. Each farmer or 4-H Club boy limed his land, planted on time, used certified Dixie Runner seed, cultivated shallow, and dusted his crop with three applications of copper-sulphur-DDT.

County Agent Reeder says that the demonstrations were a big success, and the records kept by the farmers are expected to be a big help in getting others to increase their yields. Reeder states that the top yield in the demonstrations was made by Judge I. R. Reddoch. His average per acre yield on 5.8 acres was 2,689 pounds. M. O. Bodiford was close behind the judge with a yield of 2,655 pounds per acre on 9.1 acres. These yields probably are the highest ever recorded in the county.

200 pounds of 6-12-20 and 200 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer under the crop. Reddoch's peanuts were dusted three times with copper-sulphur-DDT.

CHECK UP TIME IN CULLMAN—Leaders of the Cullman-Blount Dairy Herd Improvement Association check up on their organization at a meeting held recently in Cullman.

The association operates to help dairymen keep records on their individual herds. Through these records producers are able to make dairying more efficient and profitable.

state veterinarian; H. G. Pinkston, Cullman County agent; and Joe Wittmeier, Oneonta dairyman.

For Thrifty Housewives

Color Is The Keynote In Planning Economical Wardrobes

By Levice Ellis
A.P.I. Extension Clothing Specialist

COLOR is one of the most important principles in planning an economical wardrobe. An attractive keynote color accented with appropriate accessories will make two or three outfits for the thrifty housewife.

A keynote color, such as dark blue, brown, or black, is one around which a woman builds her accessories to make a harmonious combination, acceptable for shopping, afternoon wear, or evening festivities.

For example, if her coat is dark blue, a woman may wish to dress it up with grayed yellows, rusts, red violets, or some shades of greens to make interesting and stylish combinations.

The matter of individual color selection is important to every stylish woman. When choosing her basic color in creating an economical wardrobe, she considers many things before making her final selection. Among them are her personality, size, age, and occupation, the texture of the material, the occasion for which she wants the outfit, and her budget.

One's personality should not be dominated by a color. Gay personalities demand gay colors, and the more quiet and reserved temperaments call for subdued, soft shades.

Bright colors, light values, and strong contrasts of color attract attention and increase the apparent size of her figure so the wise woman will select light or dark values and bright or dull colors as her figure warrants.

She keeps in mind the purpose for which she is buying her outfit and is careful in her selection of colors for daytime wear and evening wear. If she constantly appears before the public, she will often pick out conservative colors that are pleasant on the eye and blend in well with her business surroundings. Gay housewives meet the approval of another woman, and she adds to the cheerfulness of her home with economical, brightly-colored dresses.

Those with modest incomes are careful in choosing colors that are not the height of fashion for only one season. This applies to materials as well. "High fashion colors," if worn past their date of popularity, call attention to the period when they were in the height of fashion.

Common sense and a modest income, when blended with a bit of farsightedness, will allow the average woman to create a serviceable and attractive wardrobe that will meet style standards anywhere.

Tests At Auburn Reveal High Quality Frozen Strawberries

By HUBERT HARRIS, Associate Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

KLONMORE, Tennessee Supreme, and Klondike were superior to a number of other varieties of strawberries, according to tests for freezing qualities at Auburn.

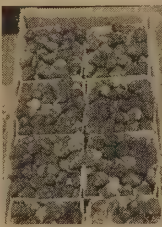

The Klonmore rated excellent in color, texture, and flavor; the Tennessee Supreme rated excellent in texture and color and good in flavor; and the Klondike was excellent in color and flavor and good in texture.

Varieties that for one or more reasons failed to rate well in the Experiment Station tests included Suwannee, Marion Bell, Missionary, and Konvoy.

The Suwannee was very good in flavor and color but was too soft in texture. Marion Bell was very good in flavor and texture but was too light in color. Missionary was good in flavor and texture but too dark in color. Konvoy was irregular in color and poor in texture and flavor.

Firmness of frozen strawberries was improved by slicing the berries before freezing. Very good results were obtained by packaging the berries in a 50 per cent sugar syrup at the rate of one part of syrup to three parts of sliced strawberries.

The berries were packaged in regular moisture-proof and frozen-food containers, and the containers were sealed before they were placed in the freezer.

These superior type strawberries are ready for packing and freezing. Frozen when fresh and juicy, they retain their excellent flavor and texture.

TWO-YEAR AVERAGE YIELDS of cotton have shown that dusts and sprays are about equally effective in control of cotton insects. On a 10-acre basis, cotton sprayed with toxaphene yielded 11.2 bales as compared with 10.3 on dusted areas and 3.1 bales on untreated checks.

INSPECTION OF IRISH POTATOES in Baldwin County in 1949 indicated that 35 per cent of the potatoes had some defect before they were shipped. Cuts and bruises accounted for approximately three-fourths of these defects.

LABOR COSTS make up nearly three-fourths of the total costs of producing milk for grade A wholesale farms in Alabama. Labor costs per hundredweight of milk are below average in large herds, in those with high producing cows, and in those milked by machine.

DORMANT HYBRID-TEA ROSE PLANTS, set in May, may be developed into very satisfactory specimens for summer flowering. Tests reveal that until vigorous canes are produced by the developing plants, flower buds should be removed as they appear by pinching to the first bud having a leaf of five leaflets.

PHOSPHATE IS AN IMPORTANT FERTILIZER ELEMENT for crops grown on new ground in the Gulf Coast area. On new land, corn given a complete fertilizer (nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash) at the Gulf Coast Substation produced 51 bushels per acre the first year. On the other hand, when phosphate was left out of the fertilizer treatment, the yield was only five bushels per acre.

THE USE OF GRANULAR SUPERPHOSPHATE and regular superphosphate gave about the same yields in three greenhouse tests with ryegrass and alfalfa on a Norfolk sandy loam soil. A comparison between the two forms of superphosphate was made at three levels of phosphate fertilization—60, 120, and 180 pounds of P_2O_5 per acre. These phosphate treatments were applied in conjunction with adequate amounts of lime, potash, minor elements, and some nitrate.

A SPECIAL KIND OF PAPER TOWEL has been used at the College Dairy farm during the past year instead of cloth rags for washing and sanitizing the udders of cows prior to milking. Results show that, except when considerable dirt and mud are present, these paper towels are satisfactory substitutes for cloth rags. Considering the time involved in taking care of wash cloths, the use of disposable towels is economical in a sanitary milking procedure.

GARDEN EXPERIMENTS show that it is possible to grow and save a home supply of sage of excellent quality. Spring plantings should be made in fertile soil by the use of seed or rooted cuttings. Harvest, consisting of the largest leaves or the tender shoots with leaves attached, should be made when the leaves have reached full size and before the bloom buds form. Curing should take place in the shade in a well ventilated place. Storage should be in airtight jars where the sage will keep its quality for from one to several years as the supply lasts.

Last Chance To Win Big Prize In Theme Contest

The contestants in the Clanton Drive-In Theatre "Joan of Arc" contest have only until next Tuesday night at mid-night to submit their theme on Joan of Arc, to win a year's free pass for two to Clanton Drive-In.

It's going to be mighty easy for some school boy or girl to win this free pass for two to the Drive-In Theatre so it might as well be you. All you have to do is to write a short theme, say 250 words, or less, on "Joan Of Arc." Second prize in the contest is a six-months pass for two, and third prize is a three months pass for two.

Get your school teacher to advise you. Surely she will help you with the writing and some of the details. Next to getting it written the most important thing is the deadline. Remember next Tuesday night. Better get to work. It's the easiest way you will ever win a one-hundred and four dollar prize. Joan Of Arc comes to Clanton Drive-In Theatre April 19th and 20th.

CHHS Beta Club Wins First Place In State Convention Contest

Cooking School
At Suburban Gas
Co. April 23-25

The Suburban Gas Company announced this week a cooking demonstration to be held on April 23, 24th and 25th. These demonstrations will be held twice daily at 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. The Wednesday afternoon show will enable the business ladies of Clanton to attend.

The main feature of the Demonstration will be the appearance in Clanton of Mrs. Lucile Martin, famous Alabama Home Economist. Mrs. Martin is a veteran in the home economics field, having conducted countless cooking, freezing and sewing demonstrations, under the auspices of the Alabama Power Company, Birmingham Electric Company, other utilities and appliance distributors. She has been employed for a number of years by the R. P. McDavid Company of Birmingham, wholesale distributors in Alabama for Florence Ranges, and International Harvester Refrigerators and Freezers, and other major appliance lines. She also has appeared on Television and radio.

Several hundred women from Clanton and Chilton County are expected to see Mrs. Martin, and receive from her a copy of her latest recipes for cooking, refrigerating and freezing. The ladies attending will also get many valuable cooking hints from Mrs. Martin.

I enjoy demonstrating the Florence Gas Range because I know it plays a major role in modern home-making," Mrs. Martin says. "Whole new industries have grown around the central idea of lightening the homemaker's household drudgery. Shining modern gas ranges simplify the unending routine of three meals a day. Modern refrigerators are a great improvement over old fashioned cellars and milk houses; washing machines and ironers now turn wash day into a mere shadow of its former exhausting self. From large equipment down to better potato peelers and knife sharpeners, all have eased the homemaker's burden by improving on something already in use. The modern day Florence Embassy Gas Range with its multi-feature top is as far advanced over ranges of a few years ago as the modern automobile is over the original Model T."

"I hope to personally meet many of the ladies of Clanton at the Suburban Gas Company. I am sure that we can handle the crowds in their spacious and beautiful show room, which is one of the prettiest I have ever seen anywhere."

The Suburban Gas Company is giving away to one of the ladies who attends our demonstration a beautiful new Florence Gas Range—no obligation or purchase is necessary—only come in and register. They are also going to give an orchid to the first 100 ladies each day. Be sure and mark your calendar for April 23rd, 24th and 25th, at 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

BROILER POPULARITY INCREASING MONTHLY

Auburn, Ala. — Poultrymen continued to grow more and more broilers, and consumers keep on eating more and more of this choice, high quality poultry meat each month.

In January this year chick placements in major broiler producing areas were 28 per cent greater than a year ago, and in February chick placements increased 29 per cent over the same month last year.

A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service marketing specialist, points out that chicks now in brooder houses and eggs in incubators mean record supplies of broilers going to market for the next three months.

Food buyers are finding one of their best buys as well as being a choice food in greater and greater supply.

HIGH SCHOOL RECRUITING PROGRAM TO START SOON

A program to interest high school graduates in enlisting in the U.S. Army or U.S. Air Force will get under way soon. M-Sgt. Harry T. Morehead, local recruiting Sergeant said here today.

"High School graduates," Sgt. Morehead explained, "are an excellent source of the high type, intelligent young men and women the Services are looking for today and that it also was possible for qualified high school graduates to apply for Army Officer Candidate School after enlisting. Upon successful completion of the six months' course, candidates are commissioned second lieutenants in the Reserve and placed on active duty."

He said, "It is not the policy of the Army and the Air Force to interfere with a young man or woman's education. We encourage students to finish high school before enlisting and the United States Armed Forces Institute gives high school graduates the chance to continue their education on the college level by study during off-duty hours."

Ice Harvest Was Big Business Before Electric Refrigeration

That revolutionary horse-drawn cutter has itself long been superseded. The job is now done almost effortlessly by a sled-mounted, gasoline-powered circular saw. Its teeth are so designed that they pull the whole rig forward even as they cut. The saw is set to leave enough of the thickness uncut to support the rig and workers.

Well! C. T. Danielson made his choice, right then and there, and he says he is even thankful that it was necessary for him to have that operation for he might not have learned the lesson that has meant so much to him for 20 years and which will be valuable to him to the end of his days.

mottling of the enamel of the teeth.

But Abraham was called to go farther. And soon he gathered his household together and took his way across the deserts to Canaan, which God had promised him as an inheritance. While still living in the land of the Chaldeans, and the land, and reaching old age, Abraham was troubled about the heir he should leave. His wife, Sarah, was childless, and Abraham desired to make Ishmael, his son by Hagar, his heir. But God promised Abraham that Sarah, in her old age, should bear him a son, to be his heir. The promise was fulfilled; Isaac was born, and in the course of time he took his own place in line of the patriarchs, and was the greatest of all. Nothing about Abraham, surpassing even his distinction as the father of the Hebrew race, was his faith. And by reason of it he was called the Friend of God. Let us emulate his faith for our needs today, with Christ as our Father, and as workers in Christ's kingdom.

DON'T BURN DOLLARS

Even in this day of high log prices, some farmers pile and burn saplings and poles that could be treated for fence posts or made into low-grade lumber for repair work, machine sheds, livestock shelters, pig pens, and numerous other places where a farmer needs a few boards.

Mother of Two Praises Hadacol

HADACOL Supplies Deficient Systems With Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron

Mrs. Elmer Hise, 225 2nd Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa, is a good mother, and like all good mothers she keeps a careful watch for the welfare of her two young children. And when little four-year-old Lucille Hise wasn't feeling as her mother knew she should do something about it. Mrs. Hise gave Lucille HADACOL because she had heard how much it was helping children who had poor appetites and stomach distress caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin. It helped her so much that now Mrs. Hise gives HADACOL to both of her children.

Here is what Mrs. Hise says: "My daughter has taken two bottles of HADACOL and she has been eating more than before and sleeps better. I think HADACOL is the best thing for children who do not have an appetite. My daughter is four years old. Before taking HADACOL my daughter complained of her stomach hurting her, and I got her a bottle of HADACOL and she says her stomach doesn't bother her any more. I think HADACOL is wonderful. I am also giving HADACOL to my three-year-old daughter."

HADACOL is So Effective
An important thing about HADACOL is that you get Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron in liquid form, which means that they are quickly absorbed and dispatched to the blood stream, ready to go right to work. HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of the blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every part of your body.

FENCE POSTS

Spring and early summer months are the best time to cut fence posts. That's because bark can be removed easily then.

New York Bound Singers Here Friday

Hugh Thomas' New York-bound Singers Chorus will be preceded by the Music Appreciation Club Friday at 8:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church. Featured in the Young and Cotton Show last week they received a great ovation. They have been touring Alabama and surrounding states raising money to defray the expense of an appearance in Town Hall, New York. The concert in Clanton will be the last before the New York appearance, and it will be the same program which will be presented in New York City.

In the audience in New York will be such musical personalities as representatives of the metropolitan press, Robert Shaw, Frances Yeend, Helen Jepson, Poulenc, Irene Jordan and her husband, Arnold Caplan, of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, Andrew Ganev, Ed Snowden, head of the concert division of Metropolitan Opera Association, Charles Wagner and others.

And as a special courtesy to the Music Appreciation Club complimentary tickets will be sent to two former members now residing in New York, Miss Katherine Bryan and Mrs. Roberta Curry Minthorne, and identified in musical circles of the city.

Hugh Thomas, Alabama born and educated is one of the most prominent people in the field of music in the South. Under his inspiring leadership the Young Musicians Chorus has become one of the great choral groups of our nation.

Among the soloists in the chorus are: Miss Frieda Roser, a former Miss Alabama contest winner; Hugh Hunter, just returned from New York where he did choral and radio work; Martha Dick McClung, voice teacher at the Birmingham Conservatory of Music; Sam Batt Owens, well known vocalist, as well as one of the most prominent organists in the South. And Charles Oliver, baritone and Betty Jo McWilliams, soprano, winners in the voice division of the Student Musicians state contest for the National Federation of Music Clubs.

The program in Clanton, the same that will be given in New York, will include all kinds of music from the heaviest to the whimsical. It includes great religious music, spirituals, folk songs, mountain ballads, and love songs. It is predicted that the Sacred Harp Songs (1835) so enthusiastically received by Southern audiences will be most pleasing to the Town Hall audience.

Tickets are: Adults $1.00, students 50c. They are for sale at Farley's Drug Store and from members of the Music Appreciation Club.

There will be a play, a comedy in three acts, "Danger—Willie At Work," at the Stanton Jr. High School Thursday night, April 12th, at 7:30 p.m. Admission 20c and 35c.

The cast: Willie Vaughan, Wayne Hardy; Mrs. Vaughan, Miss Mattie Ruth Rush; Mr. Vaughan, Arnold Lockhart; Carolyn Vaughan, Miss Phillis Ann Lueck; Orville Root, Leo Brown; Lola Ellen, Miss Mary Charles Rush; Maissie, Miss Dora Alice Moley; Daisy, Miss Edna Grover; Hazy, Miss Dorothy Smith; Prof. Alberta Bockstingle, Miss Frances Walker; Lydia Rockwell, Miss Guinevere Royser; Andy Hopkins, Jimmie Johnson.

Come and have fun. This play promises an evening of entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hand, Mrs. Mary Hicks and Miss Ruth Hicks had a very enjoyable spend-the-day with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gay Wednesdays. After the noon-day meal this group went to the Charlie Gay fish pond and from there they drove down to Ole Valley Creek. The church building has been torn down for several years, however, a very substantial fence; posts set in cement with a complete cement coping all around the cemetery has been recently installed. The entire cemetery is well kept; in fact, just as well kept as any cemetery any place, and it was a real joy to know that the folks who have loved ones there still care and respect their resting place. This cemetery is kept locked and the key is left with Mr. and Mrs. Gay. A visit back to the old church grounds and the cemetery would make you glad too that the loved ones of those resting there have the pride and respect that is shown upon your arrival.

Mrs. Mary Hicks, age 76, recalled many memories of Old Valley Creek Church and the times that she attended services there with her husband and her family. She also recalled many happy hours spent with the Henry Coles and the Tom Letchers.

Mr. Millard Reynolds, Mr. Joe Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Fugus and two sons were in Montgomery, Ala., last two days last week attending the annual convention of the Alabama Forest Products Association. The convention was attended by some 700 Alabama Sawmill and Forest Products Operators. Election of officers, speeches, banquet and barbecue were had. Rep. Albert Rains (D-Ala.) spoke at the banquet on Wednesday night.

Last Tuesday night the Eastern Star Chapter No. 309 met at the home of Mrs. Audrie Gutherie in Plantersville. Mrs. Willie D. Levins, Worthy Matron, in charge. Mrs. Ruby Hicks Hand of Washington, D.C., is a member of this chapter and the chapter was pleased that she could be with them at this meeting.

Mrs. Audrie Gutherie and Mrs. Eva Moore served refreshments and a very enjoyable social hour after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hand returned to their home in Washington over the week end.

Mr. W. J. Reedy of Plantersville, Ala., was admitted to the Selma Baptist Hospital last Thursday. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. J. H. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal of Demopolis, Ala., were week end guests of the Earl O'Neals and Mr. W.M.D. O'Neal.

Mr. and Mrs. Teddie Man Davis and son of Anniston, Ala., were week end visitors to relatives and friends in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston Morris moved to Mobile, Ala., Saturday. This community will greatly miss this couple. They were fine neighbors and active in church affairs and community activities.

Mrs. Jimmie Jack McFarland (Rosie Lee Morris) and Mrs. Jesse B. Rush (Mable Miller) of Mobile, Ala., spent last week with their parents. Mrs. McFarland returned to her home last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Rush remained over until Saturday morning carrying her parents to Mobile with her.

Saturday night dinner guests of Mrs. Jim W. Gay were: Mr. and Mrs. Earl O'Neal, Bobby and Judy; Mr. W.M.D. O'Neal, Mrs. J. H. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Right Under Our Nose!

Some time back, we got word from the Governor, asking if we wanted to use the State Fire Inspection Team—a group of experts they send around to communities to inspect public buildings.

We sent a letter saying: "Okay! Give us the once-over!" They came down, all right—last week.

After the inspection, we got their report. Came out pretty well, all told. City Hall and the School were O.K. Post Office just needed more sandbuckets. In fact, everything got a clean bill of health, except—the Fire Station!

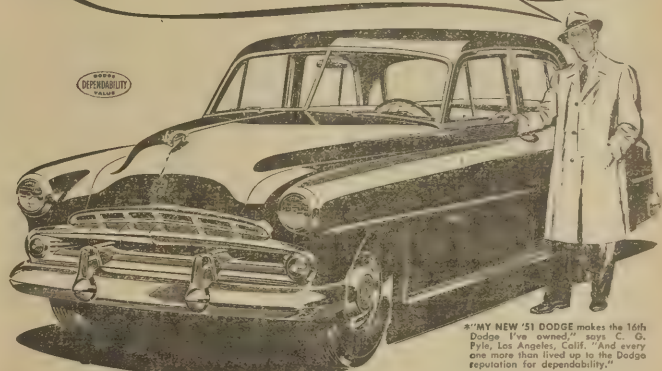

From where I sit, we volunteer firemen had just been too blamed busy keeping everyone else on the ball—and not realizing our own firehouse was not up to snuff. Like the man who worries so much about his neighbors—about whether they work hard enough, about whether they can really afford their new car, about their enjoying a temperate glass of beer—that he forgets to take a good critical look at himself now and then.

Helping the Nation

get things done

for 75 years

This year is the telephone's seventy-fifth and busiest birthday.

What began as a line between two rooms in a Boston attic in 1876 has developed, in one lifetime, into a Long Distance network that covers the Nation—and extends to most of the world's telephones. This great system has grown in answer to the needs of a people. And it's a good thing it has. In these threatening times, the Long Distance lines that bind this country together are more vital than ever. For today they are helping to speed production and guard the Nation's security—jobs that call for nothing less than the best telephone service in the world.—Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

To help speed your Long Distance call, please give the operator the out-of-town telephone number. Telephone lines are busy with national defense.

PLEASANT GROVE METHODIST

We had a large crowd out for Sunday School Sunday. Our Sunday School is growing each Sunday. Let us come on out and make it one of the best Sunday Schools in Chilton County.

Mrs. Wilson Atkinson, teacher of primary, class, took the class to see John Douglas Hosey who is in bed and not able to attend Sunday School. He enjoyed having his teacher and pupils to come to see him.

Lt. and Mrs. James Hosey from Fort Benning, Ga., spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Scott. Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Clack spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Scott and family. Max Scott spent Sunday with Pete McKee of Mount Nebo Community.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hosey had all of their children and grand children home with them Sunday. They all met at home and had a wonderful time. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Hosey and children; Fred Hosey, of Clanton; Mrs. Raymond Drake and son, Carl, of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. James Hosey, of Ft. Benning, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Randie Ledbetter, of Selma, Ala.; Pfc. Mark Hosey, Jr., of New Mexico. Mr. Norris Ledbetter and Mrs. Cora Atkinson had Sunday dinner with the family. We long for another day when all of the family can be together again.

Mrs. Comer Durbin and Mrs. Callie Culp of this community are sick. We are praying for their recovery.

Mrs. W. B. Ware of Birmingham spent Monday and Monday night with Mrs. Mark Hosey.

Let us each one remember that it is our duty to come to Sunday School and church service each time. So try to be there Sunday and be in your place. The church needs you and you certainly need the church.

HUGH THOMAS A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY

Born and educated in Alabama, Mr. Hugh Thomas is an individual of whom Alabamians can well be proud. He matriculated at Birmingham Southern College and the Birmingham Conservatory of Music, where he received his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees. Since graduating, he has attended the summer festival at Tuskegeewood in the Berkshires, where he studied under Robert Shaw, Leonard Bernstein, and Serge Koussevitzky.

Mr. Thomas has had extensive experience in the concert field. During the war he produced a number of radio programs for the army. He has appeared as guest pianist with the Curtis String Quartet and also with Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra.

One of the most prominent people in the field of music in the South, Mr. Thomas is at present Dean of the Conservatory of Music in Birmingham. He is also minister of music at the First Methodist Church in that city. It was natural that the young musicians who first demanded the formation of a choral group should seek out Hugh Thomas as their leader, for a natural leader is exactly what he is. Combine this ability with his thorough knowledge of music, his indefatigable spirit, his insistence on perfection, his insatiable capacity for hard work—combine all these and you have a man of whom Robert Shaw said, "Hugh Thomas is not just a man—he is a soul." Absolutely unafraid to present to the public any of the greatest music in all the beauty of its tradition, Hugh Thomas nevertheless has an unmistakable contemporary approach. Thus he is able to take a group of musicians and mould a remarkable musical instrument of them, getting seemingly impossible beautiful sounds and effects from them.

In Hugh Thomas, we have a man of whom Alabamians are sure to be increasingly more proud to claim as a native of their own State. And those who hear one of his remarkable concerts will want to hear them again and again.

COUNTY M.D.'S TO ATTEND MOBILE MEETING

Drs. C. O. Lawrence and J. W. Moore, of Clanton, will represent the Chilton County Medical Society as Delegates to the 50th Annual Session of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama when it convenes in Mobile on April 19-21. Each County Medical Society sends delegates to the session, and these delegates represent their respective Medical Societies at the business sessions.

Besides the business sessions there are scientific sessions wherein papers on the various fields of medicine will be presented. This purpose of helping the physicians in the state keep abreast of new procedures and scientific developments is the primary purpose of the meeting. Not only the delegates but physicians from all over the state will attend the meeting.

The meeting this year is slanted toward the general practitioner and his needs. This is as it should be, for Alabama has more G.P.'s than it does specialists. A physician, by attending this and other meetings of this type, is able to keep up with latest developments and may thus practice better medicine for his patients. Outstanding practicing physicians and medical educators from Alabama and out of state localities will present an excellent and well-rounded program.

HOGS CAN MAKE GOOD GROWTH ON LESS FEED

Auburn, Ala. — The phrase "eating like a hog" may be out of date since the experts have fixed it so a hog can make pork chops, hams, and bacon sooner on half as much feed.

G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension Service hog production specialist, says that all this costs a hog about two or three months of life, but it puts dollars in the pockets of farmers.

A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station officials, who watched the waistlines of hogs fed on corn alone under dry lot conditions, found that 12 or more bushels were required to make 100 pounds of pork chops, hams, and bacon.

However, when the formula was balanced with a little protein supplement, green grazing, and mineral mixture, hogs ate only about half as much corn — or about six to seven bushels — to make the same amount of pork.

Elimination Of Tuberculosis Threat Possible

"Tuberculosis can be eliminated as a serious threat to lives of Alabamians any time our citizens demand that it be eliminated."

This challenge will be thrown out by James E. Mills, editor of The Birmingham Post-Herald, to representatives of five counties who are expected to gather at a district conference April 18 at Selma.

The conference is one of 14 to be held throughout Alabama to launch the most aggressive battle against tuberculosis ever undertaken by civic leaders in the campaign against a disease that "does not need to exist at all."

Besides Mr. Mills, other speakers will be Roy D. Hickman, Birmingham, president of the Alabama Tuberculosis Association; Marc Ray Clement, Tuscaloosa, association legislative chairman, and K. W. Grimley, Birmingham, its executive secretary.

The association's primary objective to be pushed at the meetings is to get the state legislature when it convenes in May to increase the per-day per-patient subsidy from $1.28 to $2.00 in the state's sanatoria.

"More adequate funds to run the TB beds now existing is the first step Alabama needs to take," according to Mr. Hickman. "Construction of additional beds for the tuberculosis should follow as soon as possible."

Counties to be included at the meeting, and the local chairmen, are: Chilton, J. B. Fort, Clanton, Dallas, Roger Butler, Jr., Selma; Marengo, Mrs. W. S. Hill, Demopolis; Wilcox, Mrs. Ruby McWilliams, Camden; and Perry, Mrs. A. P. Wilbourne, Jr., Marion.

MORE CENSUS TAKEN THIS MONTH

Up-to-date national figures on family characteristics, consumer income, and migration will be obtained as a result of the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey in April, it was announced today by District Supervisor, Mary L. Griffin, whose office is at Clanton. The Current Population Survey is conducted monthly with a representative cross-section of 25,000 families throughout the country, including many located in the Chilton-Perry area. Miss Griffin said.

Although income information was obtained a year ago in the regular Census, the change in economic conditions brought about by the outbreak of hostilities in Korea and the emergency program make it necessary to obtain current information about the distribution of the Nation's purchasing power. The results of the April survey will show the numbers of families in each income bracket and the types of families which had increases or decreases in income between 1949 and 1950. Businessmen and farm groups will use these figures as a guide in planning production and sales. The government will use these facts to develop price and wage policies to meet the current emergency needs.

The migration data, which will show the number of persons and families who have moved to a different place since last year, will indicate whether the defense program is increasing the mobility of the Nation's workers and their families. During World War II, an unprecedented number of men and women moved to war production centers to take jobs. The April survey will also show how many people are leaving farms to take up city residence. These facts will be in addition to the official government figures on employment and unemployment which are provided each month by the Current Population survey. In February, according to estimates developed from the survey, employment conditions showed little change. Estimates at $8.9 million in February, total civilian employment was about the same as in January, but was much the highest ever recorded for that time of year. Unemployment, which usually increases slightly between January and February, instead remained relatively unchanged at a level of 2.4 million.

Here's the simple tax form that an estimated 25,000 Alabama housewives will file under the new Social Security law. Internal Revenue Department will mail these forms within the next few days to those housewives who have requested them. The proper way to request the form is to get a copy of a little blue booklet from your local postoffice or the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Birmingham. On the back of the booklet is a postcard which the housewives must fill out and mail to the Collector of Internal Revenue in order to receive the tax form this quarter. In the future forms will be automatically mailed each quarter by Bureau of Internal Revenue to those housewives who have filled out the postcard. Housewives make these reports for all household workers who have worked at least 24 days between January 1 and March 31 and have been paid at least $50 cash wages. The tax for the first quarter of 1951 is due now and may be paid until April 30.

The survey will be conducted in the Chilton County area during the week 16 to 21. Supervisor Griffin emphasized that all information about individuals furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to obtain summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages for various groups in the population, and not to show information for particular families or individuals. The information given cannot be furnished to any other Government agency and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation, or regulation.

WORTH OF MILK

Over a period of 25 years, the sale of two gallons of milk at manufactured price for 10 months has equalled or exceeded the sale of one 500-pound bale of cotton.

USE FARM PRACTICES THAT CONSERVE WATER

With an average rainfall of better than 50 inches, it seems that there would always be plenty of water for every need in Alabama.

"But this is not true," asserts S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist. "Plants can use only the water that is within reach of their roots. If water runs off the land it is out of reach of plants."

He adds that it is usually best to farm in such a way that most of the water will be kept on the land where it falls. It then stays within reach of plants or seeps down to underground storage.

DEPENDENT PARENTS RULE CLARIFIED

Additional pointers for dependent parents of men now in the armed services were given today by C. C. Horton, Director of the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs.

"First of all," Horton stated, "it must be remembered that as to dependent parents, the claim for family allowances must be initiated by the serviceman, himself, through channels from his base or station." It is not possible for dependent parents, themselves, to apply for dependency benefits under the Dependents Assistance Act, and in addition, actual dependency must be proved. The member of the armed service claiming such dependency must show that he has provided one-half of the support of such father or mother for a prescribed length of time, usually six months. Sometimes, by reason of changed circumstances after entrance into active service subsequent to the effective date of the Dependents Assistance Act, such father or mother becomes, in fact, dependent upon such member for over one-half of his or her support. In the latter case, according to the verbiage of the law, actual dependency will be deemed to exist.

In the case of the member of the Armed forces who has a wife and/or child or children, such wife and children are presumed to be dependent upon him for support, and he will need only a certified copy of his marriage certificate and of the birth certificates of the children.

"Considerable erroneous information has been given in respect to the right of parents to receive family allowances," continued Horton, "and this statement is an effort to clarify these misunderstandings."

Dependents of members of the armed forces are invited to secure all particulars with regard to their entitlement from the county offices of the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs.

VETERANS INCREASE REQUESTS FOR EDUCATION

There is a rapidly increasing number of applications for veterans' education and training benefits, according to an announcement by C. C. Horton, Director of the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs, today. "Our county offices are processing a steadily increasing number of applications for education and training opportunities under the G. I. Bill, as the deadline or cut-off date approaches for most War II veterans. It is believed that a deluge of such requests will fall shortly before that deadline date. For most veterans, this will be July 25, 1951. The G. I. Bill provides that a veteran's course of education or training shall be initiated not more than four years after the date of discharge or the termination of the war, whichever is the later. The termination of the war, for the purposes of this bill, was fixed at July 25, 1947, it naturally follows that for veterans the cut-off date will be July 25, 1951."

County offices of the Department of Veterans' Affairs have the necessary forms upon which applications for such benefits may be made, and are available from this office upon request. For most veterans, failure to initiate a course of education or training prior to the cut-off date will result in the loss of all future entitlement to this benefit.

HOG CAN MAKE PORK ON HALF AS MUCH FEED

A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station officials, who watched the "wasteline" of hogs fed on corn alone and dry lot conditions, found that 1200 pounds of pork chops, ham, and bacon. However, when the same was balanced with a little protein supplement, green grazing, and new mixture, hogs ate only about half as much corn to make the same amount of pork.

STATEMENT FOR THE PRESS FROM SOUTHERN BELL
The following statement was made Saturday by Hal S. Dumas, President, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company:
The Southern Bell Telephone Company has received a request from the Communications Workers of America-CIO for opening of negotiations looking toward a new contract for the 44,000 non-supervisory employees who are represented by the Union. The Union has asked that bargaining sessions begin on April 30.
The existing contract between the Company and the Union runs until June 5, and, as provided by the contract, the Union has given 60 days notice of desire to negotiate a new agreement. The present agreement was executed in 1948 and has been modified twice to provide for wage increases.
Among many other items, the Union has requested a general wage increase. It has been our policy over the years to pay wages that are in line with the wages of other workers in the jobs and areas which we serve whose jobs are comparable to telephone jobs. Only in this way can we do justice to the fine people who make up our organization and continue to attract and keep the type of employees essential to good telephone service.
A general advance of industrial wages is taking place in the communities served by Southern Bell, and we believe the facts justify a wage increase for Southern Bell employees within the stabilization limits specified by the Government.
Wages are by far the biggest item in our expenses and the money to pay for any increase in wages will have to be secured through an increase in telephone rates.
There is no margin in our income to absorb any increased costs. In fact, we have failed by about $20,000,000 annually to make up through increases already granted in the last ten years.
The yardstick we must follow in the coming negotiations is that any settlement reached as to wages be equally fair to our employees and to our customers who pay the bill.

FIRST WHITE HOUSE OF CONFEDERACY

One of the State's three historic shrines is The First White House of the Confederacy. Jefferson Davis lived here with his family during the early part of the Civil War. Among the many relics on hand in the First White House are paintings by Winnie Davis, Jefferson Davis' daughter. The mahogany table upon which Davis wrote The Rise and Fall of the Confederacy stands in the study. The Shrine was once owned by William Knox, whose bank made the Confederate Treasury its first loan.

WAYS TO GET LONGER WEAR FROM WASHERS

Treat washing machines right between operations for best service, advises Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist. She says to leave the drain open to air and dry before storing machine. All parts except the washing mechanism can go back in place—clean and ready for the next wash. Lay the washing mechanism in the tub, and leave the lid of the tub slightly ajar.

"After the machine is dry, cover it," urges the specialist. "A dust proof cover can be bought or made to cover the entire machine. If this is not practical, provide a cover for the wringer to protect the rubber."

Miss Mitchell adds that it is well to select a waterproof cloth cover if the machine is to be stored on an porch.

$300.00 In Prizes To Be Awarded Successful Babies At End Of Campaign

Pictures To Be Shown In NEWS

In this issue of the Chilton County News, the publisher of this newspaper, wishes to announce a feature which we know will meet with the instant approval of the people of this entire county—A Great Baby Campaign and a medium by which we are going to distribute the amount of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00) in cash at the conclusion of this appealing and interesting Campaign.

There will be six nice cash prizes headed with a Grand Prize of $125.00 and five other prizes graduating down to the last prize of $10.00. All the little ones, up to five years of age, living in this County and abutting territory, are eligible to compete and in the event of a tie vote, equal prizes will be given to those tied.

In the past it has been the practice to hold contests to determine who shall rule as Queen of this or that commodity, or others who shall be awarded special honors in other walks of life.

All this is very laudible, of course, and we are for it. However, they have entirely overlooked the dearest, the sweetest and the most lovable of all human personalities—A Little Child!

Well, now we are going to change all this; we are going to give Baby the opportunity it has been long denied, its place in the Sun as it were, and the chance to bid for public approval and its chance to share in the splendid cash prizes we have provided for the winners.

For the next several weeks then, BABY is going to occupy the spotlight and everything else must take a back-seat.

One of the most interesting features of this whole affair, will be the publishing of the Baby pictures in our paper and we trust the parents of the little ones will co-operate with us to the extent of loaning us a good distinct picture of their little one so we can have an engraving made of it and have it appear in the columns of The NEWS together with a little write-up of the Baby and family. Making the engraving will not harm the photograph in the least and when we have received the engraving, the picture will be returned to you in the same condition as when received—a good distinct kodak picture will serve our purpose just as well as a more expensive one, all this entails no expense to you at all as we pay for the engraving.

On another page of this issue, will be found a page adv. In it you will find a list of the prizes, nomination coupon good for 1,000 votes and a voting coupon good for 25 votes. Only one nomination coupon will be allowed each baby, so pay no attention to it after the baby has been nominated, however, collect all the 25 vote coupons you can and send them to our office to be credited to your baby. Get in touch with your neighbors and ask them to save their coupons for you, incidentally you might mention to your friends that when they pay their subscription, ask that the votes we will give on it, be credited to your baby.

Remember, this is not a beauty contest but rather a competition that will allow your friends and the admirers of the baby to determine which of the little sweethearts are going to be crowned with special honors and come into possession of worth while cash prizes and the glory of achievement at the close of the campaign.

The things to do now, and do immediately, is send in the Baby's nomination, then get in touch with your friends and ask them to save their coupon votes for you, or send them direct with the notice to credit them to your baby.

If you have no baby of your own, there is surely some little one in your neighborhood, or in the ken of your acquaintance, whom you are pretty fond of, well, why not send in its nomination and start it on its way of securing a nice cash prize? The parents will appreciate it we feel sure.

Watch for our next issues and if you would like to see the face of your sweetheart smiling out at you from the columns of our newspaper, please loan us a good, distinct picture. We have to send them to an engraving company, which all takes time, so the sooner we get the picture, the earlier it will appear in our paper. It is not necessary, of course, that we publish it's picture in order to compete, but we know you and your friends will enjoy its appearance and very likely they will wish it was their very own.

DON'T LOOK AT ME, 'TWERNT MY FAULT

The name of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Davis was left off the list received from Liberty National Life Insurance Company last week as members of the Torch Club spending this week at St. Petersburg, Fla. Several have asked why Mr. Davis's name was not listed, but the story was printed by us as it was received from the home office of Liberty National Life. We're sorry to have slighted Stanley, but don't look at us.—Editor.

County Welfare Director Seeks Aid In Purging Roll Of Those Who Are Not Eligible

"Please bring to the Chilton County Welfare Department any factual information you have relating to the need or income or resources of public assistance recipients," Miss Margaret Lee, Chilton County Welfare Director said today upon her return from a meeting with other directors and State staff members in Montgomery. "Whatever your report will be kept in strictest confidence, but it will help your county department staff members in determining eligibility for aid."

Miss Lee said she wanted to add her personal request to the statewide appeal issued last week by State Welfare Commissioner Bill Dorough. "We hope citizens of Chilton County will cooperate fully in working with the Welfare Department," Miss Lee continued.

She added also that State and Federal laws will not permit publication of lists of recipients. At the same time she invited people who have factual information as to the needs of individual assistance applicants or recipients to bring such information to her office. She reminded the general public that their discussions would remain confidential. Miss Lee said also that the county welfare board could review the names of persons receiving aid, as well as the grand jury if it wished to do so.

Members of the county welfare board, appointed by the county governing body, Commissioners Court, are as follows: Judge W. L. Parrish, Clanton; Mr. Will Gullledge, Verbena; Mr. Jack Lenore, Jemison; Mr. Akins Collins, Thorsby; Mrs. Charles Howard, Thorsby; and Mrs. Joe Mullins,

Hugh Thomas Chorus Concert Much Enjoyed

An ennobling experience was felt in our City on Friday evening when the Hugh Thomas chorus sang to an overflowing congregation. The artists were touched by the enrapt audience and sang their hearts out in gratitude. Hundreds of listeners were exalted in spirit and feeling. Musicians and listeners realized that "at our best we stand not alone—but as contributing parts of society." The chorus contributed music of an inspiring quality; the listeners contributed an inspiring atmosphere; each contributed to the other complete fulfillment welding the two—musicians and listeners—into a synthesis of ideality.

For an unforgettably beautiful evening of music we are indebted to Mr. Thomas and the members of his splendid chorus.

For the fine audience we may be thankful for the spirit of community cooperation that prevails in our midst. Every civic and cultural organization in our City, and many friends here and over the County are to be congratulated for their efforts in making the occasion a phenomenal success.

Truly, "at our best we stand not alone—but as contributing parts of society."

Mr. and Mrs. Watt Jones and sons from Dayton, Ohio, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Polk last week end.

Funeral notices of Miss Abbott and Mr. Hubbard will be found elsewhere in this issue.

County Banks To Distribute OPS Regulations

Montgomery, Ala. — County banks and chambers of commerce are now distributing the new food price control regulations. "All grocery stores and wholesalers are covered by the new ceiling price 'mark-up' laws," the district Office of Price Stabilization announced this week.

Copies of the regulations are being sent direct to the stores where possible," the OPS district office said. "But our mailing list does not include many firms."

Food stores are now required to keep all invoices, freight bills, and other records showing the price paid and delivery date of each item covered by the regulation.

Certain deadlines for filing information with OPS have been named for both retail and wholesale grocers. General distribution of wholesale regulation is not being made through the banks and chambers of commerce, the OPS said. Wholesalers should write to the district office at 14 Commerce Street, Montgomery, and ask for CFR 14.

Retail grocers who are unable to obtain a regulation from their local organizations should also write to the Montgomery office.

Edgar Petersons Essay:

JOAN OF ARC

Saint Joan of Arc, the maid who saved France, lived in the first half of the fifteenth century. For years English kings had fought unceasingly for possession of the French throne. Charles VII had not been crowned king.

When Joan was thirteen years of age, she became devoutly religious. She began to hear heavenly voices and to see visions of Saint Michael, Catherine and Margaret. Their message was that she should go lead the king's army. She convinced King Charles that she had a mission from God to save France.

This peasant maid, clad in shining armor, with the sword of Charles Mantel and a white banner, was mounted on a horse at the head of the French troops. Fired by her courage, she led the French to victory at Orleans. They then marched to Rheims, where Charles was crowned king, while Joan stood at his side.

In leading an attack on Paris Joan was captured by the Burgundians. They sold her to the English for a little more than $3,000. After a long imprisonment, she was tried as a witch and heretic and was finally burned at the stake. Ten thousand men wept at her unflinching courage.

The spirit of Joan of Arc lives on today. The poems, stories, plays, statues, and pictures of her have given inspiration to thousands. Her example has caused other youth to defend their countries against aggression so that "The Freedoms" shall not perish from the earth.

It is also used for many Ruptures which have repeatedly returned after surgical operations or injection treatments.

Caution: If neglected, Rupture may cause weakness, nervousness, constipation, headache, dizziness, pain in back or stomach and dangerous strangulation.

Every man in this vicinity having a Rupture is invited to see this Shield during the above stated office hours. There is also no charge for private consultation. If desired, orders may be placed for immediate or future delivery. This demonstration is for men only.

MR. AND MRS. ALABAMA LOOK AT TELEPHONE SERVICE...

"BIGGER BARGAIN today

and a smaller item in our family budget!"

The number of telephones the typical Alabama family can call at the local service rate has nearly tripled in ten years. And the service is better.

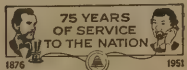

Meanwhile, in a period of rising prices, the price of telephone service has increased far less than wages and family income... far less than most of the goods and services that make up the every-day cost of living.

Always one of the biggest bargains in the family budget, telephone service is today an even bigger bargain than it was ten years ago.

S. H. YOUNGBLOOD, Alabama Manager

One Bargain that Keeps on Growing!

During the past ten years, Alabama telephone rates in the overall have gone up less than half as much as the overall cost of living and less than a fourth as much as wages in manufacturing industries. And the number of telephones you can call keeps growing.

FILING SYSTEM PROVES HELPFUL TO HOUSEWIVES

Auburn, Ala. — A filing system in the home will avoid many a frantic search for a mislaid guarantee, instruction booklet, address, clipping, or bulletin.
Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service, home management specialist, says that any box or drawer that will allow standard file folders, 9 by 11-3/4 inches, to stand upright will suit the purpose. A good-looking file can be made at home from a wooden box of the right size. Some housewives find that it pays to invest in a second-hand wooden or steel file.
"Filing by subjects generally is most convenient," reveals the specialist.
"For example, have one folder for guarantees, another for instruction booklets for household equipment, and others for clippings and bulletins."

GUERNSEY SALES SET FOR APRIL 21, MAY 8

Auburn, Ala. — The 10th Annual Alabama State Guernsey Sale will be held at the fair grounds in Birmingham, beginning at noon Saturday,
April 21.
Featured will be some 40 top quality guernseys consigned by breeders in four states. Most of the animals will be bred or open heifers, but a few good bulls will also be sold.
On Tuesday, May 8, Alabama's Annual Guernsey Cattle Sale will be held at Kibby Prison.
"This sale is not to be confused with the Guernsey Cattle Club Sale scheduled for Birmingham on April 21," says Austin Ezzell, secretary-treasurer of the State Guernsey Cattle Club.
The Kibby Prison Sale has catalogued for auction about 20 bulls and six heifers—all select animals of the Guernsey breed.

THE SPOONING of Sam Steep-belly and Effie Spindleshanks has Dawdle Dell in a tizzy fit. Each spring, The County Chronicle, "fastest with the mostest," faithfully announces their splicing, only to correct the glad tidings the next issue with regrets the wedding tale was a little bit in the wrong—the main details were straight, but the last paragraph veered a mite from the truth when it mentioned the groom was present. Sam's a steady heau, but he just won't show when the nuptials are ready to pop.

Sam "swans" he aims to bust in at his own wedding some year soon and stop everybody jawing. He can't get through his head why folks get het up every spring over his engagement, although he allows that his sparking is a sure sign cold weather is over and plowing is about due. But it's more than a spring thaw to us. Folks get mighty interested in a red hot love story about young people.
Regularly now, once a year for 20 years, Sam has fetched Effie to the edge of matrimony, only to drop her on her aspiration. Excitement is hitting a fever pitch.

We make allowances for Sam.
Twenty years ago, he went to a burlesque show, and that spree made him frisky. Effie can't break him to the traces. Every year, when he goes to the city to buy goods for his pa's store, he loafs an hour or two in front of the burlesque theater, staring at the billboards, too shy to go inside after what he saw once. Effie gets riled at his straying, so he carries in tying himself to such a strict spouse until he's sown his wild oats. At this rate, gazing at wild billboards once a year, he's apt to take a long time. So I advise you folks who keep traipsing to "am's and Effie's "ceremonies" very year to quit chewing your bits.

GRASSLAND FARMING PAYS OFF IN STATE

Grazing crops are the most important sources of feed nutrients for beef and dairy cattle, according to S.
R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist. They also play an important role in producing other types of livestock.

Doughty points out that here in Alabama where these crops may be grown the year around, grazing largely eliminates the added labor of harvesting, storing, and drying forage for the winter months.

In addition to providing the cheapest feed, grazing crops furnish land cover to prevent erosion and organic matter to increase water-holding capacity of the soil, improve the soil, and increase soil fertility.

KATHLEEN COLLINS WEDS CURTIS CAVER

The Rehearsal Baptist Church in Lawley, Alabama, was the beautiful scene Sunday, April 8th, of the marriage of Miss Kathleen Collins to Mr. Curtis Caver of Montgomery, Alabama, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Caver of Billingsley, Alabama. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moody P. Collins of Lawley. The wedding took place at 6:30, with the Rev. E. C. Hand of Clanton and Rev. Rupert Cravens of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., officiating, using the double ring ceremony.

The scene for the wedding was an oval shaped background of smilax intermingled with white dogwood blossoms. Tall white baskets of pink and white snapdragons stood in front of a low trellis entwined with smilax and extending to each side of the church. White Calla lilies were at the sides of the steps leading to the altar which was marked with white columns topped with bowls of pink honeysuckle. The tall white candles burning in six seven-branched candelabra were lighted by Miss Sara Martin and Mrs. Jack Lightsey, classmates of the bride.

The pre-nuptial music was by Miss Jean Stewart, pianist, and Miss Nettie Katherine Lightsey, vocalist, singing, "Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown designed with a yoke embroidered in seed pearls. The skirt was entrain. The finger tip veil of illusion was caught to a seed pearl tiara, and she carried a prayer book marked with white carnations, centered with a white orchid and showered with lilies of the valley. Miss Evelyn Collins, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore blue shadow organdy over taffeta, and carried yellow snaps centered with a white carnation. Bridesmaids, Miss Louise Caver, Miss Joyce DeRamus of Billingsley, Miss Margaret Lightsey of Centreville, and Miss Martha Pilgreen of Brent, wore pink shadow organdy over taffeta like that of the honor attendant. Their bouquets were pink snapdragons with white carnations.

The flower girls, Cherry Lightsey and Jackie Nichols, and the train bearers, Judy Lightsey and Kitty Nichols, wore dresses of pink and blue organdy over taffeta.

W. G. Caver of Billingsley, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsman were Norvin Lovelady, Willard Shultz of Lawley, Ed Headley of Prattville, and Billy Hester of Billingsley.

The bride's mother wore a grey sharkskin suit with navy accessories. Her corsage was a gardenia.

The groom's mother wore a navy dress with white accessories. Her corsage was a gardenia.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. After a wedding trip to Gulf Shores, Mr. and Mrs. Caver will reside in Montgomery. For traveling the bride wore a beige suit with brown accessories, and her corsage was a white orchid.

On Saturday night immediately following the rehearsal for the wedding Mrs. John Lightsey delightfully entertained the wedding party and a few friends at their camp house in Lawley.

The out-of-town guests attending the wedding were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Fox, Cordell, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Headley, Prattville, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Edwards and family and Mr. and Mrs. James Collins, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Atkins Collins, Thorsby, Ala.; Mrs. Ollie Summers of Jemison, Ala.; Mrs. Carl Baker and family, Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Hand, of Clanton, Ala.; Rev. and Mrs. Rupert Cravens, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn.; Miss Lilla Collins, Miss Ella Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Manford Williams, Mrs. Lillian Hayes, Mrs. Morgan Hayes, Mrs. Ben-

JEMISON F.F.A. MEMBERS PLAN FOR BUSY YEAR

Members of the Jemison F.F.A. are planning to do their part to help feed a hungry world. This year, the 70 members plan to have a total of 220 productive projects—an average of 3 projects per member. Some of the leading projects with No. students enrolled are as follows: Corn production 61, hogs 27, tomatoes 22, chickens 22, sweet potatoes 12, pole beans 10 and cotton 10. In addition to those listed, they are planning to have 22 other different kinds of productive projects.

Plans are under way for 151 improvement projects and 504 supplementary practices. Some of the leading improvement projects are: Home improvement 43, home grounds improvement 38, and pasture improvement 18.

The Jemison boys are also interested in reforestation and preserving the forest we already have by selective cutting and keeping fire out. Members have set a total of 35,000 pine seedlings the last four years. The goal of the chapter is to have every acre on every farm producing some worthwhile crop.

According to L. C. Shields, local F.F.A. adviser, the boys are also working hard for the dairy judging, parliamentary procedure, and the quartet contests to be held soon. Two years ago the chapter won the state dairy judging contest and last year the Jemison boys came off with first place in the parliamentary contest.

Missouri Man Advises Folks Who Feel Bad

Carl Schaffrin, 217 Perry St., St. Charles, Mo., says there are some folks in this old world who feel good and there are other folks who feel bad. The folks who feel good he wants to non-gratulate but for the folks who feel bad he wants them to read what he has to say and then take a word of advice.

For HADACOL, teamed to be what he needed and HADACOL, may bring out the pallid unit are seeking it since condition is due to lack of Vitamins B, B₁₂, Nicotin and Iron.

Here is what Mr. Schaffrin says:

"I have been a chow eater for near 30 years—I now work for the Bond Watch Store Co. in St. Louis. For quite some time now I haven't had any appetite at all—except like I didn't have any—never in the morning. I can't sleep at all the time—and really didn't enjoy doing anything. It affected my work too. Then I heard how other folks who took HADACOL, had increased their appetite and seemed to have a limitless amount of energy. I tried HADACOL, and it is amazing what a change it has made. Now I feel like eating everything on the table, my disposition is 100% better and my work—in fact, everything I do I now enjoy. For an entirely new outlook on life, I recommend HADACOL."

Buy HADACOL in size. Trial size bottle costs only $1.94. Large family or economy size, $3.80. Refuse substitutes. There is only the one true and genuine HADACOL, which everyone is talking about.

SHOULTS NEWS

Church News—

Every one remember the homecoming on the fifth Sunday, April 29th, at Pleasant Grove No. 2 Church. Former pastors, former members and all singers, are especially invited. Everyone is welcome. Rev. Hymon Atchison will be chairman of the singing. Rev. Atchison is a former pastor of our church and we are glad to have him act as chairman.

The people of this community met last Saturday at the church, cleaning and working on the cemetery yards and church building. There will be another working Saturday of this week to finish up the work started. This has added greatly to the appearance of the church property.

All the organizations of the church are making wonderful progress under the leadership of the good pastor, Rev. Joe Davis, and wife.

Home Demonstration Club—

Next Thursday or Thursday of this week the Shoalts Demonstration Club meets in the home of Mrs. Bessie Garner. Miss Croker, our new County Club leader, will be unable to be with us until the May meeting. We are very sorry, however, the enthusiastic President, Mrs. Thelma Hathcock, will carry on the demonstration at this meeting.

Comings and Comings—

Pvt. William J. Moore (Billy) of Camp Gordon, Ga., was a recent visitor here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Moore, last Sunday after receiving word that Billy would soon leave for California and probably overseas. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Moore and Miss Edna Mae Moore motored to Camp Gordon, Ga., to visit their son and brother before he left.

We pray God's blessings upon these boys and hope they can soon return home to be with their loved ones again.

Pfc. Olin Heifner of Fort Jackson, S. C., was recently visiting friends here and Plantersville, Ala.

Attending the homecoming at Macedonia last Sunday from this community were: Mr. Robert McAfee and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raynard Hale, Mrs. Thelma Hathcock and children and others we failed to get names.

Mrs. Georgia Houston and Miss Lucy Walker of Clanton spent last week end here and Maplesville with their relatives. While here Miss Walker also visited her sister, Mrs. Carson Sneed, at Centerville, Ala.

One day last week Tech-Sgt. and Mrs. Phillip Hicks and son, Corky; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoalts and Mrs. Willie Mae Hathcock spent the day at Lakeland Farms in Perry County fishing. They reported only fair luck.

Visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith last week were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Heath Fountain, Mr. and Mrs. Wardie Smith of Selma, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Lee Smith of Pitts, Ala.

We are sorry to report that Mr. George Shoalts has been unable to work for the past few days due to a back injury. Mr. Shoalts has a position with the county in road construction.

Visiting here last week end with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Latham were their sons and families, Corp. and Mrs. Keith Latham and daughter of Fayetteville, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Latham and baby daughter; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Latham and daughter, all of Bessemer, Ala.

Tech-Sgt. and Mrs. Phillip Hicks and son, Corky, of Craig Air Base, Selma, Ala., visited here with relatives last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McFarland of Lawley, Ala., spent last Sunday here with their daughter, Mrs. Robert Latham.

Mr. Claud Hathcock, who has been employed by the Stremming Veneer Corporation at Maplesville for nearly seven years, has been unable to work since January due to an attack of flu and asthma. We hope he will soon be well again.

We are glad to report that Mr. Charlie Smith is much improved. He is under the care of a Selma physician.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell of Maplesville, Mrs. Sam Shoalts and Mrs. Willie Hathcock of this community visited Mrs. Layden Hicks in the Maxwell Field Air Base Hospital, Montgomery. Mrs. Hicks underwent a serious operation. However, at this time she has returned to her home at Craig Field, Selma, Ala. Mrs. Blanche Mitchell, sister in law of Mrs. Hicks, cared for the two children, Perry and Hilda, while Mrs. Hicks was in the hospital. Mrs. Hicks is from England and is an English war bride. We are glad she is recovering nicely after her operation. The people of this community are very glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Hicks of New Jersey to this community as permanent residents. They have bought the home of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Gilliland. The home is located on the farm of the late Mr. J. R. McAfee. Mr. Hicks was born and reared, attended grammar School in this community. They are very welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sexton (Fannie Lawrence) and S-Sgt. Charles Shoalts all of Selma, Ala., spent last Monday here with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoalts.

ISABELLA

There was a fair crowd at Mulberry Sunday and Sunday night. A drive began Sunday to get finances for our new church building. It has been very successful so far.

There has been several meetings of the building and finance committees of Mulberry recently. Plans are underway for the building of our new church.

The W.M.S. of Mulberry met at the church Tuesday evening. After the business session a missionary program was given. Plans were discussed to study a mission book in the near future.

The play presented by the Senior 2 Class of Isabella was enjoyed by a large crowd last Friday night.

The Ruth Ford Circle of Mulberry met with Mrs. Casey Cummings last Tuesday to quilt one of the quilts we are to sell for our building fund.

Isabella's Home Demonstration Club will meet next Monday, April 23rd, at 3:15 p.m., instead of 2:00 p.m. with Mrs. J. H. Wells.

Mrs. Garland Smith was ill at her home last week with throat trouble.

Mrs. Maedeleen Evans and Kay, of Tuscaloosa, were guests of her mother, Mrs. Dessie Roper, the past week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Conway and little son of Sweetwater, Ala., visited in our community Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Tommie Nix has been ill at her home but has improved.

Mrs. Emma Manning visited her daughter, Mrs. C. T. Farmer and family, in Titus this week.

In honor of Ruth Dean Bray's birthday a dinner was given at her home Sunday. About 30 guests enjoyed the day together. A delicious lunch was served at noon.

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving father rather than silver and gold. Proverbs 22:1.

There was a large group of our people who attended the singing at Macedonia Sunday.

Mrs. Dicie Calfee and son, Rickie, have been confined to their bed for the last several days with mumps.

Mr. W. C. (Jake) Hubbard, who lived with his sister on the old Selma road, was killed instantly Sunday afternoon when his car skidded off the bridge near Mr. Chester Mizell's. His sister escaped without any injuries.

A soft, clean cloth should be used to clean books. If dust has collected, blow it off if possible, then complete the cleaning with the cloth, taking care not to get the dirt into the book's surface. Use no water.

Discontinued patterns or cuttings of linoleum make economical as well as practical shelf and drawer linings. They can be wiped with a damp cloth and outwear many changes of the shelf-paper.

If you've cooked Hollandaise over boiling water and left it over heat too long it may separate into small particles. When it does—remove from heat. For each half cup sauce stir in one to two tablespoons boiling water, drop by drop. Then give it a whirl with rotary beater.

To remove white rings left by too hot dishes, place a few drops of camphorated oil or sweet oil on the ring, let soak for a few minutes, then polish with a soft cloth.

Of interest to the many relatives and friends throughout this section is the following which appeared in the Selma Times-Journal recently:

"In the past few months I have read clippings of local boys in various parts of the U. S. doing magnificent jobs on the front lines of Korea. I have a local soldier serving in my platoon (Co. H 7th Inf. 3rd Div. APO No. 4685 P.M. San Francisco, Calif.) that should be brought to the attention of the local citizens of Dallas County, Selma, Ala. He is Corp. Jessie A. Davis who's home address is Plantersville, Ala., Box 84.

Corp. Davis landed on the East Coast of Korea at the port of Wosan November 17, 1950, with the 3rd Inf. Division. He then proceeded north to the Chosin Reservoir. It was during the battle of Hupusuri that we were overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Chinese and North Koreans. His job is to man one of the .50 calibre machine guns mounted on a jeep.

During this encounter he was exposed to a great number of small arms and automatic weapons firing. Corp. Davis manned this .50 calibre machine gun firing continuously, assisting the Bn. to withdraw to a better position. He was one of the very last to withdraw to safety.

After Hupusuri, the 3rd Division was the last to evacuate the beach, head at Hungnam. He then sailed for Pusan, spending Xmas Day aboard ship. He then debarked, moving northwest to Taegue, Taegon, and then to Chonan.

After moving to the front again, late one evening while moving into position for the night, the Bn. was greatly harassed by sniper fire. Corp. Davis immediately went into action, spraying the hill sides. By doing so the snipers were eliminated.

During all our encounters with the enemy pushing North to the Han River, he has proved to be a darn good man to have around.

Due to the fact that Corp. Davis is 39 years of age, he is by no means a slacker in his duties in any way. He is right there with the best of the young men in whatever they attempt to accomplish.

During World War II, he served in Europe for 30 months. Was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Arrow, with six Battle Stars and the European Campaign Ribbon. He was discharged November 1, 1945. He re-enlisted May 20, 1948, with the 7th Inf. 3rd Div., serving with the "Fighting Third."

W. Z. Davis, the brother of Corp. Davis, is now residing at Plantersville, Ala.

This letter was written with hopes that it will reach local citizens of Selma, Ala. The above was signed by M-Sgt. Roland Reid and S.F.C. Clifton Andrews, marked, "Somewhere in Korea" and dated March 1, 1951.

Date Extended For Mailing OPS Pricing Charts

Less than one-tenth of the retail stores required by price control laws to file pricing charts by May 30 have done so, the Montgomery District Office of Price Stabilization reported today.

And more than half the charts received by the Montgomery OPS were incomplete that, under the law, they had to be returned. Charles G. Dobbins, District Director, said.

In an effort to assist South Alabama business men in complying with the law, the director appealed to them to fill out their pricing charts promptly and fully.

OPS officials say the most common errors in the pricing charts include: Failure to identify the chart with store name and address; failure to say whether it is a chain store, mail order house or independent retailer; failure to tell the list date; and failure to give other essential information required by law.

Those affected by the May 30 deadline include many clothing, furniture, jewelry and shoe stores. These retailers come under CPR 7 if they sell more than $20,000 worth of goods listed above.

Stores doing less than $20,000 worth of business have a choice of filing pricing charts under CPR 7 or staying under the general "freeze" order.

Retailers who come under CPR 7 are restrained by law from selling goods covered by the regulation after May 30 unless they have filed their pricing charts.

Smith, outfielder and some good prospects in Fred Smithman, Vinson Sims with Joe and Harry Ellison joining the Club at the end of this school term. NOTICE

Clanton Chapter No. 271 O.E.S. will hold its regular meeting Thursday evening, April 26th, at 8 o'clock. Members are urged to be present, also members of other chapters are welcome.

Most farmers agree that late April and early May are the best times to plant tomato seed to produce the second setting of tomato plants for use later in the season.

Evening School Underway For Livestock Farmers

An evening school for farmers and others interested in making a study of better methods of livestock farming has been getting under way at Mineral Springs School under the sponsorship of the Department of Vocational Agriculture of the Jemison High School.

The first meeting was held last Thursday night and got off to a good start with the following farmers present: Hoyt Thrash, Dick Peters, Grady Martin, Marvin Glass, William Wright, G. D. Gilmer, J. R. Giles, E. C. Robinson, Charles Robinson, Armond Aldredge and Claude Glass.

Hoyt Thrash was elected to serve as president; Graham Gilmer, vice-president; and Charles Robinson, secretary. The officers will also serve in the capacity of an executive committee to help in selecting the topics to be studied during the school.

L. C. Shields, teacher of vocational agriculture at Jemison, is being assisted by Elmer Jackson and R. O. Shaver, apprentice teachers in agriculture from Auburn.

Mr. Jackson led a very interesting discussion on the locating and establishing of pastures and he also discussed some of the best plants for use in pastures in this section. At the next meeting Mr. Shaver will continue with some of the things important for the maintenance of pastures and how to keep them in a high state of production.

Since only one meeting has been held so far there is still time to enroll in the school and everyone interested in learning more about the subject of livestock farming is invited to attend the next meeting.

Meetings will likely be on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and will run for a three or four weeks period.

"Just Ducky" At Jemison High

The day started off peacefully enough in the Maxwell household—teen-age Betty Lou and her friend, Bernadine, drop a bombshell that is destined to affect the whole Maxwell household—especially Father Maxwell. Mother Maxwell, son, Wilbur, and daughter, Connie, and their friends all get in on the "Just Ducky" situation that keeps you in stitches until the final curtain. Be sure to see this delightful play for an evening of clean, wholesome entertainment, sponsored by the senior class of Jemison High School. It will be in the high school gym on Friday night, May 11, with tickets on sale for 25c and 50c.

May Court At Maplesville

Maplesville School will hold its annual May Court on Tuesday evening, May 1, at eight o'clock.

There are over 50 characters in the cast and it is hoped that this will be the most elaborate court which has been staged at this school. This year the theme song is "Stardust" and the color scheme is gold and white.

The Junior maids are: Betty Barnes, Mabel Pugh, Peggy Seales, Lucille Smith, Martha Ellen Chambers, Shelby Jean Atcheson, Annie Laurie Gay, Mary Frances Burnett, Katherine Legrove, Marjorie McAfee, Elizabeth Dennis and Betty Paine.

The royal princesses are: Alice Norma Dial, Verna Chapman, Isla Lou Lovelady, Shirley Chambers, Betty Lovelady, Juanita McAfee, Marie Smith, Betty Ann Moore, Dorothy Dennis Davis, Eva Jo Walker, Ann Merchant and Opal Taylor. The queen will be selected from this latter group.

As captain of the football team of the current year, Earl Chambers will act as king and preside over the court. The co-captain, Harvey Smith, will be prime minister.

Other characters in the court are Star Dust Fairies, Rainbow Fairies, Court Jesters, Musicians and others. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

Sheriff's Office Washes It's Face

Things are looking up in the Sheriff's Office. You can always depend on a woman to make changes and for the better, too.

Desks and office furniture have been moved around so as to afford some privacy for the Sheriff and Deputies and also enable them to serve the public more efficiently.

The change is a distinct improvement. Miss Sara Nell Wyatt is office clerk.

PROBATE JUDGE?

FRED SMITH

Another name prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for the office of Judge of Probate of Chilton County in the race for that office next year is Fred Smith.

Mr. Smith is a merchant at Jemison and is also Mayor of that municipality. He has been a member of the County Board of Education for the past five years. His present term will expire in 1952.

The announcement in last week's issue of Chilton County News of the Great Baby Campaign just inaugurated by this newspaper, and through the medium by which we are going to award the attractive amount of three hundred dollars ($300.00) to the winners of the prize and the end of this appealing campaign, has evidently created a wide-sweeping wave of approval all over this section of the State.

This fact was made known to us by the large number of nominations reaching our office since the announcement was made last week, many of them coming from our subscribers living in other states who evidently have spent much time, and made many acquaintances here, while they were in our midst.

In addition to collecting the coupons, good for 25 votes, and sending them in to be credited to the baby, we are also going to give votes on both renewals and new subscriptions and it is along this line of endeavor that your greatest gains will be made. Many of your neighbors and friends very likely take our paper and will be glad to give you their renewal so that your little sweetheart may receive the benefit of the votes we are going to give on them, perhaps some of them do not now take our paper and would be glad to give you a subscription to Chilton County News in order to permit the baby to secure credit for the votes we are giving on them. Very likely some of them who are not now subscribers, will be glad to give you their subscription to help your Baby on its way to capture one of our better prizes, if not in fact, the Grand Prize. You will find our paper full of local and county news and we hope it will be found in every home in this whole section.

On another page will be found further instructions, also a list of votes given on both old and new subscriptions and in this connection we are now prepared to send you a little receipt book so you can give a receipt for any you secure also a list of our subscribers in your section showing when their paper expires and by the same token, it will show you who does not take our paper and as you will be given more votes on the new subscriptions, they should be given particular attention. In the event of getting a 2-year subscription, you will be given two bonuses, or 10,000 extra votes. This is the largest bonus that will be given during the life of the campaign and we trust you will take full advantage of it and give the Baby an early and impressive start on its road to victory and a splendid cash prize.

Hope you get busy at once and capture a nice prize for your own little sweetie-pie. You can do it just as easily as any of the others if you try. Send in the Baby's nomination, if it has not already been nominated then call at our office and get a little receipt book that will permit giving a receipt and on the cover you will find full information as to the votes given on each one and all necessary instructions in making them out. If you live outside the city, write for this equipment and we will mail it to you immediately.

How about the baby's picture? We want to show our readers what a splendid aggregation of little folks we have right here in our midst; if you parents will co-operate with us and furnish us with a good distinct picture of the little one we will be glad to have an engraving made from it. We have to send the picture to an engraver in another city. This all takes time so the sooner we get the picture, the earlier it will be shown. Making the engraving does not harm the picture in the least and when it has been received from our engraver, the picture will be given to you and you will furnish us with a good distinct picture of the little one we will be glad to have an engraving made from it. Making the engraving does not harm the picture in the least and when it has been received from our engraver, the picture will be given to you and you will furnish us with a good distinct picture of the little one we will be glad to have an engraving made from it.

Quite a large number of coupon votes have been received for a number of the little ones but we have been so busy with the various details of this affair, we have not been able to credit them this week but they will appear next week.

THE LAY DAM SPEEDWAY

It seems the Lay Dam Highway has been turned into a wide-open race track, here of late.
Between teen-agers racing in cars not fit to be on the highways and fishermen making a run to town for supplies, and at the same time afraid of missing a big fish, it's been turned into a dangerous stretch of pavement.

According to statistics, speed alone killed 13,300 people last year not to mention those it maimed. Many of the "hot rodders," have been clocked on 60 m.p.h. in the 30 m.p.h. zone at the start of the residential section. Speed is a killer but its too late after the damage is done. The time to think is before trouble comes.

The highway patrol cannot be on all the highways leading out of Clanton at the same time. It is the duty of each of us to watch our speed on the Lay Dam Road and all other thoroughfares throughout Chilton County.

WHO ARE THE IMPERIALISTS?

We are told by Communist dominated countries that they are opposing Anglo-American imperialism. That claim is boomed over powerful radio stations in Russia, sung by Chinese Reds in fact, all nations controlled by the Communists make that their rallying cry.

Let's check the latest record in the matter of imperialism, and see how it works. The United States drove the Spanish out of Cuba and occupied that country for a short time, then withdrew all forces and allowed the Cubans complete independence. The same thing occurred in the Philippines. The U. S. could have held the Philippines, but withdrew and granted the Filipinos their independence. Does that look like imperialism? Britain voluntarily withdrew from India, a nation with approximately 400,000,000 people, where the British never kept more than 25,000 soldiers. Why fear imperialism in such a case?

Why should Russia cry imperialism? Russia has taken over and controls part of Finland, the three Baltic nations of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Rumania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Albania and what not? Many of them were seized in revolutions, supported by Russia. Red China has already taken over Tibet. Who are the imperialists?—Mountain Eagle, Jasper, Ala.

OUR MOST IMPORTANT SAFEGUARD

"No dictator can get along with an independent press," writes the Los Angeles Times. This observation was prompted by what happened to La Prensa of Buenos Aires, a newspaper which was founded in 1869 and has long had a world-wide reputation for integrity and accuracy. La Prensa achieved a very large circulation and it prospered accordingly. But it did the unforgivable—it was often critical of Juan Peron's dictatorship in Argentina. So finally it has been done to death as a free medium of news and opinion. It has been taken over by Peron's government and is now being run under the supervision of a committee from Peron's rubber-stamp Congress. Its distinguished editor, Dr. Gahza Paz, escaped to Uruguay after a close brush with Argentine police who were trying to arrest him.

The press of Argentina, with a single exception, is now wholly controlled by the government. There will be no dissenting voices, no matter what the dictator does.

Of all the safeguards which a people have against oppression, the free press is the most important. It is not a coincidence that every dictator — communist, fascist, or what have you starts to muzzle the press as soon as he takes over the government. That is a matter of sheer necessity. For when men can speak and publish what they believe to be the truth, injustice cannot long flower. Truth is what all dictators fear the most.

That sentence from the Los Angeles Times editorial should be remembered by everyone: "No dictator can get along with an independent press."—Sylacauga Advocate.

COVINGTON'S CRIMSON CLOVER

Somewhat the impression has been circulated that Autauga County, with Prattville as its capitol, is Alabama's one and only county in which crimson clover and other highly developed pasture grasses flourish.

Autauga has been a pioneer in the development of crimson clover in this state. Residents of other sections generally recognize that Autauga deserves definite laurels for blazing the trail.

But Covington County can and does produce crimson and other clover in quantity and quality equal to any other sector of Alabama. It will not be many years before Covington will be exploding that myth which supposes that, only in the Black Belt, can beef cattle be produced for great economic gain in the state.

Knox Campbell and his cohorts in the Soil Conservation Service are conducting a tour on Friday to show any and all interested laymen the agricultural wonders of cow and hog pastures in South Covington County.

CHRONIC ILLNESS

Any condition that keeps the patient sick or inactive for a long period of time is considered chronic illness. The fact that the group of diseases falling into the category of chronic illness is growing larger all the time is reflected in the advances of medicine which have reduced the acute illness to a short period of recovery; and if we are going to live longer, the changing processes of the body in the older years will bring about chronic illness.

While certain conditions provoke a chronic illness in the older age group there are some that affect young adults and even children. Fully one-half of the chronically ill are below the ages of forty-five and 16 per cent are below twenty-five.

The care of the old and the person with chronic illness is necessarily a community problem which calls for understanding. No one who has worked to maintain himself can easily settle down to inactivity and dependence on another. And that is why there are three important aspects in chronic illness: Prevention, care of the chronically ill patient and rehabilitation.

Prevention can be achieved in some measure by educating the young to an adequate knowledge of good nutrition, since this is one of the most important fundamentals in good health. The periodic physical examination is another basic step.

Whether cared for in the home, hospital or nursing home, the chronically ill patient requires special attention. Long hours of bed rest can result in bed sores which are most uncomfortable.

A person with chronic illness should be inspired to new interests or resuming old ones. 'Any hobby, whether it is making doll clothes or whittling boats can be stimulating. It is the mental stimulus that counts, as well as the graded physical activity of bringing muscles into play.

While it is true that many chronically ill patients, especially those with fatal and malignant disease or with permanent derangements of the brain, cannot be restored to complete usefulness, the majority of them can be given new hope, new life, and a new and rightful place in the community.

NOW IT'S UP TO US

HOW TO SAVE MONEY WHEN BUYING MEAT

Money can be saved at the grocery meat counter if more attention is paid to the grade and cut of the meat.

"The cut refers to the part of the animal from which the meat comes," explains Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist.

To save money, she says to use the less tender cuts of beef and the less popular cuts of pork, lamb, and veal. These cuts contain just as much food value as the more expensive ones.

CULTIVATING PASTURES

Mowing a permanent pasture does for it what cultivating does for a field crop. It removes the weeds.

An old unwanted piano stool may be taken out of the attic and made into an efficient kitchen seat in this way: Cover the seat with oilcloth, and paint the legs with enamel to match the kitchen. The stool will be particularly handy, since it can be adjusted in height.

Mr. Campbell is a foremost apostle of the theory that Covington County can produce pasture grasses—and fields of crimson clover—on a par with Autauga County or any other sector of the nation.

Goal is to demonstrate that only correct fertilization procedures are needed to bring widespread improvements for Covington pastures.

Anyone wanting an insight into the future farming in this area can get a right accurate picture by joining the Soil Conservationists on their Friday trip.—Star-News, Andalusia, Ala.

Capital Punishment

There has been a strong movement in these modern days to abolish capital punishment. Even some misguided Christians have advocated the same, and lent their influence to supporting abolishing the law, which calls for the death penalty. From the Christian viewpoint it has been argued that God is now dealing with the world in grace, and whereas there was a time when it seemed that God demanded an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life; now He is dealing more merciful and gracious. But the truth about the matter is the God is dealing in grace only with those who will accept His Son, Jesus Christ. If we will accept Him by faith, then we are saved by grace, through faith. God is still dealing with an ungodly world inexorably. His judgment is still the same toward sin and wickedness.

In Gen. 9:6 We have God's Word saying, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made He man" . . . In this command we apprehend the foundation upon which all laws are established, including every form of lesser punishment. This command was at the beginning of Human Government. The provision was designed of God to curb in an ungodly world, and the tendency to violence and murder. If some of the sickly sentiment displayed toward hardened criminals were turned into demand for law enforcement and the purging of our courts, and our whole system of jurisdiction, of unjust judges, shyster lawyers, easy bail, and undeserved parole, with the prompt visitation of capital punishment upon the guilty murderer, there would be less crime wave sweeping our country.

No wonder we have reached the time when men are killed at the drop of a hat, so-to-speak. There is more killing going on today than ever before. Our crime bill is costing this country over $15,000,000 a year. In 1946 there were 1,685,203 major crimes committed; in the last ten years crime has increased 400 per cent. 1,200 per cent in the last 35 years.

Crime is an open and wilful defiance of civil authority, as well as divine authority. For Human Government it is ordained to God, and whosoever resisteth the authority, resisteth the ordinance of God. The slackness in law enforcement is somewhat responsible for the lawlessness in our land today. . . . Back to God, and back to the Bible. — Hickman.

Let's Learn the Value of Smiles

WHEN HAROLD JACQUES, Dundee, N.Y., was at the age of 12, a dreadful catastrophe occurred, a catastrophe so great that many of those who suffer it give way to despair. He was stricken with the dread infantile paralysis. And this was 34 years ago when not so much was known in either the cure, or the handling of the after effects of paralysis in youngsters.

Carnegie

One unhappy result of this illness was the paralyzing of certain muscles and nerves of his face. This was hard to bear when he got out among his playmates. With that dreadful cruelty of children who haven't been taught sympathy for suffering and who have not suffered themselves, they called him "crooked face," and thrust other epithets at him calculated to make him cringe. And cringe he did. He began to be sorry for himself; he kept to himself as much as he could, or went only among those where he felt sympathy and not scorn would be extended.

He looked at himself in the mirror and found that his "frozen face" condition was more noticeable when he smiled. So what was more natural than that he should want to avoid smiling. At first this required conscious effort, but as the habit of not smiling was formed, it required no effort; an expressionless face became his natural appearance. Now it was smiling that required an effort.

Avoidance of a smile went on for 34 years, although during this time the nerves and muscles did relax somewhat. Then he began reading in this column the experiences of those who had won out with a smile. He began wishing that he could smile, naturally and easily. He felt the need of smiling. So he suddenly turned 'bout face and began practicing a smile. He has improved greatly, and he has just learned how much he has missed in human relationships by not smiling during all those years.

Let us who can smile easily and freely remember Harold Jacques and benefit by this story, for he has told it to impress upon us the value of a smile. Let's not let his helpful effort be in vain.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

"Procrastination is the thief of time," and we know some procrastinators in Chilton County. Some of them sent us fine essays in the Clanton Drive-In. Of Arc Ercy Contest—but they mailed them too late, much too late, for judging. For two weeks we published the fact that the essays must be in not later than Tuesday, April 17th. We were still getting entries Friday. That's bad, too. The ones received late were even better than the ones received on time; so you see, being prompt pays off.

Old Mulberry Church came down this week. Over a hundred years old and with hundreds and thousands of friends all over the world who will be sad at hearing the news, old Mulberry Church is torn down to make way for progress. There's a soft spot in the heart of many people for the church but we cannot live in the past. We only live for today. Yesterday is dead. Tomorrow, we had not arrived. Longfellow put it this way: Trust no future howe'er pleasant. Let the dead past bury its dead. Act, act, in living present. Heart within, and God o'erhead.

Preacher A. T. Hickman says he isn't the only gadabout around here. He proves his statement by saying while he was on a trip through Elba the other week he was hailed by the county operator of the Chilton County News, Calvin Robinson, and Grady Bates. What the fellows were doing he didn't know, but was sure they were enjoying themselves. He was just letting us know that it's always better to sweep around your own door first.

The gentleman who furnished the television for the Chilton County High School students to see and hear MacArthur did a mighty good turn for the kids. It gave them a wonderful opportunity to witness a history-making event enacted before their eyes. Radio Television Service Company is to be congratulated for their thoughtfulness in this public service.

Suburban Gas Company's Cooking School was a big success. Ladies everywhere with orchids, highly interested in how to make better meals for their families. The school was well attended.

Mr. Tom Maxwell was in Clanton Saturday visiting and came by to see us. While here David B. Adams chanced by and the two old gents had quite a visit. They were students together at the University of Alabama many years ago and had much in common. During the conversation Mr. Adams asked Mr. Maxwell if he knew how he might get into service. He has a strong desire to serve his country in some manner. When asked this Mr. Maxwell answered: "You might try reducing."

No matter what gossip you have heard around the past few days, we have traced it to its source, and it isn't true.

When the cook found a nice raise in his weekly pay envelope he went to the boss to find out why. "Well," said the boss, "you are worth more money. I'm giving you what you are worth." "Been cheating me a long time, huh, boss," was the reply.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY

There's a Little of General MacArthur in All of Us, And History Shows Symptoms Behind His Dismissal Have Existed in Various Forms for Many Centuries

By W. P. SCHOENTGEN
WNU Managing Editor

There is a kind of universality about Douglas MacArthur that communicates itself to many men, something of the same stuff that leads nearly everyone to believe in his own heart that he can run a newspaper and play Hamlet with a deathless genius. Was MacArthur right or wrong in his belief in the strategic priority of Asia, the bombing of Manchuria, the utilization of Chinese Nationalist forces?

Did he, in his public and private rejection of administration and United Nations policies in the Far East, express a subconscious desire to achieve "martyrdom" for his principles?

Did President Truman take the right action but at the wrong time in relieving MacArthur of his multiple command?

It doesn't make any difference who you are — you undoubtedly cause of aviation which Mitchell was personifying. But he also made it plain that, sympathy or no sympathy, he could not overlook the insubordination of which General Mitchell was found guilty.

An Assist to Air Power

The violent closing of Billy Mitchell's career, we know now, marked the turning point of the controversy over the future of military aviation, and the pioneering general did much to advance U.S.

TRUMAN AND MACARTHUR TALKED AT WAKE ISLAND ... but the result was only an uneasy truce ...

have your own strong, definite and perhaps impassioned answer to each of those questions. And according to your answers, you align yourself on one side or the other of the MacArthur controversy—the great American schism of 1951.

It is a basic division, a schism of the soul and spirit; and the rock upon which the split has occurred is a military man, a soldier, yes, even a 71-year-old general.

Military Men's Drama

That in itself is not unusual. It is, in point of fact, a fairly sound historical tradition that great epochs of man's development are likely to turn upon the personality of a military leader, probably because it is easy for the public to focus its attention upon a man who can be identified with the drama of danger and physical action, and with the glamour of military triumph.

General MacArthur follows vigorously in that tradition. It has been his peculiar destiny to help lead this nation in smiting tyranny both right and left within the past decade, striking to the right at Japanese imperialism in World War II and to the left at Communist efforts at domination in Korea and the Far East.

That he has become a political symbol, having stood at the spearhead of America's often inept and fumbling but always intense desire for a peace that patently will not be had for the asking but which may come if we fight hard enough for it.

Whether the principles he has advocated are right or wrong, it is MacArthur the symbol, not MacArthur the man, around which the air power to the mighty peak it reached in time to help win World War II.

Whether time and events will vindicate General MacArthur's ideas as fully as they have those of General Mitchell is anybody's guess.

One of the abiding characteristics of many powerful and successful military leaders in the past has been their capacity to capture the imagination and sympathy of the people and carry them along a chosen course—to a point, at least.

This makes for power and authority. And the possession of broad authority is like having a permit to carry a pistol. Keep it in the holster and depend upon its presence there to control circumstances, and chances are you won't get into trouble. The danger of carrying a gun lies in the possibility that sooner or later you might start firing it indiscriminately and a lot of people will get hurt, including yourself.

Julius Caesar, an overwhelming military and political genius, amassed for Rome and for himself a great reservoir of power which he was able to exercise pretty much at will. But there were those who felt he had too much power; they mistrusted it, feared that Caesar might misuse it.

No single man or group of men were strong enough to fire or depose the ruler by legal means. So Brutus and Cassius plotted, and on a day in March, Caesar, powerful and unsuspecting, walked up the steps of the Capitol to meet the knives of his assassins.

Controversy, then, too. That stirred up a great civil controversy in Rome, too, was Caesar right in his principles and policies concerning the Roman empire, or were the men who deposed him by liquidating him right? It might be argued that Rome, under Caesar, reached its peak of dynamic expansion and that its decline began after Caesar's death in 44 B.C. But regardless of the truth of that position, the split over the aims and policies of Julius Caesar marked an epochal turning point in the history of the Roman empire.

very real, very basic foreign policy quarrel has gathered. From that point of view, the MacArthur controversy is an old and elemental form of domestic strife that has occurred and recurred within this or that national community ever since man has been able to formulate and defend an opinion.

Without attempting to make any invidious comparisons, a number of historic parallels to the MacArthur case become apparent from a quick glance at the records.

There is a superficial resemblance, for instance, between the firing of MacArthur by President Truman and Calvin Coolidge's dismissal of the late General "Billy" Mitchell for defying orders. Mr. Coolidge made it clear, however, that he was in sympathy with the resolution and order. Mr. Dunlap moved that the foregoing resolution and order together with the preambles thereto be adopted and spread upon the minutes of this meeting which motion was seconded by Mr. Lenoir, and upon the motion being put to vote the following vote

Bruce was the storm center of a raging controversy much of his life, while he held to and fought for his ideal of a free and independent nation. He settled that issue himself, however, by decisively defeating the English forces under Edward II at the battle of Bannockburn in 1314, and assuring the continuance of Scotland as an independent kingdom.

Every student of American history knows of the quarrels and differences of opinion that flared after President Abraham Lincoln put General Grant in charge of the Union armies. Some members of Lincoln's own cabinet not only refused to support but actively opposed Grant's appointment.

It was, in a sense, a MacArthur situation in reverse.

Grant's Problem

And when Grant took command in March, 1864, he found he had to fight not only the enemy but the torpor and passivity of his own generals in the field. The military issue at stake that time was whether or not Meade, Hooker, McClellan and others in the string of Union generals were right in fighting a defensive war, avoiding battles wherever possible, and choosing more often to retreat than to fight. Grant favored action and offensive contact with the Confederate armies. Over the protestations of his subordinates, he decided to attack wherever possible and carry the war to the enemy.

The ultimate surrender of General Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox proved the rightness of Grant's strategy. But Grant, who went on to become President of the United States, albeit not an especially popular one, remained the center of a maelstrom of violent opinions all his life.

So the MacArthur story is by no means a new one. Call his actions and utterances in Korea insubordination, or call them an honorable defense of his own principles, they have basic meaning for us as a dramatic illustration of the grim fact that the United States has to choose between two basic and different courses in this battle against the evils of communism.

One way is going to be right, the other wrong. We say that the nation, in its collective mind, has split over the issue of which is the best way to deal with Communist aggression in the Far East.

But it is not, it cannot be, a fatal split. The doubt that has been lurking behind our thinking and our attitude on the question of how best to fight the monstrosity of world communism has been brought plainly into the open and is clearly defined.

There is no longer any reason for anyone—he be statesman, military man, farmer, stockraiser or factory worker—to deny the existence of that doubt. Now it can be talked about and it can be eliminated.

That is the great service that President Truman and General MacArthur have unwittingly performed for the nation and the free world. They have managed to get all the cards on the table.

The answer, still to be found, is there somewhere.

General Grant

Mr. Merchant and his helpers have done a very fine job in re-arranging for classes downstairs. Everyone has shown a lovely spirit thus far in being willing to make concessions to provide room for the various classes. Our choice smile is upon the nursery. We are very anxious for volunteers who will be willing to do part-time in keeping the nursery; this will permit quite a number of our young couples with small children to attend services morning and evening.
Remember the goal for B.T.U. on the 1st Sunday in May is 225. We may seem slow in the take-off for a push toward this goal, but the truth is, we are just backing up to get a good start.

Bro. J. W. Jones brought two inspiring messages to fair congregations at Mulberry Sunday. These were the last services we will have in our old building, as a number of men met there Monday morning and began to salvage the building. They were getting ready to begin the new building where the old building now stands. The pews were carried to Isabella High School where we will begin to have our regular Sunday services next Sunday, April 29th, until the new building is ready for service there. We are having a fine success in our financial drive for the building fund. We surely thank everyone who has given on it.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

Montgomery, Ala. — Chilton was one of the 17 Alabama counties from which diphtheria cases were reported in January. The county-by-county tabulation was made public by the State Health.

The list, with the number reported from each county, was as follows:

Baldwin, 1; Bullock, 1; Butler, 1; Calhoun, 2; Chilton, 1; Conecuh, 2; Escambia, 1; Houston, 3; Jefferson, 1; Lawrence, 1; Lee, 1; Marshall, 1; Monroe, 3; Montgomery, 5; Morgan, 1; Russell, 1; St. Clair, 3.

The January state total of 29 exceeded the December total by six. However, it failed by eight to equal the 37 cases reported in January, 1950.

NUMBER OF FARMS IN CHILTON COUNTY SHOW DECREASE
IN 1950

The number of farms in Chilton county last year was less than in 1945, according to information received here from Merrill C. Lofton, southeastern regional director of the U. S. Department of Commerce in Atlanta.

Releasing an analysis of the 1950 census of agriculture conducted by the Commerce Department's Bureau of the Census, Mr. Lofton said the number of farms in Chilton county in 1950 was placed at 3,368 compared with 3,786 in 1945.

Last year, the Census Bureau in taking the census of agriculture along with the census of population and housing, defined a farm as land of 3 or more acres on which agricultural products, exclusive of home garden, were produced, or on which the value of products sold amounted to $150 or more. In 1945, the definition was land on which products valued at $250 or more were produced, with no reference to home gardening or products sold.

In the State as a whole, the Census Bureau also recorded a decline in the number of farms from 223,369 to 211,413. A total of 47 counties in the State recorded decreases in number of farms and 20 reflected an increase.

Other features of the 1950 census of agriculture will be available at Commerce Department field offices in the near future without charge, Mr. Lofton said. These will include the value of commodities produced, number of farm operators, facilities used, and information of that kind. The field offices at which such data will be available include those in Birmingham and Mobile.

FROZEN SANDWICHES READY WHEN YOU ARE

Auburn, Ala. — To save time and energy later on, prepare a month's supply of sandwiches in advance.

Lavada Curtis, A.P.I. Extension Service food preservation specialist, reveals that they are especially good for school lunches and picnics.

Sandwich filling suitable for freezing may contain cheese or ground meat, sliced or ground poultry, or cooked egg yolks.

The following spreads make delicious frozen sandwiches: Dried beef and cheese, ham and eggs, meat and olives, cream cheese and nuts, cream cheese and dates, or any filling in which cream cheese is used.

Fillings not suitable for freezing are those that contain raw vegetables, whites of hard-cooked eggs, and jelly. Another tip is to always substitute butter for mayonnaise on sandwiches to be frozen.

Keep colored articles in one hamper or bag and white articles in the other, and much less time will be needed to sort clothes for laundering. A small bag reserved for handkerchiefs only is also a real help.

SHERIFF'S SALE, PERSONALTY

The State of Alabama, Chilton.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Chilton County Law and Equity Court of Chilton County, Ala., and to me directed whereby, I, as Sheriff of said County, was commanded to make the sum of Sixty-two and 89-100 Dollars, principal and interest, and Fourteen and 90-100 Dollars, costs of suit, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the April Term, 1951, of said Court of said County, Alabama, in favor of S. J. Reynolds against Rufus Robinson, I have levied upon and will sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public sale, between the hours of 11 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m., at home of Rufus Robinson's 5 miles west of Thorsby, Alabama, on the 8th day of May, 1951, all the right, title and interest of the above named Rufus Robinson in and to the following described personal property, viz.:

1 Dixie wood stove, 1 Wash stand, 1 Kitchen table, 1 Kitchen cabinet, 1 Gibson Electric Refrigerator, 5 Str. Chairs, 1 Dresser, 1 Chiffoniere, 1 Wood bed, 2 Iron Beds, all beds equipped with bedclothes, Chesterobe.

This 20th day of April, 1951.

J. L. KENDRICK, Sheriff.

Posted at Court House door April 20, 1951.

Uncovered bedsprings should be inspected occasionally to make sure they have no rough places that will tear sheets. If they have, apply adhesive tape to the rough spot.

PRELIMINARY COATING FOR PLASTERED WALLS

When painting newly plastered walls, it is advisable to treat the plaster with a solution of zinc sulfate—about two pounds for each gallon of water.

"The preliminary coat will neutralize the free lime present in the new plaster," explains W. T. Cox, A.P.I. Extension Service specialist in farm buildings. "If the ordinary oil-base type of paint is to be used, a quantity of good floor varnish is often added to the first coat applied after the zinc sulfate treatment."

Of course, types of emulsified resin paints are now available which may be applied to plaster that has not received the zinc sulfate treatment. Casein paints may also be used without the treatment.

A Calculating Kid—Skeeter!

Folks paying us friendly calls lately have been asking why the lights are on in the newspaper office so late every night.

It was mystifying me, too, but yesterday young Skeeter Roberts, who helps out after school, owned up that he's been the culprit.

"I've been using Miss Clark's calculating machine to double-check my math homework," explained Skeeter. "And I've been getting straight A's since." Well, that not only cleared up our little mystery, but also shows me that Skeeter is a lad who's going places.

From where I sit, you stay at the top of the class in school or in business when you take extra precautions: like the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. Under this voluntary program, retailers selling beer co-operate by keeping their places of business clean, bright, and orderly. They check and double-check—working hard for straight "A's" from the public and public officials alike.

Better Living Is Goal Of Demonstration Clubs

By Mrs. Lillie M. Alexander
State Home Demonstration Agent

FORTY years ago two trained women worked during the summer months with farm women in two Alabama counties. This unheralded work was the beginning of the home demonstration club program in Alabama. From this early start home demonstration work has continued to grow larger and better throughout the years.

The pioneer agents used horses and buggies to make their rounds visiting farm families. And the conditions they found were just as dated as their own mode of transportation. Homes were lighted with kerosene lamps; wood burning stoves were the only means of cooking, and practically all of the jobs of homemaking were done the hard way.

Years of hard work and close cooperation between home demonstration agents and the ever-increasing number of farm women who take an active part in club work have helped change the pattern.

Today farm women and girls in Alabama through their home demonstration and 4-H Clubs are taught the newest methods in all phases of good rural living. Their horizon has broadened, and their keen interest and understanding of problems in their homes, communities, nation, and the world is a credit to the early workers and a challenge to the home demonstration agents of today.

In observance of National Home Demonstration Week, April 30-May 5, the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs celebrated its silver anniversary—25 years full of achievements by rural women. In 1926,

A Sign Of Progress

This roadside marker is one of the many signs of the community work done by members of the Parker Home Demonstration Club in Limestone County.

Sparked by their club president, Mrs. Thomas Powell, the 32 members spend a lot of time working on their chosen project, community improvement. Six crossroads signs were placed at prominent road junctions, and two church signs were erected by the club members last year.

Monthly Demonstrations--The Hub Of Club Work

As rural women of the state round out their 40th year of home club work, they are still using to good advantage the demonstration method of learning new homemaking techniques. Each month more than 2,000 clubs hold meetings, and at each session appointed members put on a helpful demonstration.

The scene at right is typical of the activities at meetings in each community in every county each month. These women are members of the Burke Garden Home Demonstration Club in Tuscaloosa County, and Mrs. Felton Lee, extreme right, is giving a foods demonstration.

when the council was organized, there were 303 home demonstration clubs in Alabama with 6,098 women enrolled. Today the council is composed of 2,017 clubs with an enrollment of 62,001 club women.

In 1926 there were 37 home demonstration agents in the counties, and 33 county home demonstration councils were in operation. Each county now has a home agent and county council, and 53 counties have assistant home agents who spend most of their time working with 4-H Club girls.

The emphasis today is on the needs of the farm family. Through county plans of work, farm people select the programs they need for better living on their farms and in their communities. And the county home demonstration agents working with the women and girls in each county have made much progress in all phases of homemaking. Food production is one of the main projects club women are working on. Care of household equipment, wise buying, sewing, and home and community improvement are also stressed.

Home demonstration work was strengthened during three emergencies in the past and will be strengthened during the present mobilization. During World Wars I and II the accent was on food production and preservation, care of clothing and equipment, the use of food substitutes, and cooperative work with the Red Cross program. During the depression home demonstrators found their place by making mattresses and comforts from surplus cotton and by working toward good nutrition despite low incomes.

Farm women in each of the 2,017 clubs in the state are again assuming many responsibilities in the present mobilization for defense. They are united in a broad program designed to stimulate food production, wise buying, Red Cross work, and community and national defense. Their past record has been remarkable, and they are now working toward an even brighter future.

Club Women In Franklin County Concentrate On Communities

FRANKLIN County home demonstration clubs are concentrating on the job of improving their communities.

The Cherry Hill Club is landscaping the church grounds and continuing its project of establishing a lunchroom at the local school.

The Phil Campbell Club has set aside two days as community cleanup time. And Burnout and Newburgs Clubs are marking their community, church, and school with neatly lettered signs.

The Burleson Club has been busy clearing out large shrubs from crossroads. The Tharpton Club has arranged a schedule for weekly cleaning of their church.

Club women from Homemakers, White Oak, and Burnout Clubs have established branch libraries in their communities.

Editor's Note

To the 62,000 Alabama home demonstration club members who this week are celebrating both National Home Demonstration Week and the 25th Anniversary of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, the May issue of This Month in Rural Alabama is dedicated.

Through 40 years of tireless effort the farm women of this state have worked to make their motto, Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World, a reality. And their accomplishments have been instrumental in advancing living conditions in our state. For whole-hearted devotion to a challenging cause, Alabama homemakers are unparalleled.

This Plan Works

New Way Of Farming On Halves Proves Profitable

FARMING on halves is nothing new in Alabama, but the way M. L. Johnson, of Lincoln, is operating is new. He's growing about 70,000 broilers on a 50-50 basis with landlord W. C. Madden, of Anniston.

Johnson operates the broiler business in connection with his regular program of growing cotton and corn. And compost from the broiler houses has skyrocketed his corn yield to about 100 bushels per acre. His cotton yield is also high.

The agreement between Johnson and Madden is simple—Johnson furnishes the labor and know-how; Madden furnishes the houses, equipment, feed, chicks, and land. In their first year of operation under the plan, the farm cleared about $7,200 from 35,000 broilers. Birds are marketed through the processing plant at Anniston owned by Madden.

The broiler farm boasts five 2,500 chick capacity houses and one brand new 5,000 bird capacity metal house. A group of birds is started every two weeks so that pay day is every two weeks. At 70,000 birds a year the farm gives promise of paying off big this year, say the owners.

A big point in favor of high profits is the good management and feeding system that Johnson has worked out. First of all, the houses are built to allow plenty of ventilation and sunlight to get to the chicks. All of the houses have adjustable ventilators on the side of the building, and roof ventilators were recently added to all six of the houses. The new house has a solid row of three by four foot windows on each side. These windows can be opened to allow more air to circulate through the building. And they are covered with wire glass to allow the sunlight to pass through when they are closed.

Johnson reports that he has produced 34 pounds of broilers from 100 pounds of feed. Feeding and caring for the birds leaves plenty of time to cultivate his 27 acres of cropland. He says that it takes only about an hour a day for the chickens.

SEVEN bushels of corn self-fed with good alfalfa or white clover grazing will produce about 100 pounds of pork.

SAVED FOR SEED—Paul Hybart, of Hybart, is shown above in a 30-acre field of crimson clover which he plans to save for seed. Paul is growing into the livestock business and has 100 acres of crimson clover which he planted last fall.

The 100-acre field of clover was the first clover the Monroe County producer had ever planted, and the cold weather last November and again in February knocked the crop flat. But it bounced back in late February and is now producing green feed at a rapid rate.

Hybart has hogs and cattle grazing on 70 acres of his clover.

Along the Way

R. O. Davis

DIRECTOR, APL EXTENSION SERVICE

THIS month we salute the 62,001 home demonstration club women of Alabama on the excellent work they're doing through their 2,017 clubs.

The week of April 30-May 5 was national home demonstration week during which special programs were presented in these local groups, on the state level, and otherwise.

These celebrations reflected the glorious history of home demonstration work in the United States since it began 40 years ago. This is also the 25th anniversary of the State Home Demonstration Council of Alabama.

Mrs. Frank Baker of Shelby County is president. To her, therefore, and to the 62,000 other members is presented a special salute of esteem and admiration.

BEFORE me is a statement from the U. S. Department of Agriculture concerning agricultural production needs in 1951. It is signed by Ralph S. Trigg, administrator for Production and Marketing Administration.

It is more than a guide. It is an invitation and a challenge. It states, for example, that a crop of 16 million bales of cotton this year is needed. This exceeds the 1950 production by more than 60 per cent.

It suggested that 28,400,000 acres be planted to cotton in 1951 against 18,551,000 acres in 1950. It is obvious that we must get more pounds per acre, as well as increase our acreage, to make 60 per cent more this year.

And more cotton per acre is good farming. It increases the gross income of a farmer and it lowers his cost per pound, thereby leaving a bigger net income in his favor.

THE call for corn is similar to cotton, but the increase wanted is not as big. He suggested that corn acreage be increased from 84,370,000 in 1950 to 90,000,000 in 1951 but added that the nation needs all the corn that can be produced on 100,000,000 acres in 1951.

While Alabama produces very little wheat, it is interesting to know that a big increase in 1951 is needed. Wheat is primarily a bread crop. So the American people, plus people abroad, need more bread this year and next.

YOU'LL be reading this article early in May when most of the spring planting in Alabama will have been done. Yet, the first week in May is a good time to plant corn in most of Alabama because corn planted then should begin tasseling early in July to be making corn during the summer rains of July and early August.

After corn is planted, there are two things that a farmer can do to increase production per acre. One is to top dress with nitrogen fertilizer and the other is to cultivate very little and just shallow enough to kill weeds.

Alabama farmers who have been making 100 or more bushels of corn per acre have cultivated once or twice. Deep cultivation is destructive.

The two most effective things that a farmer can do after planting to increase production of cotton are: (1) cultivate properly and (2) control insects. Since the main purpose of cultivation is to control weeds and grass, cotton may need more cultivation than corn because corn tends to control weeds and grass.

Spotted Poland China Breeders Form State Club

HOG production took another step forward with the recent organization of the Alabama Spotted Poland China Breeders' Association. This new purebred hog breeders' group is the seventh breed association to be formed in the state.

At the organizational meeting at the Tennessee Valley Substation, Belle Mina, Harmon Hatfield, of Clayton, was named president of the group. Other officers are E. G. Johnson, Francisco, vice-president, and Frank P. Turner, Athens, secretary-treasurer.

Appointed as directors were C. E. Bachelor, Atmore; Wallace G. Jeffery, Athens; O. S. Ivey, Webb, and K. E. Thomas, Huntsville.

Club president Hatfield states that the main objectives of the association will be to promote the spotted Poland China breed and the hog program of the state in general. The Alabama association will be affiliated with the national association which now has a membership of over 13,000 breeders.

Sleepy Trees

Cold Winters Wake Peach Trees Early

By T. B. HAGLER, Associate Horticulturist
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

MANY growers have been wondering why peach trees have failed to bloom and fruit normally in early spring for the past two years and why they returned to their normal habit of blooming early and making normal growth this spring.

When peach trees go into dormancy or begin their rest period in late fall, a certain amount of cold weather is needed to produce normal growth and blossoms the following spring. The required amount of chilling depends on the variety.

A general "rule of thumb" followed by most growers is that peach trees require about 1,000 hours below 45 degrees F. by the middle of February for normal growth and blooming. If plants have not been chilled enough to break the rest period, they will not bloom even if temperatures are favorable for growth. Such was the case following the warm winters at Auburn during the last two years. However, the trees bloomed and made normal growth this spring because they had undergone enough cold weather to break the rest period when growth conditions became favorable.

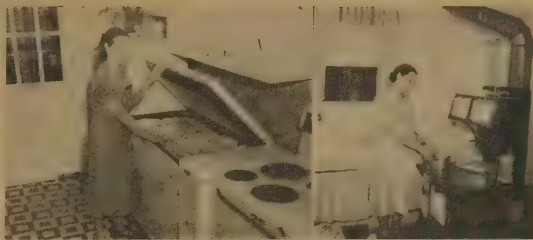

Observations were made on 68 peach varieties in the spring of 1950 to determine their growth and fruiting response to the warm winter. The Mayflower variety, which requires 1,150 hours chilling for flower buds and 1,250 hours for leaf buds, was just beginning to bloom and had no foliage on May 4. This variety normally ripens at Auburn from May 15 to May 30. The Jewel variety, which requires very little chilling, bloomed January 15. The fruit was killed by late spring frosts, but the tree was in normal foliage on May 4.

Varities with rather low chilling requirements (750-850 hours) such as Afterglow, Beva, Early Jubilee, Early Triagem, Elby, Fine, Fireglow, Golden Jubilee, Goodcheer, July Elberta, Laterose, Newday, Prairie

The New And The Old

Cooking is easy for Mrs. A. L. Gilbert, of Chavies, since she completed her "dream kitchen." The DeKalb homemaker has completely remodeled and refurbished her kitchen with the exception of her refrigerator. And many new appliances have been added.

There are plenty of convenient and roomy cabinets in the new kitchen, left, and Mrs. Gilbert no longer has to put up with the heat from the wood burning stove she had in the old kitchen.

Mrs. Gilbert is a kitchen result demonstrator and from the looks of her well-filled deep freeze, she does an excellent job with frozen foods.

Beef Grade Changes Favor Alabama Growers

By A. W. JONES
A.P.I. Extension Marketing Specialist

IMPORTANT changes in the federal grade standards for slaughter cattle became effective last December 30.

These new grade standards and consumer preferences for beef from younger animals with a higher percentage of lean meat are highly favorable to Alabama cattle growers. Producers here can grow a combination of grazing, forage, and feed necessary for producing this kind of beef, and they can do it more economically than they can grow or buy grain to fatten cattle in feed lots.

The new slaughter grades bring live animal grades into conformity with new grades of carcass beef. The changes were made to modernize the grade structure to reflect current production practices and consumer preferences for smaller size beef cuts of high quality, with a high percentage of lean meat. And they should give an added boost to the beef cattle industry already booming in the state.

The changes for steers, heifers, and cows are as follows:

Prime—a combination of the former prime and choice grades. This grade includes the finest finished animals that come to market. These animals will generally be quite young in age.

Choice—formerly good grade. Animals of this grade are highly finished, and the greater number of finished animals coming to market fall in this grade.

Good—new grade for part of the cattle formerly graded medium. Young cattle formerly included in the top half of the medium grade will be in the good grade. This change gives these animals a separate grade of their own.

Commercial—remainder of the medium grade. This grade will include lower quality young animals and well finished older steers and cows formerly included in medium classifications.

Utility—new name for common grade. This grade is made up mostly of old cows and young animals of poor quality formerly in common grade.

Cutter and Canner—no change. Animals in these two grades produce beef used mostly for processing.

These pictures taken on the same day, May 4, 1950, show the effects caused by the mild winter of 1949-50. The tree at top, of the Mayflower peach variety, shows that the rest period was not broken because of the high chilling requirement (1,150 hours for this variety).

The bottom tree is a July (Burbank) Elberta. Because of the low chilling requirement (750 hours for this variety), the rest period was only partially broken.

Good Facts To Know

The following is a true statement: Any farmer who has land that is adapted to corn can make 40 or 50 or more bushels per acre this year on a profitable basis. His land, of course, should be prepared properly and corn planted at the right time.

For most of Alabama late April or early May is a good time to plant corn to hit the summer rains when needed.

Use also plenty of fertilizer of the right kind and then follow with light cultivation. Plant only good seed of the best variety for your farm. See your county agent.

Around The State With Club Women

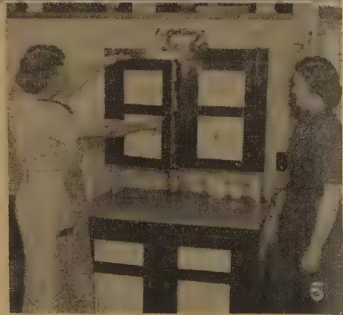

These are but a few of the many thousands of home demonstration club women who spend much time and effort on their club work. They have been chosen to represent their sister members in all parts of the nation who this week pause to look over their past accomplishments and plan their future programs.

Picture 1. Mrs. Mary Halmark, of Stewartville in Coosa County, picked up her hat-making hobby after designing her first one for the 1949 county dress review. Her hobby graduated into a business—now she fashions as many as 20 hats each week. She is shown at right with Home Agent Joyce Levins examining one of her stylish spring creations.

Picture 2. Mrs. Ralph Bowen, of Waco, exhibits proof of her homemaking talent. A living room demonstrator in Franklin County, she enjoys her completed project. Mrs. Bowen also recovered several pieces of furniture in her remodeled living room.

Picture 3. Mrs. William P. Fuller, of Burnsville, is a busy housewife, but still finds time to engage in outside activities. Vice-president of the Dallas County Home Demonstration Council, she also teaches Red Cross courses at the Selma High School and on club meeting day gives Red Cross instructions to the Burnsville women. Mrs. Fuller is shown at her desk correcting a group of Red Cross papers.

Picture 4. Mrs. Muriel Tankersley is a clothing inventory demonstrator in Tallapoosa County. The talented seamstress is shown working on a blouse. She says her portable machine is convenient because she likes to move about from room to room as she sews.

Picture 5. Mrs. Frank Martin, of Danville, Rt. 3, could easily be a demonstrator for any room in her home because the Martins have recently completed a new farm home. But Mrs. Martin says her favorite is the utility room. She is shown operating an automatic ironer, which is one of several labor-saving devices in the work room.

Picture 6. Mrs. C. B. Jimmerson, of the Chapel Hill Club, shows Covington County Home Agent Margaret Ward how she made her kitchen cabinet. Mrs. Jimmerson says the shelves that now hold dishes have a rather explosive past—she made the cabinet out of dynamite cases.

Two-Time Winners

Carry Home The Trophy

THE Grimes Home Demonstration Club in Dale County has done it again.

For the second time they have won the trophy cup presented each year to the outstanding club in the county by the county home demonstration council.

Under the direction of Club President Mrs. Gladys Ward, the women carried on a wide range of club activities last year. At every leadership school the Grimes Club was always represented, and excellent attendance was maintained at the group's monthly meetings. Demonstrations were all top quality, and the women were especially active in community work.

Kitchens Move To The Front

LONG ago kitchens were built on the back of houses, but this is no longer the case. Many kitchens are now placed near the front because they have become one of the most attractive rooms in the home.

A favorite project with many home demonstration club women is the job of remodeling and modernizing this much-used room. Mrs. Hamilton Chesnut has one of the top kitchen projects in Choctaw County.

Starting with an old kitchen that had four doors and two large windows, Mrs. Chesnut has made a convenient cooking room. She walled up a door and had two small windows built to replace a large full-length window. This enabled her to have a nice U-shaped working area.

The Bladen Springs Club woman has ample cabinets of thick plywood and shelves for the kitchen to take care of different sizes of equipment. One of the prize additions was a double sink, says Mrs. Chesnut. Inlaid linoleum covers the top of her cabinets, and a marble square was put in a cabinet top near the stove for chopping and putting hot things on.

HANDY WITH A HAMMER—Mrs. J. T. Harrell, president of Big Creek Home Demonstration Club, is quite a hand at turning ordinary boxes into useful items.

The fancy sewing chest she displays above was once an apple box—but a few tacks, hinges, cotton padding, and some printed cloth transformed the box into a very handy chest. The Houston housewife reports that the total cost of the chest was less than three dollars.

A Message To Club Women

This week as we celebrate National Home Demonstration Club Week and the 26th Anniversary of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs, I am mindful of the many accomplishments that have been made during the past year. And it is with real pleasure that I congratulate you on the fine work that has been done.

Home demonstration work in Alabama has continued to grow during the past year and much has been accomplished through our objective workshops and work programs. With continued emphasis on the development of leadership among farm women, the home demonstration program will reach out to more and more rural homemakers.

We face a challenging situation as we go forward with our club work. The present world crisis affects every farm and home. We must meet the situation with a well-planned program designed to stimulate good citizenship and practical living. Civil defense, food production, conservation and preservation, home nursing, Red Cross work, and many other problems have increased in their importance. They are tools for common defense—and we must use them well.

MRS. FRANK BAKER, President, Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs.

Hobby Grows Into Big Business

BUTTONS, buckles, and belts are specialties with Mrs. G. H. Holley of the Pisgah Home Demonstration Club in Jackson County.

She became interested in this profitable hobby after trying her hand at covering some belts and buttons for her own use.

Soon after this Mrs. Holley began covering buttons and belts for her neighbors, and her fame as an expert spread. The homemaker now has a thriving business and handles many mail orders in addition to work brought in.

But her handicraft job doesn't keep the Sand Mountain seamstress from attending her club meetings. She has been a regular member for several years and takes an active part in all the club's activities.

Handy Pantry Saves Steps

BACK and forth—to the sink, refrigerator, pantry, garbage can, and stove. Mrs. Hayes Johnson of the Kingsville Home Demonstration Club got tired of making the thousand and one steps the average housewife makes in preparing a meal so she did some rearranging.

With the help of her husband Mrs. Johnson built a cabinet pantry in her kitchen—and she has put the storage space to good use. The shelves contain over 200 quarts of fruits and vegetables which will be sufficient for the family of two until fresh vegetables are available from the garden.

Mrs. Johnson says she had never realized just how many steps she was taking each day until she built the new pantry.

Signs Go Up In Lowndes

THE wide awake members of the Hope Hull Home Demonstration Club have done an outstanding piece of work in Lowndes County with their sign program.

The club's members voted to make the sign program one of their main projects for the year. And they have already erected seven signs which mark the roads, school, and community.

Club women who have been instrumental in the sign work are Mrs. Hardy Owen, president; Mrs. W. C. Williamson, citizenship chairman; Mrs. L. J. Campbell, Mrs. M. L. Hand, Mrs. B. G. Berry, Mrs. R. L. Hand, Mrs. V. L. Johnson, Mrs. E. M. Mims, Mrs. D. D. Burrell, Mrs. C. E. Hawkins, and Mrs. T. E. Randolph.

LAMP FROM A LAMP—This isn't double talk but a description of the reading lamp Mrs. Mack Glover has in her living room. The Mt. Hebron homemaker explains that the table lamp was made from a discarded automobile headlight. Examining the odd light fixture are, left to right, Hale County Assistant Home Agent Julia Phillips, Mrs. Glover, and Helen Mayton, Hale home agent.

FIXING A BREAKFAST NOOK—Mark Anthony, of Catapah, puts the finishing touches to their renovated kitchen while his wife and young Larry look on. The Anthonys put inlaid linoleum on the floor, built cabinets and a breakfast nook, covered the walls with sheet rock, and lowered the ceiling.

Club House Improvement Pushed

THE Benevola Home Demonstration Club is busy with its project of club house improvement.

The need for improving the club house became apparent last year when the women sponsored monthly community recreation meetings. For every gathering they had to carry dishes for refreshments and try to keep food hot on the wood range.

So the club members drew up a tentative plan for a better equipped kitchen to be carried out when they had sufficient funds.

Not long ago the community received a share of the prize money won in the state cotton improvement contest. And it was decided that this should be used for the community house. The home demonstration club and community organization are now making plans to raise more money to complete the club house project.

Soon there will be a new gas stove in the kitchen and gas heaters for the large recreation room, heated now by an inadequate open fireplace. Dishes and other kitchen utensils are next on the improvement list.

No Secret Weapon—Just Hard Work Wins Rat War In Calhoun County

THERE is a full scale war going on in Calhoun County—not the usual kind with guns, tanks, and planes—but a war that uses rat poison and information as the principal weapons.

The fracas started in February when members of the county's 32 home demonstration clubs went on the offensive in the fight with the destructive rodents. Club members made signs and did an all-around good job of talking up the campaign.

Reports indicate that the rats have been given a deadly blow, but the club women aren't relaxing their vigil. They are all set to bring down another cloud of destruction whenever a rat squeak is heard.

Critical Season Is Here For Woolens And Furs

By Lavice B. Ellis
A.P.I. Extension Clothing Specialist

WITH the arrival of spring weather, woolen clothes and furs are quickly discarded for cooler clothing. If these woolens are carefully stored during the warm weather, they will be in perfect condition for use next fall and winter.

Clothes moths are very destructive to fur, wool and felt fabrics, and especially during May and June in Alabama. This is the hatching season, and the young larvae feed on the wool or fur until old enough to fly away.

Soil spots attract moths; therefore wool clothing should be thoroughly dry cleaned. Or if the garment is clean, hang it out in the sun for a few hours. Moths prefer the dark to sunlight.

After garments have been cleaned or thoroughly sunned, hang them in a very tight closet—one that is used for storage only. For further protection place several pounds of paradichlorobenzene in the closet. This material can be tied up in a cheese cloth bag and hung on the closet wall or placed in an open box on a top shelf. If closet storage space is not adequate, put garments in heavy cardboard boxes, add paradichlorobenzene, and seal the container with gum tape.

Wool coats, dresses, suits, sweaters, gloves, scarves, blankets, felt hats, and fur trimmed articles should be protected from moths.

HANDSOME HOME GROUNDS—Mrs. G. A. Richburg, right, and Crenshaw County Home Agent Isabelle Downey examine some of the shrubs in the Camp Ground Club member's yard. Mrs. Richburg has been an outstanding club member ever since she joined the Camp Ground Club nine years ago. She served as club president for seven years, was county council president in 1946-47, and in 1947-48 she was vice-president of the state council. She is a kitchen result demonstrator and keeps her pantry well stocked with home-canned food.

Elmore School Gets Sick Room

THERE is a neat and comfortable "sick room" at the Deatsville School in Elmore County now, and the credit for this much-needed project goes to members of the Cold Springs Home Demonstration Club.

The school had no facilities for caring for students who became ill while at school, so last year the Cold Springs Club women decided to do something about it. First they bought a bed and equipped it with a mattress and linens. And this year they have continued the project by piecing a quilt for the bed.

Of course nobody likes to be sick, but when a headache or illness does strike down a child at the Deatsville School, he is always cared for comfortably—thanks to the Cold Springs Club women.

Cattleman Jackson turned down a profit of $2,300 on this group of 22 calves the first week in March. He is shown above with two neighbors appraising his small beef herd.

Winning Combination

Green Grass And Fat Cattle Suit This Farmer

F. JACKSON, of Harpersville, made a profitable decision on his Shelby County farm three years ago, and as a result farm income jumped from $259 to about $4,500 a year. Switching from row crops to livestock did the trick.

For five years Jackson rented out the farm for a standing rent of $250 a year. That was a losing business for all concerned, he says. "I didn't make anything out of the farm, and the tenant did well to break even." So Jackson made up his mind to give cattle and hogs a chance to put the farm into the black.

He began by seeding all of the open land, 38 acres, to grazing crops. Part of the land was seeded to a combination of Kentucky bluegrass, orchard grass, and crimson clover; the other was seeded to fescue and ladino clover. "And right here is where I made another discovery," says the farmer; "you can't grow good grazing without fertilizer."

For a couple of years the orchard grass and bluegrass didn't make much growth, but after an application of 1,000 pounds of basic slag to the acre it began to perk up and furnish plenty of grazing. "I just don't believe you can grow these grasses around here without slag," he declares. More plant food in the form of 600 pounds of mixed fertilizer and 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre produced a 38-acre carpet of knee-deep cattle feed.

The first week in March Jackson turned down a profit of $2,300 on 22 grade Herefords. The only feed he had bought was mineralized salt; all of the gains had been made from the land. Jackson reports that he has grazed the land for the past 15 months except for about six weeks before clover seed was harvested. "I sold $1,675 worth of crimson clover seed from 18 acres last spring," he adds; "then I cut enough hay from the field to carry the cattle through the winter on bad days."

Jackson is now growing out 30 hogs in combination with his cattle operation. He keeps accurate records of the past and forecasts of future needs on the farm so he knows just where he stands all the time. "In addition to grazing I will feed about 10 bushels of corn to each shote by the time he reaches tops," he says, "and I'm banking on $20 net profit from each of the 30 hogs."

This Shelby County farmer thinks so much of his new system of farming that he's expanding all he can. He's now in the process of clearing up 10 acres of woodland to add to his pasture acreage.

Mr. Jackson is well satisfied with the decision he made three years ago. A farm that would hardly pay the taxes is now grossing almost $100 a week, and it's taking a lot less work to operate the farm now. As far as future crops for the farm are concerned, he can think of only one answer—grazing crops.

Mobile Shepherd

IN 1944 an uncle gave Gerald Pierce a tiny motherless ewe lamb. And that one scrawny, bleating, ball of tangled wool started the young Wilmer 4-H Club member on the road to sheep production.

Gerald now has a flock of 62 ewes and a whole field full of young lambs. Every animal with the exception of a purebred Corriedale ram is a descendant of that one motherless lamb.

This Month on the Farm by API-EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

DRY weather in late spring is a good time to get posts ready for treating. Be sure posts are thoroughly peeled before "cribbing up" in open stacks to dry. Posts should dry three months in summer before treating.

NOW is the time to spray beef cattle for horn flies, stable flies, and mosquitoes. These pests cause cattle much misery and prevent them from gaining as they should. Use a spray containing both DDT and BHC (do not use DDT on producing dairy cattle, milk barns, or barns where milk cows are housed). If a thorough job of spraying is done, including all the beef cattle and their outbuildings, the farm home will be free of stable flies and mosquitoes for many weeks.

FARMERS who have winter legumes, white clover, fescue, and small grain should complete plans now for harvesting and saving seed. Present indications point to a strong demand for these seed, at good prices.

THE nitrogen applied to truck crops at planting time is often gone before the crop is matured. This makes it necessary to add extra nitrogen as a side dressing to keep plants in a thrifty growing condition while putting on the crop of fruit.

MAY is the big month for bluegill spawning. Good catches can be made by locating the bluegill beds and catching the fish from them. It doesn't harm the pond to take as many bream as possible from the beds because 90 per cent of the catches will be male bluegill. Male bluegills can be distinguished from the female by their darker color and reddish-orange markings.

FOR good peanut yields, thick stands are necessary. Be sure to cultivate and handle a good stand through to harvest. May is a good time to locate the chemical dust you will need for leaf spot control later on.

TURN winter legumes before they make seed where alfalfa is to be planted this fall. Follow the land by disking or harrowing after each crop of grass and weeds come up. Locate or get good seed of a recommended variety, inoculant, fertilizer, and lime.

FARMERS who were unable to get cotton planted in April should get it planted as early in May as possible. Every day planting is delayed means a loss of about 10 pounds of seed cotton per acre in yield.

CULL hens as they go out of production. Watch for those yellow beaks and shanks. A hen sold this month will more than pay for the feed of a growing pullet. Removing the loafers will reduce the cost of producing eggs.

WARMER weather increases the necessity for keeping a close check on the broiler house to see that ample ventilation is being provided. Birds will need more ventilation on hot afternoons, but some of the ventilator will still need to be closed during the cool nights.

Some Crop

Ton Of Pork From One Litter Good Goal For Any Producer

RAISING "ton-litters" of pigs in six or seven months is no longer a rare occurrence in Jackson County. But neither is it too common. Raising such litters is good business, and more and more farmers are setting their sights on this goal.

A good deal better than a ton-litter was recently produced by UTD farmer Lester Precise, of the Tupelo community.

He started with 12 cross-bred pigs last August 26 and raised 10 of them. Two of the pigs were mashed to death the first night after birth.

Exactly 164 days after these pigs were born, nine of them went to market as top hogs. They weighed 2,160 pounds on the date of sale. The other pig was saved for breeding purposes.

Lester says much of his success with the litter was due to good management. During the gestation period his sow was grazed on alfalfa and fed extra protein supplement and enough grain to keep her in good flesh, but not fat. Both the sow and pigs were kept on this alfalfa with full feed of corn and supplement until they were turned into a field of corn where they harvested their own feed until they were tops. Since there was no good legume grazing near this field of corn, the shotes continued to get commercial supplement until they were sold. These shotes were given mineral mixture free choice all their lives.

This fine litter of shotes went from birth to good heavy weight tops in a few days less than five and one half months. Obviously an extra fine job of hog production was done, and it goes without saying that the pigs were from an extra good sow and a good boar. It takes good sows, good males, and good management to do the job, but a ton-litter is worth the effort.

Bankston Club Women Aid Sick

A project worth writing about is the work members of the Bankston Home Demonstration Club are doing for the sick people in their community.

Last year this Fayette County club selected as one of its projects the purchase of a wheel chair for one of the women in that area. To finance their plan, the women arranged a basketball game between the mothers and daughters of the community. The game was held at the local school, and the club made enough money to buy the chair, and other supplies for their sick friend. Individual members also made special clothing and personal care available to their sick neighbor.

This first "care for the sick" project proved to be only a starting point for the Bankston Club women. They next decided that the community needed a hospital bed and equipment for use in the neighborhood. And they went to work to get it.

Money for this project was raised from the proceeds of a tacky party and cake-walk. And Bankston now has its own sick bed and equipment. Club members report that the bed has been in constant use ever since it was purchased.

The Bankston Club women have not only worked at the job of being better homemakers, but by working together on their club projects, they have become a stronger organized club and better neighbors.

More Cattlemen Organize

Another county cattlemen's association has been formed—this time in Macon County—and the beef producers in that area are squarely behind the Alabama association's fight against cattle rustling.

On display at the recent organizational meeting was the "No Trespassing" sign shown here by State Senator Preston Clayton, of Clayton, vice-president of the Alabama Cattlemen's Association. Looking over the sign, left to right, are Foy Thompson, Tuskegee; M. F. Whatley, Macon County farm agent, and Sidney Bledsoe, of Armstrong.

The beef producers named Dave Johnson, of Hardaway, president of the new organization and voted to affiliate with the state association. Other officers are I. D. Vail, Armstrong, vice-president, and William Varner, Jr., Tuskegee, secretary-treasurer.

He Got An Early Start

This Junior Dairyman Does A Man-Sized Job

TOMMY INGRAM is listed on the St. Clair County 4-H Club rolls as a junior dairyman, but the 13-year-old youngster is doing a man-sized job on the Ingram dairy farm near Cropwell.

Each afternoon after school Tommy milks 24 cows and handles all of the necessary jobs such as cooling the milk and cleaning up the milk room.

Mornings before school time Tommy is on the job again as a helper; his dad has the responsibility of the dairy in the mornings. The young dairyman is on his own again though with the herd replacements. He manages, feeds, and takes care of 20 replacement heifers.

Tommy started working in the dairy eight years ago, when he was only five, but he couldn't milk more than three or four cows then. He didn't start doing a man's job until he reached the ripe old age of nine.

During the past four years, under the joint guiding hands of Tommy and his dad, the dairy has grown and prospered. They now sell an average of 45 gallons of grade A milk per day.

During the summer Tommy gets to try the dairy business from another angle—he helps produce feed for the herd. He can bale hay, drive the tractor, or operate the combine just about as good as anybody and spends much of the summer at these jobs.

A man-sized job on a boy's shoulders hasn't kept Tommy from making an excellent record in school. He has only two B's in school this year; the rest are all A's. And he's a member of the school basketball team and is always good for a dozen points in a game.

The young dairyman is a leader in almost all of his 4-H Club and school activities, and in 1950 he was the junior dairyman winner in St. Clair County.

As Tommy gains in years, he is gaining in knowledge and experience in dairying. He is doing a good job on the dairy now, but that isn't enough to satisfy him. He says that he's going to keep on studying and learning more about farming. "Some day," says Tommy, "I might want to be a dairyman."

BUSINESS PARTNERS—Tommy Ingram, 13, and his dad, Eddie Ingram, of Cropwell, Rt. 1, are working partners on their St. Clair County dairy farm. Mr. Ingram runs the dairy in the mornings, and Tommy takes over the complete job in the afternoon.

Community Projects Are Pushed

LAST January twenty-two community projects were started by Baldwin County home demonstration clubs and many of these projects are already completed.

Mrs. George Kaiser, of Foley, who is the county community activities chairman, says that each year the clubs select a special project aimed at community improvement and in almost every case, the projects prove to be of real benefit.

Some of the projects underway this year are listed below.

The Robertsdale Home Demonstration Club members have bought fifty folding chairs for the coliseum.

The East Fairhope Home Demonstration Club is buying folding chairs to be used at monthly home demonstration club meetings. At their February meeting this club had a cup towel shower for the 4-H Club house.

The Silverhill members have furnished cup towels for their school cafeteria and also for the 4-H Club house.

BETTER SEEDS

AHEAD—Among the large group of seed producers, dealers, and processors who recently met in Auburn to study ways of supplying more and better seeds to Alabama farmers were, left to right, (back row) H. L. Weir, Montgomery; C. G. Deriso, Columbus, Ga.; Marion Hartz, Chicago, Ill.; V. C. Kitchens, Gunterville; W. D. Womack, Ashford; Jim Henderson, Miller's Ferry; (seated) Marvin Thompson, Troy, and John Owen, Decatur.

The two-day school dealt with the many problems that have come up in the state's rapidly expanding seed industry. Problems of the industry studied at the meeting included seed insect control, certification, treatment, and state seed laws.

Extension Seed Specialist Ralph R. Jones told the group that in the past 10 years the production of grass and legume seed has increased from three million to 50 million pounds of seed annually.

Pen Of Pigs

Covington County Agent Abe Martin, left, and J. E. Hudson, of Opp, Rt. 3, see more than just a pen of hogs as they lean on the rail of the Farmers Co-op Market at Opp. They see a parade of progress that was started five years ago last October when the co-op first opened its doors.

The idea for the co-op originated with a group of farmers and business men in the Opp trade territory who felt the need for a good home market for the expanded production of hogs and other livestock in the county. In 1945 the farmers and business leaders sold stock, built a barn, and began handling hogs and cattle. Business has been picking up from the beginning.

In the first eight months of the fiscal year which began last July, the market paid farmers a sum of over $1,280,000 for livestock. This amount exceeds any previous year's total sales, and J. E. Hudson, president of the co-op, says the sale seems to be getting bigger and better each week.

The market serves farmers from Butler, Crenshaw, Conecuh, Coffee, Geneva, and Covington Counties in Alabama, and livestock are also brought in from several counties in Florida.

Poland China Breeders Form State Association

HOG breeders from nine counties recently met in Cullman and organized the Alabama Poland China Breeders' Association. The new club will promote the breed in Alabama hog production.

Officers elected at the organizational meeting were E. E. Elkins, Mount Hope, president; R. C. Balch, Harvest, Rt. 1, vice-president; and G. H. Lehnert, Cullman, secretary-treasurer. Directors are E. E. Elkins; E. R. Neal, Cullman; Marvin Hanson, Rogersville; E. M. Yarbrough, Jr., Cherokee; and T. G. Smith, Albertville.

On hand to assist the breeders with their organizational program were Herchel C. Ligon, field representative, Poland China World; G. B. Phillips, A. P. I. Extension hog specialist; County Agents Grady Pinkston, Cullman, and S. P. McClendon, Moulton; and Agricultural Agents Jimmy Nunn, Central of Georgia R. R., Auburn; Bill Alverson, State National Bank, Albertville; G. V. Lehnert, State National Bank, Cullman, and Jesse Culp, Radio Station WAVU, Albertville.

Cotton and corn are not the only crops that need fertilizer. Pastures, for example, need fertilizer—especially nitrogen—to keep them growing. For more information on this, consult your county agent.

Research Results

in brief
from A. P. I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

BEST GROWTH OF TROPICAL FOLIAGE HOUSE-PLANTS has been gained when the soil mixture contains at least one-third organic matter by volume. Dilute fertilizer applications made every two weeks to the soil around established plants have been highly successful.

EXPERIMENTAL PLANTATIONS OF SLASH AND LOBLOLLY PINES at Auburn have just been thinned for pulpwood, after 19 years of growth. Indications are that 250 to 400 trees per acre, depending on their size, constitute good stocking at this stage of the plantation's development.

TANNIN CONTENT OF SERICEA increased steadily as the height of the plants increased when tests were run at heights ranging from 7 to 18 inches. Since tannins cause a bitter taste (as in green persimmons), they may partially account for the decrease in palatability to livestock as the sericea becomes older.

FEWER MILK PRODUCERS RETAIL MILK NOW than in previous years. Pasteurized milk has been widely accepted. Recent studies indicate that producers usually are unable to pasteurize and distribute milk as efficiently as large, specialized dealers.

FOR A FAMILY OF FIVE the following footage of row should be planted to vegetables for canning and freezing in addition to needs for fresh use: snap beans, 200; lima beans, 200; tomatoes, 300; corn, 400; okra 100; field peas, 200; beets, 50; and cucumbers, 50.

AN INTENSIVELY MANAGED GARDEN on a sandy loam soil produced an average of 15,483 pounds of vegetables per acre per year. On this basis a one-fourth acre garden would produce enough to supply seven people one and one-half pounds daily for a year. Returns would be one dollar per hour for labor at 1951 prices for vegetables.

PRE-SQUARE APPLICATIONS OF INSECTICIDES FAILED to increase the yield of seed cotton in experiments over a four-year period in Alabama. On a 10-acre basis average yields from various treatments were as follows: Untreated checks, 6.5 bales; 3 to 4 pre-square applications without further treatment, 6.6 bales; 3 to 4 pre-square treatments followed by regular applications while the crop was being set and matured, 12.4 bales; applications while the crop was being set and matured but without pre-square treatments, 12.2 bales.

FOR TOP QUALITY FROZEN AND CANNED LIMA BEANS, the beans should be harvested when not more than 10 to 25 per cent have passed the green mature stage.

VARIETIES OF STRAWBERRIES with best qualities for freezing are Klommore, Tennessee Supreme, and Klondike. In studies, Klommore rated excellent in color, texture, and flavor; Tennessee Supreme rated excellent in color and texture and very good in flavor; and Klondike rated excellent in color and flavor and good in texture.

All farm machinery and equipment should be checked, serviced, and repaired prior to the time it is needed in the field. Repair parts may be hard to get, and time will be lost if the machine or piece of equipment is not ready to go to work when needed.

It is reported that Stewart was ordered away from Atchison's house, but returned later with an ax and that is when the shooting occurred.

Atchison was arrested a short time later by Sheriff's Deputies at the home of his mother. The Sheriff's office and Cooper Leroy Martin are investigating.

NEVER ENDING REPERCUSSIONS

GLEE CLUB CONCERT — CCHS

Too much praise cannot be heaped upon the head of Mrs. Lois Thompson Mims and her Glee Clubbers for the fine performance of last Friday night at the Chilton County High School Auditorium.

The students sang to a packed house and each of the seventeen numbers was enjoyed by the large attendance. A tape recording was made of several numbers and broadcast over Radio Station WKLF Sunday afternoon.

MORE ABOUT MUSIC

The Beta Club of CCHS journeyed to Dadeville the other week to sing before the Dadeville Kiwanis Club. This is what the Editor of the Dadeville Record had to say of our "songbirds":

"SONGBIRDS — Members of the Kiwanis Cub and their guests were given a real treat last Thursday evening when they were entertained by a group of Beta Club girls from Clanton in a regular songfest. "Through The Years" was the title of the presentation, and every member of the Club thoroughly enjoyed this trip back through the years as the girls sang, with beautiful melody, the old favorites of the popular hits. The highlight of the presentation was the solos by Miss Pat Huddleston, a junior in the Clanton School. She has a lovely voice, with excellent control, and for one so young, she really 'has something.' She thrilled the entire group with her closing number, 'The Lord's Prayer,' and sang it as few can. We predict a bright future for Pat, because she has the voice, the ability, the support, and sings because she loves to sing. Come again, Pat, and bring more song."

Those making the trip to Dadeville were: Annette Broadhead, Joan Scott Alice DeRamus, Judith Williams, Nanette Nivens, Sue Davis, Donna Klinner, Sadie Higgins, Elinor Warr, Annette Huddleston, Patricia Huddleston, Ruby Nell Crew, Bobbie Gray, accompanist, and Joe Künner, M. C.

OH COUNCILMEN, OH MAYOR!

Someone is going to get hurt if these traffic signal lights are not fixed. For more than two weeks now, motorists in Clanton have had a choice when driving up to intersections. You could choose an amber-green or an amber-red. Many of the motorists we have noticed choose both—all depending whether they were in a hurry or not.

That way someone could get hurt bad, and it is seven wonders they have not. Someone is responsible for seeing to correcting this. Whoever that someone is, should do so at once.

ABOUT ADVERTISING RATES

Chilton County News has not made an increase in advertising rates for the past ten years, and we dare say, no other business in Chilton County can make this statement.

It is necessary that we increase our advertising rates approximately 25 percent beginning May 1st, if we are to remain in business.

There is no use of us going into a long story of whys and wherefores, as every fair businessman in the county knows how the cost of production and maintenance has increased within the past ten years.

Suffice it to say we MUST increase our advertising rates a wee bit beginning this month and we will appreciate our advertisers cooperating with us and realizing our position.

Your Health CHEMISTRY AND MEDICINE

The romance of chemistry and medicine is truly a fascinating story, for it is their alliance that has markedly produced many of the advances in the care of the sick. A hundred years ago crude plant or vegetable preparations, hardly worthy of being called drugs, were in use; but these have slipped rapidly into oblivion.

Chemotherapy, which means treatment with chemicals, came into being with the work of Ehrlich who kept trying to find a cure for syphilis among hundreds of organic arsenical compounds. And out of the chemical laboratory have come many life-saving drugs.

Until 1930 when Domagk of Germany discovered Prontosil, there was no drug of real value in treating many infectious diseases. While there were some agents available that killed the organisms in the test tube, these could not be tolerated by the patient. Prontosil was perhaps the greatest discovery in chemotherapy since the pioneer work of Ehrlich in syphilis. Further chemical research proved that Prontosil broke down to sulfanilamide in the body and it was this compound, rather than Prontosil itself, that was the active anti-bacterial agent. From this discovery stemmed the family of so-called "sulpha" drugs.

Within the past ten years penicillin and other life-saving antibiotic drugs such as streptomycin, aureomycin and chloromycetin have supplanted the sulphonamides to a considerable extent. With them, a new group of infectious diseases were placed under control.

During World War II, new chemical agents were found to fight malaria, and in very recent years the development of antitumour drugs marked new advances in certain conditions. The drugs cortisone and ACTH may also be classed among the greater medical discoveries of all times.

The progress of medicine has made the United States the healthiest country in the world. Early diagnosis of disease, prevention of disease, and when management—all these are the result of medical advances. A large share of credit goes to the field of chemistry for the development of the chemotherapeutic agents, and to medicine for the wisdom needed for their application.

THE HUB-BUB over the continued overshadowing anything that is happening in Washington. Folks, however, should not lose their perspective over what is happening. If you do not agree with President Truman that we should not attack Red China and do agree with General MacArthur that we should attack Red China, then an argument could ensue until both were black in the face over which is right.

But if you are an American citizen and believe in the constitutional provisions, then you must of necessity agree that President Truman is right and General MacArthur is wrong, when the latter declines to obey the orders of the President or even of the chiefs of staff. As a military man, his duty is to carry out the orders of his commander-in-chief. If he cannot do this with a clear conscience, his duty is to resign his military commission. And according to some authorities, this is just what he was in the process of doing when President Truman signed that plan in the bud and dismissed him instead.

The President's new mobilization advisory board contains the names of four representatives of the top farm organizations in the country, but significant is the absence of the name of Allen Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, largest of the farm organizations. The President did name a farm bureau man in Ray B. Wiser, president of the California farm bureau federation, but it is said when Mr. Wiser learned that Kline had not been named he has refused to serve. According to some sources, however, it is easy to understand why the President did not name Kline as a farm representative of the board. In the first place Kline has been the most outspoken of all farm leaders against the secretary of agriculture and of the administration's agricultural program. As a matter of fact, Kline has been ballooned for president by a group of grain dealers in the middle west. Unfortunately, Mr. Kline does not possess the tact and finesse that his predecessor Ed A. O'Neill did as president of the Farm Bureau Federation for many years. Likeable Uncle Ed made friends on both sides of the political fence and the story is often told in Washington of how he used to sit in the gallery behind the clock in the house chamber and by a series of "nods" of his head and sign language, guide farm legislation through the congress. Mr. Kline, however, without indicating a good personal impression in Washington, these observers say, has used his head as a battering ram only. Other members of the President's committee include Mr. Hershel Newsom of Indiana, master of the National Grange; Mr. D. W. Brooks, of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives, and President Patton of the National Farmers Union.

The President's commission on migratory labor has recently issued a report on this important subject, indicating that some thousands of laborers who follow the crops and the season from south to north and back, are accepting jobs and working conditions in many respects worse than 30 or more years ago. The committee said: "They neither belong to the land, nor does the land belong to them. They pass through community after community, but they neither claim the community as home, nor does the community claim them. As crops ripen, farmers anxiously await their coming; as the harvest closes, the community with equal anxiety awaits their going." The committee says that the present domestic farm labor force puts in 6 1/2 days more of employment in 1951 than it did in 1950. It will overcome the 700,000,000 additional man-hours required for the 1951 crop to offset emergency period losses of 190,000 to 200,000 farm workers per year.

Senator Charles W. Tobey, of New Hampshire, considered one of the more liberal of the Republican veterans in the senate, has come in for some general censure from most all sources here because he admittedly tapped or recorded private phone conversations with the President.

Whom We Should Obey

When the persecution came against the Apostles in the days of the early church and they were told not to preach or teach any more in the name of Jesus Christ, under great threat that their lives would be in danger. Peter and John told the high priest and elders "It was better to obey God than man." . . . So it is right in the sight of God for us to obey Him rather than man.

A. T. HICKMAN those who are in authority are wicked at heart, and their judgement is not according to the right principle, then we have to look to a Divine Guide.

The Supreme Spirit has promised to lead us into all truth, and when we are led of the Holy Spirit we are not led wrong. . . . Now, there are several ways He makes His divine will known to us. First, through the Bible, which is the Word of God. The Spirit and the Word agree. Then, too, we might listen for that soft tender voice of the Spirit whispering to our conscience. It is not always safe to let our conscience be our guide, but when we know that our conscience has been purged from dead works to serve the true and living God, and we are willing to be led of Him, then we are safe to lead on our conscience for guidance.

Perhaps this is why General MacArthur did not see fit to obey his commander-in-chief. He must have felt that a greater principle was involved, and that he had a duty toward his God and toward his conscience, which law and authority he considered to be superior to that of man's. If this be the case, then we have every reason to esteem the General more than ever. He is worthy of the applause that whole America has given him. No man with true conviction, and with faith in his conviction can weaken under man's pressure. If it takes going to the burning stake to stand on our heart felt conviction in what we believe to be right, then I say, O God, give us more men firm enough and determined enough not to weaken. When we are sure that God is speaking to the conscience, then we had better to obey God rather than man. — Hickman.

Get Off On The Right Foot

THE AVERAGE BUSINESS MAN sooner or later is called upon to rise to his feet and address an audience. The most important thing for him to know is how to make an audience like him. If the audience doesn't like him, it will not go along with him; if it doesn't go along with him, he will not influence it.

Here are some examples of how other men have aimed at carrying their audiences with them!

When Winston Churchill delivered an address before the Mid-Century Convocation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he began with a phrase that was both subtle and far-reaching. "I am honored," he said, "by your wish that I take part in the discussions of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

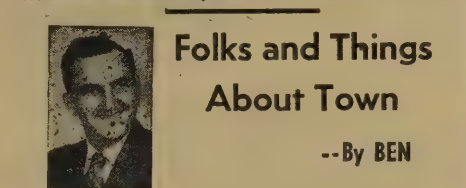

Governor Dewey, when asked to speak at a forum of a New York newspaper sounded off with "I consider it an honor to be the closing speaker at this forum, which was opened by one of the most distinguished Americans of our time." (He referred to Bernard Baruch.)

Both of these men were sincere, and both were very wise. Theirs was not a mere show of good manners. What they said served to make their audiences like them. If they had not started off with remarks calculated to make the members of that audience feel friendly toward them, they would have been pulling against the current.

Another leg-up in making an audience like you is to mention the names of persons in the audience. This gives the impression that the speaker feels he is one of them, not an outsider. Names should not be lumped in, but should be introduced adroitly. There is nothing a man likes more than to have his name mentioned before an audience by an important speaker. He is likely to think of that speaker thereafter as the speaker of the year. As an example, "Mr. Brown told me a few minutes ago, — — —"

Even a change of a word can serve to make an audience like you. For instance, instead of saying "When you are worried, you ought to become so busy that you will have no time to think about your troubles," change this to "When you are worried, we ought to become so busy — — —"

Few people will recognize that you are making these points, but all will be influenced by them.

Gotta tell this one on one of our bankers. The story goes that he quit banking for a while to go into business for himself. He bought a Service Station to get the benefit of the open air and it was a decided change after being cooped up in a bank all the time. When his first customer came along he drove into the station and up beside one of the gas pumps and said: "Give me ten gallons." The ex-banker walked up beside the car and said: "Wait a minute. Where are you going?" The motorist told him and the banker said: "Don't you think you could get along on five gallons?"

Our sincerest apologies to Miss Truman Stuckey and her Isabella music pupils. Last week she furnished us with a news item regarding the recital held last Thursday night at Isabella High School and for some reason the item was omitted. We are sorry it failed to appear and this week we are running a report of the recital along with all the children who appeared in it.

See where Jimmy Bell was elected First Vice-President of the Alabama Retail Hardware Dealers Association at their Convention at Mobile last week. That puts a kumby in line for President next year and Clanton will have to give him a celebration. We don't have the Presidency of many State organizations come to our town and we're proud of Jimmy.

Clanton Lions Club has announced that the 9th Annual Horse Show will be held at City Park on July 25th, this Greely Powell and Hughey Carroll are mighty proud of the cleanliness rating from the County Health Department. The inspection sheet shows their market 97% and that is coming mighty close to a hundred percent. Those fellows at City Super Market are regular fiends when it comes to chasing dirt and high prices.

We will welcome Mrs. Katherine Goff as our new Maplesville Correspondent next week. We didn't get to talk to her this week when she was in the News Office, but she certainly is welcome. Numerous Maplesville residents and former residents have asked us about a correspondent there. Several residents have mailed news from there recently and we appreciate it and now with a regular correspondent you can watch for more news from Maplesville.

A wash in hot soapy water, a rinse in hot clear water, and a careful drying with a clean lintless towel is the treatment that will make every piece of china and glass look its best.

MAKE LAST SUMMER'S TIES
LOOK LIKE NEW

Auburn, Ala. — Make last summer's ties as good as new.

Explaining how this is done, Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist, first lists the items needed to do the job. Use plenty of lukewarm water; mild soap; three rinse waters with a bleach added to the first (use two teaspoons of bleach to each cup of water); and gelatin.

Wash tie in rich suds by rubbing it across the palm of the hand. Scrub soiled places using suds and a brush; then rinse quickly by raising and lowering tie in each of the three rinse waters. Avoid harsh handling and wringing.

The next step is to roll each tie into a ball and squeeze gently to remove as much water as possible. Now, dip tie into a thin gelatin solution made by dissolving one-half teaspoon of gelatin into two cups of hot water. Then, smooth tie into its original shape and hang over a line to dry.

To remove any spots that remain, repeat the bleach and rinse. As soon the tie is almost dry, place it over a thin piece of cardboard, previously cut to its original shape, and press.

BOWLES

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams had as their week end guests Mr. and Mrs. G. W. DeFreeze and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gibson of Brighton.

KEEPING GARDEN-FRESH QUALITY FOR CONSUMER

Auburn, Ala. — When vegetables are harvested, they are still living plant material until they are cooked or decayed.

"This fact means that water loss and certain changes within the products continue in much the same manner as when they were growing in the field," point out John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension Service horticulturist. "Therefore, it is necessary to slow up these processes as much as possible during the marketing period if the product are to retain a high quality until they reach the consumer."

There are primarily three factors that regulate the water content or quality of vegetables. These are temperature, humidity, and air circulation. In general a low temperature, high humidity, and moderate air circulation will help to slow down the loss of water.

"To maintain the best quality in vegetables it is best to harvest them in the cooler part of the day, pre-cool or pack in ice as soon as possible after harvesting, and maintain this cold condition until the products reach the consumer," adds the specialist.

Spring and early summer months are the best times to cut fence posts. The bark is easily removed during this period.

HOW TO RID PINES OF SOUTHERN PINE BEETLE

Auburn, Ala. — This is the season of the year when pine beetles take up where they left off last fall.

L. R. Martin, A.P.I. Extension Service forester, warns that southern pine beetles can kill trees, but every tree which is infested does not die. For instance, heavy pitch deposits outside the entrance hole indicate that the tree is probably winning the battle by drowning the beetle with resin.

However, pitch deposits accompanied by sawdust below the hole indicate that the tree is trying hard but might lose. Sawdust without pitch indicates that the tree has fought a losing fight. Around a house or on a lot where the loss of a few pines would be serious, chlordane will control southern pine beetles.

In the woods, the infested trees should be cut and sawed immediately. The slabs, limbs, and stumps should be burned to kill beetles just under the bark.

MILK PRICE INCREASE BEHIND OTHER PRICES

Mr. Milton Hult, president of the National Dairy Council, says that the retail prices of fluid milk and other dairy foods have risen less over World War II levels than the prices of most other food products.

He points to figures released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics which show that between August 15, 1939, and January 15, 1951, meats rose 178.3 per cent in price; beverages, other than milk, went up 258.9 per cent; fish, 246.7 per cent; fruits and vegetables, 131.7 per cent; and all foods, 137 per cent. In contrast, the price of milk delivered to homes rose only 87 per cent.

GROWING POULTRY

Young chickens should be grown completely away from old birds if possible. By practicing a good sanitation program, poultrymen can cut the number of necessary worm treatments.

100 NEW WONDER double edge Razor Blades for 50c. at BELL HDWE. CO.

REMOVING THE GLASS
FROM THE OLD SASH

Sometimes it is desirable to remove glass from old window sashes and place it in new sashes.

"If the old sash is not to be saved," advises William T. Cox, A.P.I. Extension Service specialist in farm buildings, "the best way to remove the glass is to cut through the tenon at one corner and pull the sash away from the glass. The glass should then be laid on a flat surface and the putty scraped off with a sharp chisel."

He adds that if the sash is to be saved, draw a hot soldering iron along the putty line to soften it and follow the soldering iron with a putty knife.

FARM MACHINERY

Thirty years ago U. S. farmers owned 246 thousand tractors, 214 thousand automobiles, and 139 thousand trucks. According to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, they now own 16 times that many trucks and tractors, and two and a half times as many automobiles.

Annual 4-H Club Rally Held Here

The Clanton atmosphere was filled with gaiety and laughter Friday, April 13, as approximately 1200 4-H Club boys and girls gathered to the City Park for their annual 4-H Club Rally. The program began at 9:00 a.m. with Philip Robinson, County Council President from Thorsby, presiding. Geraldine Wyatt, Concord Club, and Mary Lou Kemp, Maplesville Club, led the group in two songs. Next was the pledge of allegiance and 4-H pledge.

The only pause of the day settled over the group as Rev. G. Williams of Baker rendered the invocation. Then to complete the setting for a full day's activity, the Judge of Probate, welcomed the 1200 4-H members and local leaders to Clanton. He gave encouragement and praise to the outstanding 4-H project work and leadership being carried on in the 4-H clubs organized throughout the county. He reminded them that he, too, was a farmer and followed their patterns of corn and cotton production, as well as in swine, beef and pasture improvements.

The beauty contest was the first event of the day and a close observation revealed that something was out of the ordinary—you guessed it. The boys were dressed as girls and the girls were dressed as boys. The first and second place winner of this group were: 1st—Wayne Burkhalter, Enterprise Club, and Ann Blackwell, Baker Club; 2nd—Rodney Benson, Collins Chapel Club, and Linda Driver, Cooper Club.

The rest of the morning was taken up with various field events and a greased pig chase. Four boys from high school was elected by other 4-H Club members to take part in the pig chase. The boys from Enterprise School, Donald DeLoach, Mack Yeargan, Arnold DeLoach, and John Jones, walked off with the prizes after many "slips of the pig."

At noon various groups spread picnic lunches and waited to hear the outcome of the morning's events. This was an important moment, for the school winning the most points won the position up front to lead the parade through town as well as $10.00 in cash. The school with the second number of highest points won $8.00 and the position of second in the parade. These positions were won by Enterprise and Mt. Pleasant and received the only cash prizes. Other schools winning positions were as follows: Thomas Jr., Third Winner; Collins Chapel, Fourth Winner; Baker, Fifth Winner; Vermont, Sixth Winner; and Concord, Seventh Winner.

The parade, led by the Chilton County High School Band, was the climax of the day, and none was in doubt about what group they were watching for 68 4-H and U.S. Flags were being waved from beginning to the end of the parade.

When the group assembled back at the park, the County Superintendent of Education, Howard Bookholdt, was on hand to give his regards to the group and award medals to outstanding 4-H Club boys and girls from the following schools:

- Bobby Sue Crowe, Mt. Pleasant Club—Food Preparation Award.
- Aubrey Wayne Oaks, Collins Chapel Club—Field Crops Award.

WHITE CLOVER SEED CROP IS VALUABLE

Auburn, Ala. — White clover is the most widely used legume grown in permanent pastures in Alabama, according to D. R. Harbor, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist.

However, the scarcity of seed and the high price at which they usually sell limit the acreage planted in the state each year. This is the main reason farmers need to save more white clover seed.

In most cases, white clover seed is considered a byproduct of the crop since it is grown alone or in mixtures for grazing. But, if the grazing is properly regulated, a good yield of seed can be harvested.

"If white clover is blooming freely, livestock should be removed from it entirely, or it should be grazed lightly to allow a good yield of seed to be produced," advises Harbor. "It is a good idea to mow the entire clover field at the time livestock are removed so the clover will grow to a more uniform height, making the first crop of seed heads mature more uniformly and combining easier."

White clover seed are ready to combine when three-fourths of the seed heads have turned brown or when seed from two-thirds of the seed heads will rub off easily.

"When clover attains a height of eight inches," warns the specialist, "it starts falling or lodging, causing non-uniformity in the height of seed heads. Under such conditions it is advisable to mow and windrow the clover instead of combining direct."

The main thing is to harvest enough

ARTIFICIAL BREEDING

More than 4,000,000 dairy cows in nearly half a million herds are in artificial breeding associations, indicating that about one out of every six dairy cows in the United States will probably be bred artificially in 1951.

ELECTRIC FENCES

Electric fences do an excellent job in providing cheap and easily constructed fences for temporary grazing. Very small posts are required, and it is not necessary that post holes be dug. Electric fence posts can be driven into the ground.

CONTRACT NEGOTIATIONS BEGIN BETWEEN SOUTHERN BELL AND CIO

Contract negotiations between the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Communications Workers of America—CIO will begin in Atlanta Monday morning. The present agreement covering the Company's non-supervisory employees, including those at Clanton, runs until June 5th.

G. D. Garner, Southern Bell Vice-President in charge of personnel, indicated in Atlanta Saturday that the Company will go into the negotiations prepared to make a wage within the limits of the Government's Wage Stabilization Program.

"Surveys just completed show that a general upward movement of wages has taken place in the South and that a wage increase for Southern Bell employees is justified," he said. "The Company's policy is to pay wage rates that are in line with those paid other workers in the community having similar skills. Only in this way can we do justice to our employees and continue to attract and keep the high-type personnel essential to good telephone service."

"Operating costs already have increased out of line with revenues, and increased wages on top of other cost rises, will require an increase in telephone rates. There is no margin in our income to absorb any increased costs. In fact, we have fallen short by $30,000,000 annually of making up through increases in telephone rates the wage increases granted in the last 10 years."

"In its negotiations the Company must constantly seek the middle ground that is fairest to all concerned—employees, customers and the people who have invested their savings in the telephone business. We are confident that the public expects Southern Bell to pay fair wages."

We must also recognize the rights of those who have put their money into the business expecting a fair return. And we must charge for telephone service only what is necessary

ISABELLA STARTS PIG CHAIN

Isabella F.F.A. is starting a Duroc pig chain with five gilts, from a litter of 12, their medium type Duroc sow farrowed March 13th.

To receive a gilt each member agrees to return one gilt to the Chapter from the first litter, register all females that he sells; also he agrees to furnish summer and winter pasture and to practice other good management practices that he has learned from Vocational Agriculture.

The purpose of the pig chain is to improve breeding animals and management practices. We feel, the chain is an economical way to introduce better breeding stock and it also affords a chance to practice and demonstrate good management.

Sears Roebuck Foundation bought five bred gilts for $500 from Coy Jones herd and gave one to each F.F.A. Chapter in Chilton County last year. Jemison, Clanton, Verbena, Maplesville and Isabella have pig chains underway from these bred gilts. Each large enough. At that time the Chapter may dispose of their sows as they see fit.

The following boys are receiving gilts: Carl Posthe, Clanton Route 2; Frank Tucker, Maplesville Route 1; Hershel Scott, Thorsby Route 1; and Johnnie McCraw, Clanton Route 3.—H. W. Haynie, Isabella, Vocational Agricultural Teacher.

BEE MANAGEMENT

Every beekeeper should check each colony of bees to make sure that they have plenty of food and a good laying queen. Colonies that are found to be weak because of a poor queen should be requeened as soon as possible, or the weak colony should be combined with another colony of bees that does have a good queen.

It makes your dollars talk great good sense!

When you look at the times we live in... and then take a look at this new Chrysler Windsor... you might almost think we'd had advance information and special-built this car just to fit these times!

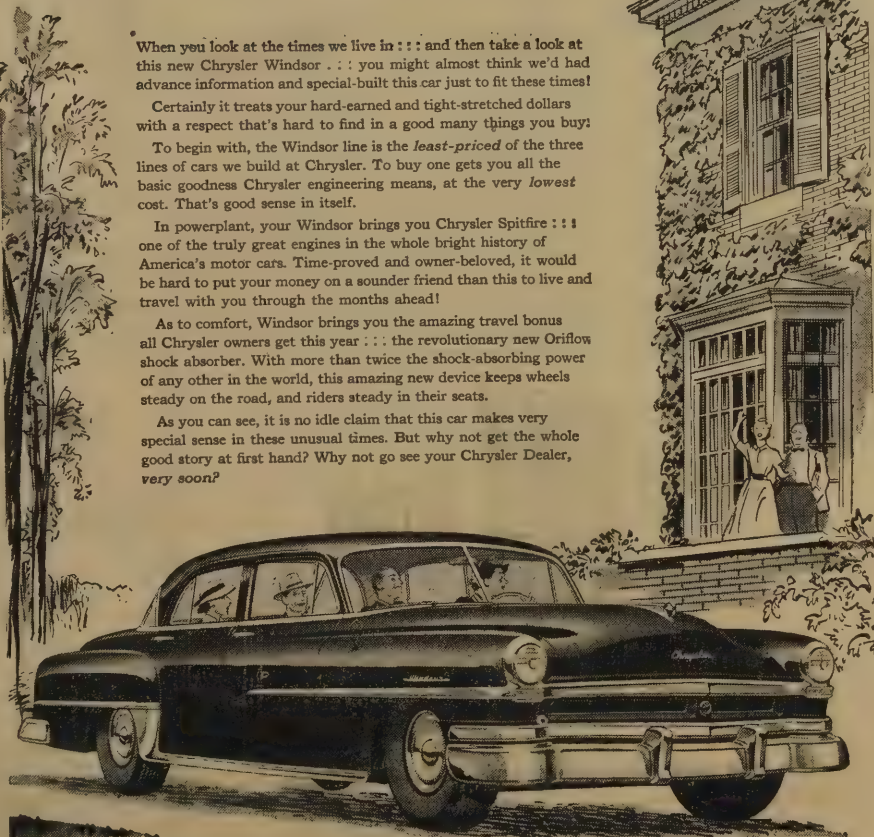

Certainly it treats your hard-earned and tight-stretched dollars with a respect that's hard to find in a good many things you buy!

To begin with, the Windsor line is the least-priced of the three lines of cars we build at Chrysler. To buy one gets you all the basic goodness Chrysler engineering means, at the very lowest cost. That's good sense in itself.

In powerplant, your Windsor brings you Chrysler Spitfire... one of the truly great engines in the whole bright history of America's motor cars. Time-proved and owner-beloved, it would be hard to put your money on a sounder friend than this to live and travel with you through the months ahead!

As to comfort, Windsor brings you the amazing travel bonus all Chrysler owners get this year... the revolutionary new Oriflow shock absorber. With more than twice the shock-absorbing power of any other in the world, this amazing new device keeps wheels steady on the road, and riders steady in their seats.

As you can see, it is no idle claim that this car makes very special sense in these unusual times. But why not get the whole good story at first hand? Why not go see your Chrysler Dealer, very soon?

Just one more week and then we shall know how far we will exceed our goals in Sunday School and B.T.U. We have as a goal for the Sunday School 300. Rev. Jones said that while he was minister here the peak attendance was 209. We want to set a record next Sunday that will be hard to break. We rejoice at the 147 in B.T.U. last Sunday night. With this fine spirit it shouldn't be too difficult for us to reach 225.

We were very happy to see Mrs. Roy Kendrick at church Sunday. We sincerely hope that she continues to grow in strength.

CUT ROSES OR BUDS IN LATE AFTERNOON

Better late than early is the advice of Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist, when it comes to gathering roses.

She points to recent studies which show that blooms cut in the late afternoon — about five o'clock — keep longer than those cut in the early morning.

GOOD SODS LEAD TO PRODUCTIVE SOILS

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama's best soils were formed under grass sod, and depleted soils are most rapidly rebuilt and most effectively conserved where good sods are maintained.

With these facts in mind, S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist, reminds farmers that grazing crops are the most important sources of feed nutrients for beef and dairy cattle. They also play an important role in producing other types of livestock. So, livestock can be grown to add to the farm income, and the soil can be conserved at the same time.

"Another thought," says Doughty, "is that here in Alabama where these sod crops may be grown the year around, grazing largely eliminates the added costs of harvesting, storing, and drying forage for the winter months."

ANNUAL DISTRICT CUB-O-REE HELD IN SELMA APRIL 14

Clanton Cub Scouts brought home many laurels from the Annual District Cub-O-ree held in Memorial Stadium in Selma on April 14th. Two hundred and thirty-six Cubs from all over this district participated in the annual event.

One of the highlights of the afternoon was free drinks furnished by the Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola Bottling Companies. The fifth bottle of "Pop" slowed down the speed of some of the Contestants but all managed to finish the event.

A large variety of various shaped novelty kites were displayed. Ribbons awarded for best made kites were first place to Lucky Rollins, 2nd place to Alex Tyndal both of Clanton and 3rd place to John Furniss of Selma.

Don Bulger of Clanton won 3rd place ribbon in the showing of novelty kites.

Irvin Dailey won first place ribbon for best constructed model train and Joey Morris won second place ribbon, Don Bulger 1st award ribbon for best constructed Tire-rack and Edwin Mullins 2nd award ribbon for best constructed waste paper basket.

Alex Tyndal and Harold Andrews won 2nd place ribbons in the three-legged race.

All Cubs were presented with a participation award ribbon. Cub Scouts attending from Clanton were: Edward Morris, Joey Morris, John Hollis Jackson, Alex Tyndal, Ervin Dailey, Lucky Rollins, Harold Andrews, A. W. McCoy, Don Bulger, Jerry White, Billy Minor, Hank Moyer, Jimmy Smitherman, Clyde Hay, Don Jones, James Armstrong, Edwin Mullins, Bobby McKenzie, Randy Rockett, Jimmy Dennis, Richard Ellison, Larry Culpepper, Marco Jones, and Ronald Bates.

The Cubs were under the supervision of Don Mothers, Mrs. E. J. Morris, Mrs. James Dennis, Mrs. Rose Mary Moyer and Mrs. James Smitherman; assisted by Den Chiefs, Harold Parr, Howard Smith, Edwin Davis and John McCoy.

The Cubs, officials and parents enjoyed a weiner roast at the close of the program.

Cubmaster Ott Miller has announced that the next Cub Scout Pack meeting will be held Monday night, May 7th, at 7:30, at the Scout Hut in Clanton.

25,000 Extra Free Votes In Our Great Baby Competition

FIRST PRIZE	$125.00
Second Prize	75.00
Third Prize	50.00
Fourth Prize	25.00
Fifth Prize	15.00
Sixth Prize	10.00

Our exciting Baby Competition is now fairly on its way, and from now until the close you are going to witness one of the keenest and most interesting affairs of this sort ever conducted in this section of the State.

Nominations have come from all the various communities in the range of our newspaper and votes continue to flow in for a large number of the little ones whose names, and votes, will be found on another page in this issue and it quite apparent, this early in the race, vigorous efforts are going to be exerted by all the Baby's supporters to see that their favorite shall receive signal honors and come into possession of a nice cash prize when the contest comes to an end several weeks hence. A definite date of closing will be announced next week.

In order that the late starters may secure the same amount of votes for their subscriptions, we are today announcing a bonus that will be appreciated and taken advantage of by all the parents, kindfolks, and admirers of the little sweethearts now in the competition.

Here it is—Beginning immediately, and good until Wednesday evening, May 23rd, we will give a bonus of 25,000 extra votes on all clubs of $10.00 worth of subscriptions turned in at our office during this two week period.

This gives you two weeks in which to secure the amount of the club and we know any of our campaigners who are interested in seeing their Baby's name in the list of winners at the conclusion of this appealing campaign, will have no trouble in making their club. You need not hold the subscriptions until they have reached the amount of the club; send them in as you secure them. A careful record will be kept here in our office and when they have reached a total of $10.00, a certificate for the 25,000 bonus will be given you. In the meantime, the votes given on each subscription will be given as they are handed in. At the worst, it will only take 5 one-year subscriptions to complete a club and should you secure a 2-year subscription, it would make it simpler.

Our subscribers are all around you and will be glad to renew through you, instead of sending to our office, in order that your Baby may receive the credit of the votes we are giving on them. Very likely, too, some of your friends and neighbors who are not now subscribers of the NEWS, will be glad to become one if you get in touch with them and explain what it will mean in votes for the Baby. We cover the County thoroughly through our correspondents located in the various sections, and we believe it will have a place in every home within the radius of our circulation—it is our wish and we welcome suggestions as to making it so.

The big vote, of course, is secured by turning in subscriptions and in this connection, we will be glad to send you a list of our subscribers in your territory, also a little receipt book in which you can give a receipt for every vote you pick up. On the cover of this book, you will find a list of the votes given on subscriptions and all necessary information as to making them out; this equipment is free and we will be glad to hand it to you, or mail it to you, on request.

The competition is just getting under way, so if you start now, you will be on an equal footing with those who start in the last few days. Everybody, at least every normal person, loves these little bits of humanity and makes a special pleasure in doing the trifling little things that guide them on their way, remember, they are the ones who will carry on when we older people have passed on to their reward. Our duty will be to guide their little footsteps in the paths of honor and righteousness, which seems to be so lacking in the world today.

We trust you will start in immediately to achieve victory for your sweetheart, your friends are sending in votes for the Baby don't let them do it alone. Get the list and the equipment we mentioned above and make up your mind you are going to capture one of our nice prizes or know the reason why.

Coupon votes continue arriving here for a large number of the little ones (continued to page six)

Catholic May Procession On 13th

The Feast of Pentecost, falling this year on Mother's Day, will be observed at the Chapel of the Resurrection on Sunday, May 13th. The Reverend Walter Mikosz, C. R., of Montgomery, will celebrate the Mass of the Holy Ghost, at 8:30 a.m.

Our Most Reverend Bishop Toolen has asked that on Mother's Day we combine our love and veneration for our Blessed Mother with the love and devotion for our natural mother, and that we supernaturalize that devotion by attending not only one Mass, on Sunday, and that each family receive Holy Communion. To this end, the ceremonies will begin with a procession of the members of the parish, singing the processions: "On this day O, beautiful Mother." The children dressed in white will distribute flowers and prayers for the pathway of their mothers.

Following the procession, Father Mikosz, will bless the crown. Acting as candle bearers during this ceremony will be Master Michael McKee and Master Charles Craig. The coronation of the Blessed Mother in the Sanctuary will then take place. Little Chloe Jones, the crown bearer, will present the crown of roses on a silver plaque to Barbara Jean Scott, who has been chosen to crown the Blessed Mother as Queen of the May, as the children sing, "O, Mary we crown Thee with roses today."

Catholics throughout the County are urged to be present at 7:45 for the formation of the procession.

The county has had four successful Peach Festivals, but due to facts above stated the committee has concluded that it will be for the best interest of all to postpone the Festival until 1952 or to such times as conditions are more favorable.

Memorial Poppy Brings Hope To War Disabled

The Memorial Poppy, which will be worn to honor the war dead on Poppy Day, Saturday, May 26th, was described as a flower of hope for disabled veterans and their families by Mrs. E. J. Morris, President of the Chilton County Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, as the Unit continues preparations for the observance of Poppy Day.

"Contributions made on Poppy Day are the main source of support for the extensive activities for the welfare of disabled veterans and needy children conducted by the Auxiliary," Mrs. Morris said. "Because of the generosity of the millions of Americans who wear the poppy each year, we are able to bring hope into the lives of disabled veterans and their families."

"From the contributions, too, come the earnings of the disabled veterans who make the poppies, working in their hospital beds, wheel chairs and hospital shops, or in convalescent work rooms maintained by the Auxiliary outside these hospitals. These veterans have made approximately 300,000 of the little crepe paper flowers this year, and have been able to help themselves and their families with the earnings. They are the only paid workers in the poppy program. The women who distribute the poppies on the streets serve as unpaid volunteers."

When buying dry onions, look for onions that are bright, clean, hard, well-shaped, and dry skinned. Look for green onions that are young, crisp, and tender, have green, fresh tops, have medium-sized necks, and are white two or three inches from the root.

PROBATE JUDGE?

A. B. FOSHEE

The present County Solicitor has held the office for the past 11 years having been elected in the election of 1942, the first time and re-elected each term since. In "political gossip circles" his name is mentioned often as a possible candidate next year for the office of Probate Judge. You have possibly heard the same rumor.

G.I. AGENCY IN DISTRESS

We understand that because Alabama's salary schedules compare unfavorably with those of other state and federal employees, the State Department of Veterans' Affairs now stands to lose qualified, well-trained personnel upon whom this state's veterans and their families are depending for help in such matters as pension and compensation claims, hospitalization and insurance benefits.

It would be tragic if the many services of our Department of Veterans' Affairs had to be curtailed, considering the vital role this agency is now filling, not to mention the prospect of an increasing workload as the impact of the Korean situation, the federalization of the Alabama National Guard and the stepped-up tempo of the draft are reflected in increased numbers of Veterans and survivors in those cases where the supreme sacrifice has been made.

Our State Department is asking for State appropriations of $378,000.00 for each of the next two years as compared with appropriations of $325,000.00 in 1949, 1950 and 1951, or about $1.00 per veteran in Alabama.

We have contacted our County Representative of the State Department of Veterans' Affairs, Cohen E. Stapp, to learn something of the work of the Department of Veterans' Affairs. Mr. Stapp states that during the last fiscal year, his office in Clanton rendered more than 2,300 services to veterans of Chilton County. The major services rendered were:

Disability claims assistance for veterans and dependency claims for next of kin; assistance to veterans with arrears of pay claims against the Armed Forces; assistance to veterans in establishing their eligibility for training and education under the G.I. Bill of Rights; reinstatement and conversion of National Service Life Insurance; Hospitalization and Out-Patient treatment; Burial Allowance Claims; obtaining grave headstones for deceased veterans; prisoner-of-war benefits; free notary service and more than 1,500 letters for veterans and their next of kin.

The tribute to all Mothers, and one Mother in particular, printed below, was written by R. L. Duffey, of Clanton, whose mother died 65 years ago. It was so beautifully written we decided it was suitable to our Mother and your Mother.—Editor:

DEDICATED TO MY DEAR MOTHER

Standing almost in the shadow of my 69th mile post and surveying the realms of life from the viewpoints of observation and experience and looking in awe and admiration upon the glorious creation of God, I view with reverence His Matchless Name. I believe implicitly in mother. About 65 years ago God saw fit to kiss her spirit into the Holy City, made not with hands, eternal and in the Glory World. Conscious of her finite being, with her inherent human proclivities, I regard her as the most beautiful of God's creation.

Go gather the brightest and purest flowers "that blend and wave in the winds of heaven, the roses, and lilies, the vine and immortelles, wreath them into a garland, and with this crown the brow of the truest of all earthly friends, Mother. In her beauty, closely akin to the adorable Trinity.

Appreciating her in the four-fold capacity of mother, wife, daughter, and sister, as the best gift of God to man, save the Supreme Offering, Jesus, I would feast my eyes upon her beauty, my thoughts upon her purity, and my heart upon her love.

Love, virtue and happiness are her heritage. With this tri-une sceptre and her divinely appointed way, she kindles the sacred fires about the altar of the home, in which she reigns supreme and exemplifies the God-given mission of the church, beautifies and adorns society and sways the world.

It requires but the sweet, gentle and almost divine touch of mother's hand and the Angelic influence of her love, to transform any condition, into a literal heaven.

Mother's love is fresher than a dew-drop, sweeter than a child's smile, pure as the throne, as sweet as the songs of the angels and as eternity as heaven, with mother-love she beautifully typifies the great Architect of life. "To whom we all with reverence should most humbly bow." With

How To Tread Water

LEO J. OLIVER, New Haven, Conn., says that he found himself on the threshold of a new life. After 12 long years in the shops, he was only just seeing the "light of day," for more than half of these years were spent on the night shift.

He succeeded in landing a sales job with the largest cutting tool manufacturer in the world. To represent them in all of New England was good fortune that he could hardly believe.

But it was his surprise at getting a job of such magnitude as this was great, so was the work.

So he gave that job all he had. He would rise at an early hour, make as many good calls as the day would permit, hop into the car for a long drive home, bolt down his supper and then, without even getting up, swing the chair around to his desk which is adjacent to the table. Here he would make out his reports, draw sketches of proposed tooling which had to be submitted for quotations, and report on the disposition of earlier quotations.

He maintained this pace for two months and then he had tensed up to the point where he could hardly speak. There was a tickle in his throat that no amount of throat-clearing would dislodge.

A visit to his doctor plus a series of X-rays showed no reason for his condition. However, the doctor did tell him his troubles resulted from the pace at which he was working.

"More than that," said the doctor, "you are like a non-swimmer that has been catapulted into the water. You are just thrashing around making no headway and, like a non-swimmer, you will eventually sink."

Then said this practical-minded medic: "I am going to prescribe a method rather than a treatment. I suggest that you do as the distance swimmers do when they tighten up from the long grind... just tread water for a while."

And that was exactly what Leo Oliver did—and has done over and over again when he has found the tempo gets too fast. He just "treads water" for a while and he always finds that he does a better job and feels great while doing it.

I Despise Your Feast Days

(Amos 5:21)

Whether it be right or wrong for people to have feast days, or days of festivals, anything affording great pleasure to the mind; or entertainment, without taking God in on the deal; judge ye. The Bible is full of holy things, for it is a Book on holiness.

When Israel was so sinful to forget the blessings of God upon their land, taking it for granted that it was their skill and ingenuity that brought to them such prosperity. They met for their feast days; held their festivals to their own glory, and to their own corruption, morally, spiritually and otherwise. They failed to pay their tithes and offerings to God, and thank Him for their prosperity. God could not do nothing less than rebuke, reprove and punish Israel for her sins. First, He told Israel that He hated their feast days; that He even despised such. Then He punished them for their sins. He sent among them the locust, the palmerworm, and the caterpillar. He laid waste their vineyards, and their fig trees. The fields were laid waste, the corn and the new wine vanished. Their meat was cut off before their very eyes. The seed rotted under the clouds. Their barns were laid waste, and were broken down. The beasts groaned, because they had no pasture; and their flocks of sheep were made desolate. The rivers of water were dried up. They were a cursed people because of their sins. Where is America today? God has blessed this land with plenty year after year. But does man stop long enough to give thanks for His blessings. Are we pouring out our hearts praise to him; or are we taking it for granted that it is our own skill and ingenuity that has brought to this land such prosperity?

Now, since Chilton County is not planning a Peach Festival this year, because of such a shortage in production, let us be thankful to Almighty God for what we do have, and repent before Him for our past sins; and pledge to God our loyalty and devotion. Let us keep in mind that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. (1 Cor. 5:6). One rotten apple in a barrel of apples will soon effect the whole. A little sin can corrupt a fine program. A small fly in the pudding ruins the whole. . . . He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear. — Hickman.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

While doctors are writing all these articles about your health, wonder if they could dream up a nice long column that we could show to the wife about how beneficial it is for old middle-aged people to sleep late of a morning instead of being called every fifteen minutes between six and seven o'clock. These chilly mornings were made for snoozing regardless of what you say, and we don't intend to be cheated out of said snooze by a wife who wants us to get out and cook her breakfast. That line about the early bird getting the worm must have been written by a meat-eater, we're vegetarians.

Herbert Linton, manager at Watson's, was mopping up last Thursday afternoon. He was mopping up the sidewalk in front of his store where folks had tracked yellow mud. Streets and alleys being what they are until we get our town well piped for gas, the sidewalks are quite dirty here and there about town. However, we haven't heard anyone complaining about having to clean mud out of their places of business. If you want to come in and trade you can bring in all the yellow mud you like, just so you leave some filthy green money on the counter. Seriously speaking very little complaining is heard about the inconveniences necessitated by installation of our gas lines. Everyone seems willing to undergo the slight inconvenience for the finished product.

Chick Wade has a very interesting window at his Clanton Jewelry Company. It shows the "Care of a watch" and gives many pertinent facts regarding the cleaning, winding, parts, etc., which makes interesting reading. A. C. Rogers is the Jeweler at Clanton Jewelry Co.

A fellow asked his friend if his wife told him everything. "Good heavens, no," he answered. "There's only 24 hours in a day."

Little Bobby attended his friend's birthday party, and was offered a second piece of cake. He looked longingly at it, but refused with a polite "No, thank you." "Oh, Bobby," coaxed the hostess, "everyone is going to have another piece and you must too." "Well," replied Bobby, "Mother told me to take only one piece, but if she had known how little the pieces are she would have thought it was all right."

This is strictly between Mr. Tom McKee and Dr. C. O. Lawrence. We refuse to stick our neck in between. The other day as Mr. Tom tells it, he was coming into town and saw a mule tied to a tree in front of Dr. Lawrence's Clinic on the Selma Road. Now the thought that struck Mr. Tom was whether the doctor had turned veterinarian. The thought that struck us won't do to print but it sure would be a dirty comeback.

J. E. Easterling, who manages the Clanton Ball Club this year, is mighty proud of his 5 to 1 win over Selma last Sunday. Says Clanton has a winning team this year.

John VanDerwey, who has been with the Selma Times-Journal since he was discharged from the army after World War II, visited the News office Monday. John served his apprenticeship at the News and has to drop in once in a while to see how things at home are progressing.

Sunday School Class Enjoys Hay Ride—

On Tuesday evening, May 1st, Mrs. Charles Klinner entertained the members of her Intermediate Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church, Clanton, and their dates with a hay ride and Weiner roast at Log Cabin Beach.

Elizabeth Sheppard, Bill Smith, Paula Gore, Patsy Buckner, Betty Mollison, Peggy Raspberry, Paula Nivens, Sandra Williams, Amelia Chism, Bobby Easterling, Russell Lewis, Don White, Joe Klinner, Howell Glenn, Bobby Tucker were among those enjoying the weiner roast and games.

Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Klinner and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klinner.

Recent Bride Complimented—

Miss Jean Hocutt entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hocutt, on Friday afternoon, complimenting Mrs. Ernest L. Queen, nee Susan Williams, formerly of Clanton, now of Troy.

Miss Hocutt, Mrs. Queen and her mother, Mrs. Lewis Williams, greeted the guests as they arrived.

Yellow and white spring flowers were used throughout the receiving rooms.

In the dining room the bride's table was covered with a white Maderia linen cloth and featured an artistic spring time center piece of yellow and white garden flowers centered with a aqua parasol. Miniature colonial nose gays of yellow roses and spirea centered the top of the parasol. Full bloom yellow roses with plumosa fern surrounded the oblong arrangement.

The many lovely gift packages were opened by the honoree and the gifts were passed for each guest to see.

Assisting with the serving were the hostess mother, Mrs. Harold Culp and Mrs. M. R. Lancaster.

The guests' list consisted of school classmates of the honoree, also her grandmother, Mrs. Calista Williams.

Senior Girls Feted at Garden Party—

Another year has passed and more senior girls of the high schools of Chilton County, their sponsors and other guests have experienced the thrill of the annual Garden Party given by the Chilton County Branch of the American Association of University Women.

This year the affair was at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams on Selma Road Thursday afternoon, May 3rd.

The beautiful and spacious gardens of the home had been prepared for the occasion, but due to the inclement weather Mrs. Williams so graciously opened her home for the party and the original plans were carried out as near as possible.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Morgan Reynolds, president of the local chapter.

Artistic arrangements of mixed spring garden flowers and potted hydrangea adorned the large living room where Mrs. Richard Palmer presided at the guest register. A name plate with a small spray of pastel colored sweet peas tied with pink and blue ribbon was pinned on each guest.

Punch, with the usual party dainties, were served in the sun-parlor from a plate glass top wrought iron table, making a beautiful picture with the large bowl of colorful mixed flowers showing through the table top. Potted plants and other seasonal flowers completed the room's decorations. Despite the rain the lovely wooded gardens were enjoyed from the large picture window in the sun parlor.

A large brass urn filled with pink snapdragons and pink roses were placed on the pier-mirror in the reception hall. The bouquet was so beautifully reflected in the mirror that the girls chose this as one of the places to pose for pictures taken by Joe Klinner. Other group pictures were made beside the dining table, which was centered with a crystal e'pergne filled with white roses and holding a white candle.

The most popular attraction at the party proved to be the soothsayers booth, where "Madame Sophia," Mrs. Hugh Jones, told the girls of their brilliant future.

Mrs. W. E. Huddleston presented piano music during the tea hours and accompanied the group singing which was enjoyed by all.

About sixty-five guests registered. The Garden Party Committee consisted of Mrs. Joe Campbell, Mrs. Vernon Payne, Mrs. J. S. Williamson and Mrs. J. B. DeRamus. The president of the chapter also met with the committee. They were assisted in entertaining by the entire membership.

Bride of Recent Date Honored—

Arthur Glover, nee Mattie Jo Barber, was complimented at a farewell get-together, given by the members of Order of the Eastern Star, at the hall on Thursday night, May 3rd.

A beautiful lace cloth covered the refreshment table which was centered with a crystal bowl filled with fragrant pink roses. A large and most beautiful bride's cake, embossed in pink and white, held a miniature bride and groom. The color scheme of bridal pink and white was repeated in dainty sandwiches served with punch.

Each member present gave a few words of farewell to Mrs. Glover, which were followed with a lovely farewell talk by Mrs. Russell Williams.

Several pieces of crystal, in her chosen pattern were presented to the honoree.

Twenty-four members of the chapter were present.

Mrs. T. J. Hunter gave the Junior Youth Fellowship of the First Methodist Church of Clanton a weiner roast in the back yard of her home on Friday evening, May 4th.

After eating, their leader, Mrs. Charles Klinner led them in games.

The following members were present: Sandra Williams, Janice Young, Jack Hunter, Bobby Buckner, Rosemary Williams, Kenneth Messer, John Hollis Jackson, Carolyn Tucker and Daryl Christenberry.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Taber and son, Steve, spent the past week end in Albertville, Ala.

Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Hickman visited her sister and other relatives in south Alabama last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Maddox and Mrs. Lily Rainey and daughter, Delilah, of Greenville, Ala., left this week for a month's tour on the West Coast. They will visit Seattle, Wash., and other interesting cities.

Mrs. Queen is the former Susan Williams. Mr. Queen is coach at Samson High School. Mrs. Leroy Martin surprised her husband with a birthday dinner last Wednesday evening. The family and a group of friends enjoyed the occasion.

Thorsby News

ESTELLE HAYES

Baptist Notes—
 In behalf of the Thorsby Baptist Church family we want to express our profound gratitude and appreciation to Bro. William Hicks who so graciously served us as Sunday School Superintendent and also director of B.T.U. It is with deep regret that we accept his resignation in the termination of his services as director of B.T.U. The investiture of his time, thought, talent, services and prayers will live on in our hearts—not for a year, decade or century, but eternally. We pray God's richest blessings upon him and his wife as they go from us and feel sure that they will continue their work for the Lord in the community where they reside.
 It is imperative that the finance committee of our church shall meet in the near future.
 A line group met Tuesday evening in the basement of the church for the banquet. Rev. James R. Swendenberg delivered a fine talk on methods of church building procedure. The talk was enjoyed by all, a very fine spirit prevailed, donations given and pledges made. There was a unanimous consensus as to the construction of an auditorium and the conversion of the present plant into an educational building. The Young People's banquet which was mentioned for the next Tuesday night will not be conducted unless they make an appeal for it. The number which would be included in this banquet is few. This, by no means, constitutes an evasive attitude toward them for they are definitely essential and important to the promotion of our church program.
 Choir practice was thoroughly enjoyed by all Friday night and future opportunity in this work will be continued next Friday night at 7:00. A good time awaits all at the choir practice.
 The Baptist Church was very happy to have the best attendance in Sunday School Sunday they have had since the church was organized. They had 248 in Sunday School and 176 in B.T.U. A new goal has been set for June 1, so let's all look forward to our 300 for then.

Everyone is invited to attend both of these recitals. There will be no admission charged.
 The Senior Class enjoyed the talks given by the Army Recruiters who came to the school on Monday, May 7. The Junior-Senior Party will be held on Saturday, May 12.
 The Seniors are busy rehearsing their annual class play to be held on Friday, May 25. The name of the play is "Hot Water" and promises to be one of the funniest comedies we have seen. Plan to be there!

OUR MONTGOMERY TRIP

On Tuesday, April 24th, the Fifth Grade of Clanton Elementary School went to Montgomery. When we got to school a Greyhound bus was standing in front of the school. The other one broke down on the way and had to send for another bus. Part of our room rode in one bus and part in another. We arrived at Montgomery a few minutes after 10 o'clock. After we entered Montgomery, we went through the Montgomery Curb Market and saw two of the pupils' mothers, Mrs. C. M. Coggins and Mrs. Morris E. Mims. Next we went around the Veterans Hospital. Then we went to the Capitol and found we couldn't get in until that afternoon, so we went to Jefferson Davis's home and saw his sword, cradle, money and the bed he slept on. From there we went to the Archives of History Building. There we saw beautiful dresses, bracelets and neckties. Next, we went to the park and had dinner, played games and rode things. Then we went back to the Capitol and Gordon Person, the Governor, invited us into his office and shook hands with us. From there we went to the Coca-Cola Bottling Company and had a free Coca-Cola. Then we went home happy, but tired.—By Norma Lou Coggins.

MY TRIP

On April 24th, we went to Montgomery. We got two buses to carry us. One was for the girls and the other was for the boys. Our bus driver was Bill Smith. He was very nice too. We were supposed to leave from here to go to Montgomery at 8:30, but one of the buses broke down and we left at 9:00 and arrived in Montgomery at 10:30. We went out to the Montgomery Curb Market to visit two of our pupils' mothers. One was Mrs. Coggins and the other was Mrs. Morris Mims. After that we went to the Veterans Administration Chandeliers. We went to the Capitol and found out that we couldn't get in until later in the afternoon. We went over to the little White House. We saw the bell that was rung in the Spanish War. We also saw some very interesting antique furniture. After that we saw some stuffed animals and all kind of eggs. We saw some old-time evening dresses and guns, swords. We saw statues and all kinds of rocks. We went to Oak Park and had our lunch, then we went and rode all kind of things. We took pictures of alligators, ducks, monkeys, pigeons, peacocks and bears. Then we went back to the Capitol and shook the Governor's hand. We went to the Coca-Cola Plant and were shown all around in there. We had a free cake and a Coca-Cola. At the steps of the White House there was an old colored man who was 108 years old. We got back safe, but tired.—Your Friend, Berneice Jacks.

When putting elastic in the puffed sleeves of little girls' dresses or blouses, sew a hook on one end of the elastic and an eye on the other. Leave an opening in the sleeve near the underarm seam, so you can remove elastic each time you wash the dress. Sleeves will be much easier to iron.

whose names you will find on another page and a few instances a subscription has been received for some of them; pick up a couple of subscriptions, send them in to be credited to the baby, then have the pleasurable feeling of seeing their names right up in the front rank—that's where they belong.

What do you think of the picture of the little ones we are showing? We know you are getting a pleasure in gazing into their lovely little faces as they appear each week. We have many more of them to show and if you have not provided us with a good plain picture, and wish to have it published, provide us with one soon. We have to send them to an engraver in another city and as this all takes time, the earlier we get the picture, the sooner it will appear; a good, plain kodak picture will serve the purpose splendidly, just so the little face is clear and distinct.

"JUST DUCKY"
The Senior Class of Jemison High will present their class play, "Just Ducky," Friday evening, May 11, at 8:00 p.m., in the high school auditorium. Miss Miriam Harvey will direct the play.
The play is a perpetual laugh. Two teen age girls cause a great deal of excitement when they write a letter to the editor of the love-lorn column, about a desperate situation that does not exist. Instead of publishing the letter in the paper, the editor comes to call on the father, an outstanding citizen of the community. The situation becomes so grave that the girls are willing to plead insanity—or do anything to remedy the crisis they have brought about. The audience will enjoy every moment of the play.
The characters are: Kyle Brown a Papa Maxwell, who thinks he is head of the house; Betty Sue Sample—Mrs. Maxwell, who thinks she is head of the house; Jennavée Willis—the very cute daughter, Betty Lou, who causes plenty of worry; Ella Nette Gore—Bernadine, Betty's best friend; Jimmy Crowson, the 13 year old atom bomb; Wilbur; Obie Littleton, as Hercules; Wilbur's best pal; Ann Strain, the charming 17-year-old daughter; Joe Frank Cobb, her boy friend; Elbert Hamic, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee; Luther Giles, a newspaper porter; Lorene Cofer, a very energetic lady, who is Mrs. Maxwell's aunt; Betty Norwood, editor of the love-lorn column.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Clanton, Alabama, as follows:

Section 1. RULES GOVERNING GAS. No person, firm or corporation shall install, replace, repair, extend or alter any system of piping for the conveying of fuel gas, or construct, repair, replace, install, alter or maintain any gas burning devices connected to any such system of gas piping, in any building or structure in the City of Clanton, Alabama, its Police Jurisdiction, or in any territory served and supplied gas by the Water Works and Gas Board of the City of Clanton, Alabama, otherwise than in conformity with the following Code:

Section 2. GAS WORK TO CONFORM TO LAWS. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to do, or cause to be done, any of the acts hereinafter prohibited, or fail, refuse or neglect to do any of the acts hereinafter to be done or performed.

Section 3. GAS WORK DONE IN POLICE JURISDICTION TO CONFORM TO LAWS. Any person, firm or corporation having his property, premises, building not within the corporate limits, but within the Police Jurisdiction of the City, desires, or is required by law to use or connect with any gas main of the City, shall conform to the laws and ordinances of the City regulating the installation of gas fitting, and securing of permits for, and the inspection of same, and shall abide by the gas regulations of the City.

Section 4. GAS WORK DONE OUTSIDE CITY LIMITS AND POLICE JURISDICTION TO CONFORM TO LAWS. Any person, firm or corporation, who has property, premises or building outside of the City Limits and the police jurisdiction of the City, desires to use or connect with any gas main of the City, shall conform to the laws and ordinances of the City regulating the installation of gas fitting, the securing of permits, and the inspection of same, and shall abide by the gas regulations of the City.

Section 5. QUALIFIED PERSONS TO MAKE GAS INSTALLATIONS. The Mayor and the City Council be and they are hereby authorized and directed to appoint a Gas Inspector and such assistant gas inspectors as in their opinion may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this ordinance, and which Gas Inspector and his assistants are hereby authorized, empowered and directed to inspect and supervise the installation, construction, reconstruction and repair of all house gas piping, gas appliances, fixtures and apparatus used or hereafter to be used in or in any manner directly attached to any building or structure within the municipality. The said Gas Inspector and his assistants shall be subject to the orders and directions of the Mayor and Council, and are hereby vested with full authority to enter any building, or premises, at any reasonable time in the discharge of their duties herein imposed.

There shall be and is hereby constituted a gas fitter's examining board for the City of Clanton, consisting of one councilman, the Mayor and the City Gas Inspector.

Only a person or persons approved by the Examining Board, as a qualified gas fitter and licensed by the City of Clanton, will be permitted to permit gas pipe or gas appliance installations to the Gas System owned and serviced by the City of Clanton, with the following exceptions:

Any home or building owner who requests a permit to install in his own home or building any gas pipe and gas appliance, and who in the opinion of the Gas Inspector is familiar with the requirements of this code concerning the proper installation of the same and who is capable of making the proper installations, shall be issued a permit for the necessary gas pipe and appliance installation without the necessity of having been licensed by the City of Clanton as a certified gas fitter.

A license will be issued to such a qualified gas fitter upon payment of a fee of $2.00 for the first year. There will be a renewal fee of $1.00 for each succeeding year. All assistants of such license shall be under direct supervision of said license.

Section 6. BUSINESS LICENSE. Any person engaged in the business of gas installation and construction shall be required to have a business license for this purpose, and also have a valid gas fitter's license.

Section 7. PERMITS. An application for a permit shall be required for each gas installation to be made with the following exceptions—the individual installation of a range, hotplate, or refrigerator, where the required length of pipe for such installation does not exceed six (6) feet, or the installation of a portable space heater where the gas pipe has been previously run to within six (6) feet of heater location. When such individual installation is made the Gas Inspector must be notified by the installer as to the type of appliance installed. Permit application blanks will be furnished to all licensees by the Gas Inspector. These applications must give a complete description of the work to be performed (including piping layout for heating equipment installations) and the location of the premises where the installation is to be made. A permit will be issued upon approval of such application. No fee will be charged.

Section 8. INSPECTIONS. Application for an inspection by the Gas Inspector must be made by 9:00 a.m. on or before the day the inspection is to be made and application for inspection must be accompanied by fee of $1.00 for the inspection. In the presence of the Gas Inspector, all piping up to the stopcock at each appliance shall be filled with air at a pressure of five (5) pounds per square inch, and the piping must maintain this pressure for five (5) minutes. All piping must conform to the specifications of this ordinance.

When this inspection has been completed and the piping system is approved by the Gas Inspector, the gas may be turned into the house piping system.

An additional inspection shall be made after all appliances have been installed and adjusted. If for any reason an installation does not pass these inspections, an additional inspection shall be made after the installation has been changed so as to conform to specifications. An inspection fee of $1.50 will be charged for each additional inspection made, and a certificate of inspection will be issued for each approved installation.

Section 9. PIPING SPECIFICATIONS. All pipe shall be of adequate size to pass the rated input of gas to each appliance. The following table may be used for determining the size of pipe for each appliance.

Under no condition shall the line to the gas range be less than 3-1/4" in service line (from the main to the meter) shall be one (1) inch line.

A stopcock valve must be installed in the gas pipe in an easily accessible place at each appliance with a union in the line after each stopcock. When flexible tubing is used, the stopcock must be installed before the connection of the tubing. All horizontal sections of pipe shall be fastened securely in place with pipe hooks or straps of durable strength. Hooks shall not be used for fastening pipe over one and one-half (1 1/2) inch diameter. Spacing between hooks or straps to be close enough to prevent sagging of the pipe line. Bending of wrought iron or steel pipe shall not be done at any time. Ells or tees to be used in making any turn in piping system. Tees must be used to make any turn in the horizontal sections of pipe line and at the base of all vertical sections of the line. Ells may be used to make turns at the top of any vertical section of the line. Flexible tubing approved by the American Gas Association or any such recognized agency may be used in connecting gas ranges, refrigerators, hotplates, space heaters, or small burners such as used in laboratories. All other appliances must be connected with wrought iron or steel pipe. All pipe-cutter burrs must be cleared from the ends of each section of pipe with a reamer, so as to prevent choking of the flow of gas. All pipe that is cut shall be clear of burrs before making connections. A non-hardening pipe joint compound may be used sparingly in making pipe connections. White lead or any other such hardening compound should not be used. All connections between the stopcock and the appliance, which are not tested under the compressed air test, must be checked for leaks moved to the meter test dial and a solution of soap and water applied to each new pipe connection. All gas pipe or tubing shall be 3-8 inch or larger. All defective pipe or fittings must be replaced with new materials. No bushings shall be used for reducing pipe sizes, only reducers may be used.

Section 10. APPLIANCE INSTALLATIONS (DOMESTIC). All appliances connected to the Clanton Gas System must be approved by the American Gas Association or other such recognized agency. Every gas burner shall be adjusted so as to burn, as near as possible, its rated input. Before leaving the premises, the installer of an appliance or appliances must clear all air from the gas lines by process of "bleeding" at each appliance. The installer must also adjust every appliance properly and check its operation thoroughly and instruct the customer fully as to the safe and proper operation of each appliance. All water heaters must be provided with a resealing pressure-temperature relief valve located in the hot water line not over six (6) inches from the tank outlet and a blow-off pipe of not less than one-half (1/2) inch diameter with no shut-off valve in the line and the outlet and without threads. When possible this blow-off shall go to the outside and to within twelve (12) inches of the ground.

Section 11. HEATING EQUIPMENT. The concentration of oxygen in the flue products of a conversion burner installation shall in no case be less than five per cent nor more than eight per cent. The gas input rate shall be adjusted to within plus or minus five per cent of 15 times the calculated hourly BTU heat loss of the building in which it is installed but, in no case, to a value in excess of five per cent above the maximum input rate specified by the manufacturer. When the prevailing pressure is less than the manifold pressure specified, the gas input shall be adjusted to within plus or minus five per cent of the required input rate specified by the manufacturer. The appliance shall be allowed to operate until the stock temperature becomes stabilized, after which a sample of the flue products shall be taken at a point in the flue after the outlet of the appliance but ahead of the draft hood, and analyzed for carbon dioxide or oxygen. The gas input shall be adjusted to within plus or minus five per cent of the required input rate specified by the manufacturer.

Section 12. HEATING EQUIPMENT CONVERTED TO USE OF NATURAL GAS BURNERS. When heating equipment has been converted to the use of natural gas burners, it shall be the duty of the City Gas Inspector to see that such equipment meets the following tests and requirements:

(A) The concentration of oxygen in the flue products shall not be less than 5% nor more than 8%.

(B) The gas input rate shall be adjusted to within plus or minus 5% of 15 times the calculated hourly BTU heat loss of the building in which it is installed, but in no case, to a value in excess of 5% above the maximum input rate specified by the manufacturer of the burner used in the equipment. When the prevailing pressure is less than the manifold pressure specified, the gas rate shall be adjusted at the prevailing pressure.

(C) The appliance that has been converted to the use of gas burners shall be allowed to operate until the stack temperature becomes stabilized, after which a sample of the flue products shall be taken from the flue and analyzed for carbon dioxide or oxygen by the City Gas Inspector.

(D) The gas input rate shall be adjusted to within plus or minus 5% of the required hourly BTU input rating at the manifold pressure specified by the manufacturer of the gas burner then being used.

Section 13. FLOOR FURNACES. (a) Where the distance from the ground level to a floor furnace location is less than the depth of the furnace, a water-proof pit shall be provided with the following minimum dimensions:

Twelve inches from the furnace to the sides of the pit on all sides except the interior side where the clearance shall be not less than twenty-four inches from the bottom of the furnace to the bottom of the pit. The sides of the pit shall extend approximately four inches above the level of the ground surrounding the pit.

(b) Where the distance from the ground level to the floor joists at the furnace location is less than twenty-four inches, a water-proof pit shall be provided with the following dimensions: Twenty-four inches from the sides of the furnace to the sides of the pit except on the control side of the vent side. On the control side, the minimum clearance from the side of the furnace to the side of the pit shall be thirty-six inches, and on the vent side, the clearance shall be a minimum of twelve inches from the bottom of the furnace to the bottom of the pit. The sides of the pit shall extend approximately four inches above the level of the ground.

(c) Where the distance from the ground level to the floor joists at the floor furnace location is less than eighteen inches, a water proof pit as specified in Section (b) shall be provided and there shall also be provided an access door to the floor furnace location from the floor to the water-proof pit.

Section 14. VENTS. All metal vents running through a floor, ceiling, wall, or any other non-fireproof partition shall run through a fireproof thimble with at least one (1) inch air space between the vent pipe and thimble on all sides. Vent pipe, such as Metal-bestos, must have at least one (1) inch clearance from combustible material. Vents from floor furnaces, water heaters, and space heaters must have a clearance of at least three (3) inches from any combustible material for a distance of at least three (3) feet from the draft hood. All vents must be of proper size, allowing at least one (1) square inch vent area for each 7,500 BTU per hour input of the burner to be vented, or shall be the same size as the appliance manufacturer's vent collar or his specifications when such is provided. All space heaters or heaters above 40,000 BTU will be required to have a vent as provided in the foregoing sections. There shall be no damper placed in the vent or flue two inches from the appliance. All horizontal runs of vent shall not be over fifteen (15) feet in length and must have at least one-quarter (1/4) inch rise per linear foot from the appliance vent collar. All horizontal runs over ten (10) feet shall be fastened in place with metal straps. All joints of metal vent must be fastened with at least three metal screws. In general, the draft hood should be placed on a vertical position adjacent to the appliance. All appliance pressure regulators (regulators used for maintaining proper manifold pressure at the appliance) must be vented with 1/4 inch tubing into the combustible chamber of the appliance with which it is used.

Section 15. A drip, in which condensate may collect and be removed, shall be provided at any point in the line of pipe where condensate would collect. When condensate is excessive, a drip should be provided at the outlet of the meter. This drip should be so installed as to constitute a trap wherein an accumulation of condensate will shut off the flow of gas before it will run back into the meter.

Section 16. All drips shall be installed only in such locations that they will be readily installed only in such locations that they will be readily accessible to permit cleaning or emptying. A drip shall not be located where condensate is likely to freeze. The size of any drip used shall be determined by the capacity and the exposure of the piping which drains to it and shall not be of smaller diameter than the pipe to which it is attached.

Section 17. SAFETY PILOTS. All gas appliances and equipment that operate or are controlled by thermostats or are automatic or controlled by use of pilots shall be equipped with safety pilots which are approved by the American Gas Association.

Section 18. Connecting with the gas system of the water works and Gas Board of Clanton's Gas Mains. It shall be unlawful for any person other than an employee of the Water Works and Gas Board of the City of Clanton or of the City of Clanton, who is then acting on orders from and in the presence of the City Gas Inspector, to make a connection with or to tap a gas main of the City of Clanton.

Section 19. Meters shall be located at a point satisfactory to the Gas Inspector; particular attention being given to the possibility of damage to the meter. No meter shall be located in a closed unventilated place. Meters shall be installed in such a manner that they are easily available for reading and servicing.

Each house service shall have in a place readily available a lock wing cock on the riser below the regulator. Except in an emergency it shall be unlawful for any one except the Gas Inspector to open or close this cock.

Section 20. INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL INSTALLATION REQUIREMENTS: All industrial installations of gas burning equipment or burners shall conform to the rules and regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters governing such installations.

Section 21. ENFORCEMENT OF THIS ORDINANCE. The City Gas Inspector is hereby charged with the duty of enforcing the provisions of this ordinance, and he shall have the right, during reasonable hours, to enter any building or premises within the City of Clanton and the police jurisdiction thereof, in the discharge of his official duties or for the purpose of making any inspection, reinspection, or test of gas equipment and appliances contained therein, or its installation.

When any gas appliance or equipment is found by the City Gas Inspector to be dangerous to persons or property because of defective installation, defective equipment, or to be in a hazardous condition, the person responsible for the gas equipment or appliance shall be notified in writing by the City Gas Inspector and shall make such changes or repairs as may be required in the judgment of the City Gas Inspector to place such equipment or appliance in safe condition, and the City Gas Inspector shall have the authority, where necessary for safety to persons or property, to immediately disconnect or cause the disconnection of any gas equipment or appliance or to any premises served by the gas service to any premises served by the City Gas Distribution System. The City Gas Inspector may delegate any of his powers or duties to any of his assistants.

Section 22. INABILITY FOR DAMAGES: This Ordinance shall not be construed to relieve from or lessen the responsibility or liability of any person selling, offering for sale, owning, operating, controlling, installing any gas equipment, appliances or any party repairing, extending or changing gas equipment or equipment being converted to the use of gas burners for damages to persons or property caused by any defect therein, nor shall the City of Clanton be held as assuming any such liability by reason of the inspection or reinspection of the premises, installation or equipment authorized herein, or by reason of the issuance of a certificate of qualification or of approval or any other certificate issued as herein provided, or by reason of the approval or disapproval of any equipment which may be installed, converted, changed, repaired or extended as provided by this Ordinance.

Section 23. PENALTIES. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than Ten Dollars nor more than One Hundred Dollars for each Offense.

Section 24. SAVING CLAUSE. If any section, clause, provision, or portion of this ordinance shall be held to be invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, such holding shall not affect any other section, clause, provision, or portion of this ordinance which is not and of itself invalid or unconstitutional.

Section 25. EFFECTIVE DATE. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of its publication in the CLANTON NEWS, READ, ADOPTED AND APPROVED, this 1st day of May, 1951.

The following were present: W. L. Parrish, Judge of Probate and ex officio Chairman of said court; V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Welch Roebuck and J. M. Dunlap; absent: None. TOMATO GROWERS WARNED
BY COUNTY AGENT

County Agent M. R. Glascock, warned tomato growers of Chilton County today that tomato or tobacco mosaic has become one of the most important diseases of the tomato in Alabama. If plants are infected while young, they may become severely stunted and produce only a fraction of a normal yield, he explained.

According to the A.P.I. Experiment Station the disease is caused by a virus and plants may become infected from infested soil, crop refuse, infected tobacco products, and other infected plants. The disease may be spread through transplanting, leaves coming in contact with infested soil, cultivation, nematodes, and aphids, he added.

Control measures recommended by the Experiment Station are as follows:

1. Avoid infested soil by using virgin soil or practicing a two to three-year rotation in which vegetable crops are avoided.
2. Control aphids in seedbeds and on young plants with 40 per cent nicotine sulphate spray, one pint per 100 gallons of water, or three per cent nicotine sulphate dust.
3. Have all workers, especially those using tobacco in any form, wash hands thoroughly in soapy water before handling plants, and repeat at frequent intervals.
4. Discard any infected plants, and wash hands again before handling healthy plants.
5. Avoid planting tomatoes near eggplant, pepper or other tomato crops since they are common sources of infection.
6. Destroy all weeds around the seedbed.
7. Practice fall disking or early spring plowing of old tomato land to speed up decomposition of the crop refuse and virus, thereby reducing spread from old to new tomato fields during cultivation.
8. Remove dirt and debris from the equipment before going from an infested to a healthy field.
9. Remove diseased plants from the field before each early cultivation.
10. Do not reset healthy plants where diseased plants have been removed, since a large portion of the resets are likely to become infected.

DIXIE COMMUNITY
RATED SUPERIOR

Auburn, Ala. — The Dixie Community in Russell County received a superior community rating April 24 from P. O. Davis, A.P.I. Extension Service director.

The rating was awarded on the basis of community programs and activities carried out in 1950. Projects included were crop, livestock, and pasture improvements by the men and home and food improvements by the women.

Of special interest was the report on the building of two homes for rural pastors in the community. The churches at Crawford and near Dixie School have new homes for their pastors because of complete community and denominational co-operation.

Club president Millard Herring enthusiastically told how the community had earned commendations for the past two years and that the one received this year was the highest rating of all.

During the meeting club members and visitors from LaFayette and Phenix City heard George Sargent, A.P.I. Extension Service community specialist, present the facts on the tuberculosis problem in Alabama and Russell County.

KEEP HENS COOL FOR HIGHER EGG PROFITS

Auburn, Ala. — Hot weather is here and poultrymen should take steps immediately to keep their poultry houses as cool as possible.

John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension poultryman, points to studies conducted at the California Experiment Station which show that hens eat only 42 per cent as much feed at 100 degrees Fahrenheit as at 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Egg production declined markedly in Reds at 90 degrees Fahrenheit and in Leghorns at 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Egg weight and shell thickness decreased at the high temperatures. Two to three weeks of normal temperature were required to get the egg size and shell thickness back to normal.

Weeks says that the temperature in laying houses can be reduced by providing wire covered double doors in the ends of the building and providing cross-ventilation by having openings on all four sides of the building. Heat absorption can be reduced by painting the roof and sides of the building with aluminum paint. So, don't let hot weather reduce egg profits this summer.

FREEZE QUALITY INTO SELECT STRAWBERRIES

Red ripe all over, sound, firm, and slightly tart in flavor are qualities that strawberries for home freezing should have.

Berries may be frozen whole in sugar sirup or as puree or juice, but Lavada Curtis, A.P.I. Extension Service food preservation specialist, says that the finest flavor will result when the berries are sliced or crushed and sweetened with sugar.

After berries are prepared for freezing, pack them in moisture-vapor-proof containers. Rigid containers, such as the new square plastic "boxes" with press-on lids or glass freezer jars, are easy to use. The berries will expand as they freeze, so one-half inch headspace should be left in pint containers, and one inch headspace in quarts. Be sure juice covers all the fruit. Press berries down with a spoon if necessary to let the juice rise.

VALUE OF A MULCH

A mulch will protect soil from erosion, hold seed, help keep fertilizer in place, conserve moisture and improve soil, and protect young seedlings and plants from sun and dry winds until they become established.

OK TO SWIM IN FERTILIZED PONDS

A fertilized pond is safe for swimming and watering livestock.

Chilton 4-H Boys Make Entries In Hog Show

This group of 4-H Club boys entered their hog projects in the Montgomery Fat Hog Show April 18 and 19, and at the close of the sales, had a majority of the prize money in their pockets. This was the largest group entering from any county. They saw the Grand Champion hog sell for 95c a pound, the Reserve Champion for 75c a pound, and at least twenty-six other prize winning hogs sell for as high as 35c per pound.

TOMATO FRUITWORMS

A.P.I. entomologists state that DDT is the most effective control for tomato fruitworms. They recommend use of a five percent dust or four pounds of 50 per cent wettable DDT powder in 100 gallons of water.

Hog losses from cholera can be controlled by a regular vaccination program.

SOME FACTS ABOUT PRACTICAL PLEATS

Auburn, Ala. — Where pleats are placed and how they are stitched may affect the convenience, comfort, life and looks of a dress, skirt, or blouse, according to Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist.

She says that the secret of the so-called "action-back" blouse is either a box pleat in the middle of the back or a knife pleat on either side close to each sleeve.

"Kick pleats" in skirts are the low pleats that allow for safe, easy walking and knee-bending. To hold pleats in place in the back of the skirt, Miss Ellis suggests stitching down from the waist far enough so that they will not spread when the wearer sits down and acquire that "sat-in" look. Also, a deep pleat instead of a slit is suggested for the close tubular skirts now in fashion.

DO NOT LET PIGS SEE BOTTOM OF PIG TROUGH

No other domestic animal will change grain into meat as fast and economically as the pig, declares G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension Service hog production specialist.

At the age of six short months, the well-fed pig will be ready to go to market as a top hog to supply ham, pork chops, and bacon to a meat-hungry nation.

"In fact," says the specialist, "right now is the time to full-feed the spring litter for an early profitable market."

Hampton had good reason for calling his parents. He says he is fine and is looking forward to being home some time through the coming months. Through the Chilton County News Sgt. Hampton wishes to send greetings and best wishes to his many friends in Maplesville and Clanton.

BUY $1,500,000 IN ALABAMA PRODUCTS

Birmingham, Ala. — Alabama's agricultural economy was bolstered during the past year through the sale of more than one and one-half million dollars' worth of fresh farm produce to one firm, A & P Food Stores.

Company officials revealed here today that Atlantic Commission Co., produce-buying affiliate of the grocery chain, paid $1,468,200 for 439 carlots of Alabama fruits and fresh vegetables during the fiscal year ending February 24, 1951.

"This figure does not include many other thousands of dollars worth of fruits and vegetables purchased for 'local' sale in our Alabama stores," said John L. Sullivan, vice president of the Southern Division of A & P with headquarters in Birmingham.

"Nor does it include the many tons of canned fruits and vegetables purchased by the company from processors in Alabama," he added.

The Alabama produce, both fresh and canned, was distributed throughout the grocery chain's stores in 40 states, taking the Alabama labels into almost every section of the country.

W.S.C.S. HELD MEETING

The W.S.C.S. of the Clanton Methodist Church held their regular business conducted by the president, Mrs. Joe Campbell. Reports of standing committees were made and all old and new business was dispensed with. The Nominating Committee presented the officers' names for the coming year. They were voted on and approved to be installed at a special meeting on Monday, May 28th, at 7 o'clock, at the church.

Before turning the meeting over to the program chairman Mrs. Campbell made a most impressive talk, thanking the members for their co-operation to her during her four years as president of the W.S.C.S. Circle II was in charge of the program. The group sang "Wonderful Words Of Life."

Those taking part on the program other than Mrs. Campbell, who read the Scripture and led in the opening prayer, were: Mrs. A. B. Windham, Mrs. T. H. Mitchell, Mrs. Elijah East-

Announcing Appreciation Day—

Our "Merchants Appreciation Day" seems to be going over fine. The drawing at 3:00 p.m. last Saturday was attended by a large crowd. Mr. Martin Garner won a large Merita cake and a loaf of Merita bread. Miss Shirley Chambers won the cash prize, 10% of the jackpot, which was $800.00. Let us all remember to get our tickets when we make a purchase of 25c or more. The majority of our merchants belong to this association. If the person whose name is called first is not present, another and another will be drawn until somebody wins. It may be 5, 10, 20, 30, 40, or 50 per cent, but somebody always wins. Be sure to get your Appreciation Day Coupons. Who knows, you may be lucky when you are not expecting to be?

Mr. and Mrs. Van Potts spent several days last week with Mrs. Potts's mother in Ohatchee, Ala. On returning home Mrs. Potts brought her little nephew, Johnny Hyde, to spend several days. So you might know she has been very busy this week.

Mr. R. W. Streeming has returned home from a vacation in Florida. He reports a very nice time.

Francis Johnson of the U. S. Army has been spending several days with his mother, Mrs. C. E. Hubbard. He is stationed in Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Sorry to lose our good friend, Mrs. Mae Stinson, who married several weeks ago and has gone to make her home near Seattle, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gwin have as their visitor, Mrs. Hattie Cawthorn, of Selma, Ala. We are all always glad to see "Miss Hattie" and she is a welcome visitor to our town.

Mrs. Frances Maples Camp of Washington, D. C., is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Maples.

Miss Edna E. Tucker of Prattville, Ala., visited with Miss Blossom Crumpton and Miss Frances Reynolds over the week end.

We were happy to see Mrs. Glenn Bashore visiting in town over the week end.

Mrs. Kathryn Goff and boys had as their visitor last Saturday Mr. Reynolds of Plantersville.

We are very happy to see little Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams, out walking around. As we all know Elizabeth was stricken with polio several weeks ago. She has been under treatment at the Crippled Children's Hospital in Birmingham. We sincerely hope that she continues to grow in strength.

We have several shut-ins in our community. Let us all remember them. We may be shut-ins some day.

Mrs. Mary Culp, who has been sick for some time, was carried to a hospital last Thursday. Haven't been able to find out which hospital and where. Let's all remember her and pray for her a speedy recovery.

During our simultaneous revival at the Baptist Church some time ago, the church was almost filled. Where are the people who filled these seats? Let each and every one attend as often as possible.

Anyone having news, please call your reporter, Kathryn Goff, Maplesville 2571. So all our news can be reported each week. Our friends away from home like to know what we're doing.

Our V.F.W. Post will soon have their new hall complete. This hall is located up near our high school. The land for the building was given by Dr. H. M. Nix. Because of their love for their fellow comrades and because they are so thoroughly sold on the aims and purposes of the V.F.W. the few members are working hard to complete this hall. So don't let our town let these boys and men down. I'm sure there are lots of eligible veterans in this area who are not members. Won't you join today? Don't wait for the members to "Ring your doorbell." We all hope this will be a successful Post.

The McAfee Service Station which has been owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Brady McAfee has been sold to Mr. J. U. Chambers, owner and operator of Chambers Gulf Station. Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie went to Montgomery Saturday to sell a garage for the Rev. George Bagley. We all remember Rev. Bagley as our minister for the revival several weeks ago. Little Buddy Goff visited with Rev. Bagley's children. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Graham and Howard and Walter; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rogers, Mrs. Jones and Sonny, all went down to Rev. Bagley's to help with the garage. They carried a nice supper. Everyone enjoyed it.

Our school is about to bring to a close another successful year with a nice graduation class. We should all try to attend the closing exercises of our school and wish these graduates success as they launch out in a field unknown to them.

Visiting in town over the week end was Mr. Charles Baugh. He is now employed in Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. W. E. Coburn spent last week end in Birmingham with her sister who has been very ill.

Mrs. C. M. Foshee and Miss Louise Foshee attended the May Day Festival at Huntington College last Saturday. There was a meeting Friday night at 7:30 at the City Hall for the purpose of securing Natural Gas for our town.

There were interesting discussions by many of our citizens on the Natural Gas, also our water works system.

We were happy to see a lot of our home town boys for a few days furlough after finishing their boot training with the Army. We wish for their safety as they go to their new stations.

Mrs. Mae Cox and Mrs. Maude Clements are visiting Mrs. Cox's son, T-Sgt. Charles Davis, of Biloxi, Miss. While they are on their vacation they will visit other relatives in Fairhope, Prichard and Mobile. They reported a nice visit to New Orleans last Sunday.

Let us all remember we have a 5c & 10c Store in town now. It is owned and operated by Mr. Hershel Shanks.

We have another welcomed business, Latham's Feed and Seed Store. Let us all remember this when we need anything in this line. In fact, Maplesville stores offer most anything anyone would want. Just ask if they have it, they can get it for you.

Our little town was surprised last Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock with a wind and rain storm. There has been quite a bit of damage reported. Lot of our old trees were destroyed. Some of which had been here since the beginning of Maplesville, I suppose. The town or part of it was without lights for a while, but the capable Alabama Power Company men were soon on the scene and had our lights burning again. We can't appreciate our conveniences until they are gone. It surely gives us something to think about.

Noticed the other day in passing, Rev. and Mrs. Hyman Atcheson's home and that it is quite a gathering place for little boys. A baseball game was going on in the pasture. Rev. and Mrs. Atcheson have two small sons, and of course, the other little boys like to be with them.

Everyone had an enjoyable evening of entertainment last Tuesday, May 1, when they attended the May Day program at Maplesville High School. The theme of the program being "Star Dust." The opening song was "There's A Girl In The Heart of Maplesville." Miss Ann Merchant of Senior III Class was crowned May Queen. Mr. Hillard Smith of Senior III Class was crowned May King. Miss Martha Ellen Chambers of Junior II was chosen maid of honor. Mr. Harvey Smith and Mr. Earl Chambers of Senior III Class were Prime Ministers. Eight little girls of Grammar School dressed in white paper dresses were "Star Dust Fairies." Seven girls of Junior High dressed in pastel paper dresses were bubble dancers, singing, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Miss Ruth Pugh sang a solo, "My Heart Cries For You." Mr. William E. Davis sang a solo, "I." The program was concluded with a song, "All Hail The Queen." The May Day program was preceded by a barbecue supper sponsored by the Senior III Class.

The Senior II Class of Maplesville High School held their annual class party last Friday night at Oakland Park in Montgomery. Several of the teachers chaperoned the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cox, Mrs. Jennie L. Cox were the Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Perry. They came down to bring Miss Annie Perry. At this time Miss Annie is doing nicely from her broken hip and is able to walk on her crutches some.

Miss Martha Alice Smith of Montevallo College visited with her mother, Mrs. Howard Smith, and grandmother, Mrs. Mattie Foshee.

Noticed that there was a gathering of Dr. Parnell's children and grandchildren in Maplesville over the week end.

Mrs. E. N. Shanks is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Burgess, of Vredenber. While she is there they plan a trip to Florida to see Mrs.

Shanks's sister.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Williams had a surprise for this week end. Mr. Williams's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Williams, of Westwood, N. J., came by on their way to St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Dave Bates is doing nicely at home since returning from St. Vincent's Hospital where she underwent a serious operation several weeks ago. Sorry to hear that little Joe Hicks is confined to his home with the mumps. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Next Sunday night at 8 o'clock p.m. the Baccalaureate Sermon for the graduation class will be preached by Rev. Paul Oden at the Baptist Church.

Men's Fellowship Club Chartered

On April 23rd, the Men's Fellowship Club of the Clanton Methodist Church became the second officially chartered Club in the Selma District. With G. T. Murphree as President, and J. C. Parr as Secretary-Treasurer, the Men's Fellowship Club received its charter and recognition from Dr. C. M. Dannelly, Methodist Lay Leader of the Alabama Conference.

In a speech of presentation to the Fellowship members and their wives, Dr. Dannelly congratulated the Club on the work it had done since its beginning three years ago. The enrollment of the Methodist Men's Fellowship Club of Clanton now includes over 100 members, and has been very active in church affairs, even though it has not been officially recognized as a chartered club.

With this new charter which Dr. Dannelly presented, however, the Club, through the able assistance of the Pastor, J. M. McKinney, can now fulfill its obligation to the people of Clanton. The Methodist Churches of the Selma District extend congratulations to the Men's Fellowship Club of Clanton for becoming the second chartered Club in its midst.

Chilton County Agricultural Fair Being Considered

Chilton County agricultural workers, cattlemen and Jersey Association officials, Civic and Chamber of Commerce leaders, local radio station manager, and local newspaper editors met this week to discuss the possibility of holding a Chilton County Agricultural Fair some time during the fall of 1951.

This idea is being discussed in view of the fact that various organizations have been holding a number of 1-day scattered events that have been expensive and time consuming. The possibility of combining these various events into a one-week agricultural fair possibly could be more economical in time and money and more effective in that more Chilton County citizens would have an opportunity to attend. Those in attendance — after discussing the possibilities involved — moved to further study and consider the idea.

The County Fair can combine the events previously staged by the Veterans on-the-farm-training program, the Jersey Cattle Club's Annual Show and offers an excellent opportunity for hog and beef cattle breeders to present the best of their breeding and production accomplishments. The group asked that the idea be publicized and that all Chilton County citizens have an opportunity to consider the pros and cons of the idea. If — after careful consideration — a majority of the Chilton County public is in favor of a County Agricultural Fair — the idea will be further developed.

What is your idea? Should Chilton County put on display its top livestock and improved farming practices for all to see and study? Are you interested in attending a County Fair?

Hope "Cappy" Told Him Where To Get Off!

"Cappy" Fisher—who just retired after thirty-five years as a railroad conductor—was telling about a salesman who was often one of his passengers.

"That man was so busy," says Cappy, "he used to bring a dictaphone on the train to catch up on his letters. On one trip he'd been rushing around so much he'd clean forgot to bring his ticket. Left it on his desk."

When Cappy started to tell him not to worry about the ticket, the salesman busts out with "Who's worried about the ticket? It's just that now I don't know what city I was going to get off at!"

CHILTON COUNTY MAY BE AFFECTED BY NPA

The National Production Authority of the United States Department of Commerce has announced that, beginning July 1 of this year, it will establish a "controlled materials plan" on steel, copper and aluminum, a program which may affect many lines of business activity in Chilton County.

According to information received here from Merrill C. Lofton, southeastern regional director of the Commerce Department in Atlanta, the new program will involve allotments to be made by NPA of the nation's three basic metals directly to manufacturers of machinery and component parts on the basis of their needs for those materials in the manufacture of goods for both defense and civilian purposes.

Although the plan will not take effect until July 1, the intervening time will be spent in mailing out forms to manufacturers for the listing of their prospective requirements by the effective date of the new program. The forms will be available next month, Mr. Lofton said.

Primary purpose of the new program will be to enable the National Production Authority to tell producers what the government must have, furnish the time-table for getting things done, and give producers the authority to carry out the program, the Commerce Department official said. This procedure, he said, will be reflected in terms of an authorized production schedule to obtain and use the materials under control, and a preference rating on other materials and components needed to complete the job.

Just how the new program will affect producers and distributors in Chilton county is problematical right now. Mr. Lofton said, but NPA has tentatively listed scores of products, ranging from pins and needles to steam engines, as coming within the scope of business operations for which the foregoing application forms will be required. Included in these activities is the production of agricultural machinery, food products, textile, woodwork, paper making, printing and publishing, tobacco, cotton, clay and other machinery used in the Southeast in the production of these goods. Also in the list are office machines, commercial laundry and dry cleaning machinery, sewing machines and vacuum cleaners, except those used in the household, refrigeration and air conditioning equipment, and many other machinery products and components.

In a list of those products for which applications will not be required, NPA has included such commodities as passenger type motor vehicles, household refrigerators and freezers and comfort air conditioning, heating and cooking equipment for residences, household electrical appliances, vending and amusement machines, sewing machines, vacuums and radios for the homes, television sets, venetian blinds, household furniture, furniture for beauty and barber shops, and a number of others.

Mr. Lofton suggested that business firms of Chilton County familiarize themselves thoroughly with the new proposed plan by communicating with their nearest United States Department of Commerce field office. Such offices, he said, are located in Atlanta, Savannah and Augusta, Georgia; Charleston, Columbia, Aiken and Barnwell, South Carolina; Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Memphis, Tennessee; Jackson, Mississippi; Birmingham and Mobile, Alabama; Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, Florida.

Which Will Be Our State Flower?

Mrs. June McKenzie, President of the local Garden Club, has received a report from Mrs. J. F. Rowe of Mobile on a bill taken of the legislature regarding the changing of the State Flower.

The goldenrod, which is at present the State Flower, seems to have the preference of several flowers submitted. Among them were the Camellia, 60 votes; Azalea 2 votes; Hydrangea 1 and the Iris 1 vote. The goldenrod was chosen by 101 members who answered the questionnaire.

There has been a move on for several months to try to change the State Flower, but the majority seem to be satisfied with the goldenrod, a native Alabamian.

The Newbia Community Club in Coffee County recently received an Auburn commendation for excellent community improvement work. Not satisfied with this honor, the Newbia Club is aiming for even more progress in 1951.

ment of Commerce field office. Such offices, he said, are located in Atlanta, Savannah and Augusta, Georgia; Charleston, Columbia, Aiken and Barnwell, South Carolina; Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville, and Memphis, Tennessee; Jackson, Mississippi; Birmingham and Mobile, Alabama; Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, Florida.

Armed Forces Day Chairman

Mr. J. W. Hayes of Hayes Chevrolet Company in Clanton has accepted the Chairmanship of the Armed Forces Day celebration for our city. Mr. Hayes is prominent in Clanton civic activities and has given freely of his time to promote and foster civic pride throughout Chilton County.

Mr. Hayes has received congratulations and best wishes on his appointment as Armed Forces Day Chairman from Lt. Colonel John P. Mulligan, United States Air Force, State Project Officer for Armed Forces Day.

When the Nation buries, it buries by telephone. And today speed is the battle cry, as America builds its defenses. Whether it's tanks or planes, bombs or bazookas, Long Distance serves on every production job. Getting orders and giving them. Rushing raw materials here—speeding workers there. Saving precious minutes and cutting red tape.

The Bell System is better equipped to handle today's rush job because it speeded its own building program. In 1941, for instance, there were about 4,800,000 miles of Long Distance circuits. Today there are nearly 20,800,000 and more will be needed.

When America's capacity to produce depends so much on good communications, it's a good thing this nationwide telephone system has expanded so rapidly. And it is essential that it keep right on growing.

To help speed your Long Distance call...

please give the operator the out-of-town telephone number. Telephone lines are busy with national defense.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Bro. George Smith brought the message at 10 o'clock Sunday a.m. and his subject was "Yes, Lord." May we all say, yes, to the Lord and believe in Him and have everlasting life. Sunday evening he chose for his subject, "So." The little word has a deep and wide meaning. For God so loved the world. The messages were very inspiring and was brought first so that he could go to his other church and bring the message there. We certainly do appreciate he and his family who have helped us so much.

We trust that our pastor is much better and can soon take up his work. All of us have been missing him as he has been our pastor for over six years and this is the only time he hasn't been able to be with us.

Sunday, Bro. Smith will be bringing the message at 10 o'clock and Sunday School to follow if Bro. Hughes is not able to attend, and Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock and B.T.U. to follow.

Let's not forget prayer service each Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. We have a very good attendance and invite every one to worship with us.

Clanton Defeats Selma 5 To 1

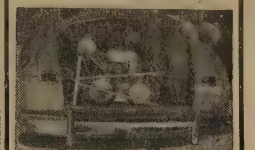

Clanton ball players played the best game of the season last week when they defeated a strong Selma team by a score of 5 to 1. Holenbeck was star of the game in giving up only four hits the entire afternoon.

One of the best catchers in any small league is playing with the local team this season in McCormick. He played a very brilliant game last Sunday. The coming Sunday the locals will be host to Continental Gin Co. of Birmingham. Friday night they journey to Selma.

John Williams Raises Second Champ

John Marvin Williams seems to have developed a habit of raising champion calves. This is his second year in a row that his calf has been judged the Grand Champion of the Chilton County fat stock show.

John Marvin is a member of the 4-H Club at Baker Jr. High and is the son of W. A. Williams, Route 4, Clanton.

Along with the grand champion honor goes an award of $100 from The Birmingham News, Post-Herald and Radio Station WSGN.

This is the sixth year that the prize calf award has been given to the winners of the county shows. The winners must feed and show the calf in the Birmingham show in 1952.

There are two things a county must do to make its winner eligible for the award.

It must enter at least eight calves in the Birmingham show.

It must have its own county show.

This year 21 boys and girls will receive the awards. This brings the total

Mrs. J. D. Culp Named Shut-In Mother Of Year

Chilton County paid tribute to all mothers last week, when it overwhelmingly elected Mrs. J. D. Culp of Route 3, Clanton, as "Shut-In Mother of the Year." Mrs. Culp who is 68 years old, the mother of ten children, twenty grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren, received the award of "Mother of the Year" from Miss Helen Parrish, conductor of "The Poet's Corner," a regular feature of Radio Station WKLF.

Fifteen women were nominated by the listeners throughout the county, and from these the people were asked to vote for their choice of "Mother of the Year." Mrs. J. D. Culp of Mt. Nebo Community received the most votes.

Mrs. Culp has been a partial shut-in for over three years, yet she goes to church each Sunday through the help of her family and neighbors. She is known by all who have come in contact with her, as a Christian woman who always tries to do her part by God and her fellowman. It was indeed an honor for Thrifty Store and "The Poet's Corner" to award her a $25 gift certificate, a large bouquet of flowers, and the official title as Chilton County's "Sut-in Mother of the Year."

Sunday School Convention

The above picture was taken on the second night of the National Sunday School Convention held in the Shrine Mosque auditorium in the City of Springfield, Mo., March 13th to the 16th. It was the ninth annual convention of its kind held by the Assemblies of God. Nine years ago when the first Sunday School convention was held all delegates met in one room of the Gospel Publishing House in Springfield; but today, there is not an auditorium in the country large enough to accommodate the crowds attending the convention.

The News is indebted to Pastor A. T. Hickman for bringing to us this proof of such a great convention. It is an evident of spiritual interest shown by multitudes. Conventions like these will keep communism and every other ism away from the shores of our beloved country. Pastor Hickman says, "There is more power within the Church to overcome communism than within any other organization in the world. More people should look to God and support the Church for its Spiritual influence upon our people, and the people of other lands."

Pastor and Mrs. Hickman attended this convention.

The tenth annual National Sunday School Convention will be held in Springfield, Mo., March 23-28, 1952. It was announced this week by Rev. Hickman. Three of the largest auditoriums in Springfield have been reserved for the occasion.

APPROVING SPECTATOR

WASTE, WASTE, WASTE!

When, oh when, will the people get enough of this government waste and put a stop to it?

Boards are created where no Board is needed. Offices are opened and maintained where no office is needed. Clerks are hired where no clerk is needed, and we, the people, groan and moan and do nothing about it.

A good example of what we mean is the opening of another Selective Service Board office at Huntsville, Ala., last week. Even at the insistence of the Board Members that no second Board was needed, the Selective Service officials went ahead with their plans to open the second office.

Bureaus are taking over our country. There is a bureau for everything including building, borrowing, lending, planting, digging up, joining, separating, can I, can't I, and what have you?

Until the people through their duly elected officials come to the aid of their country it will get worse, not better.

DO YOU WANT A FAIR?

Talk is going the rounds about the possibility of a County Fair next Fall.

This would combine the various stock shows, etc., that are sponsored by organizations through the summer and fall each year.

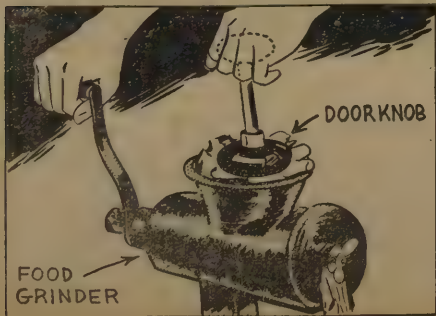

We are highly in favor of the people of Chilton County combining their talents into a county wide Fair. The attendance would be ten times the number witnessing a single event as presented in the past. Too, the opportunity to display more of our products would be given the people.

A County Agricultural Fair would be a great boon to the public morale and we are for it 100 percent.

THOUGHTLESS CHILDREN

Reports come to us that thoughtless children are going to the local cemetery and playing in the sand on graves. Those who have loved ones there and who have taken great pains to make the graves look as nice as possible, out of respect and love for those who have passed away, do not appreciate this act of thoughtlessness.

Parents could help the situation by knowing at all times where their children are, and what they are doing.

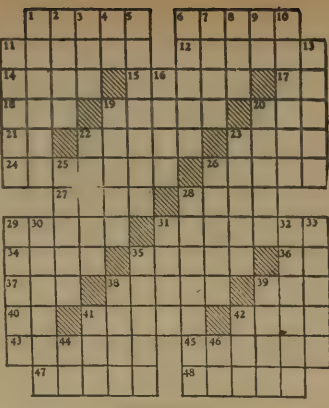

Using a doorknob to pack meat or vegetables in the hopper of a food grinder keeps the task from being tiresome or dangerous.

Answer to Puzzle No. 133

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Mighty glad to see our Postmaster R. W. Lowe back on his feet and looking well again. He had a pretty bad spell of it and will be forced to "take it easy" from now on, but he's up and about and that's about ninety percent of the fight. He'll make it now.

Bob Taber, local manager for radio station WKLF, is spending a week or two up in Yankelend. His family went along to take care of him. Bob's home was in New York before he came south and fell in love with his wife and "youall," now Clanton is his home.

Several have asked how many candidates there are going to be for the office of Probate Judge next year. That, we can't say, nor do we say that all the pictures we have printed are going to be candidates. We only print the pictures of the county residents who have been mentioned in conversation as "possible candidates."

And believe us, we have several more yet to run.

A good friend asked about the pictures of possible candidates for the county office of Commissioner. We'll take that office up after we have run out of probate judge candidates.

Jim Plott tells us that in conversation with the head of the State Highway Department last week, he was told that Chilton County had three hundred and fifty thousand dollars in highway funds available for use in this county. That matter should be looked into by our Probate Judge and County Commissioners. Jim is making a good Representative. He's working for education, the old age pensions, better roads for his county and the completion of that bridge across the Coosa River below Mitchell Dam on State Road 22. Jim will get a lot of the things he goes after, too.

IN THE MIDDLE of the part of that huge... the President's... these recommendations... than the parity freeze... His anti-inflation program included, beside a tax increase, increased personal savings through purchase of government bonds; reduction of borrowing and credit buying for non-defense purposes; fair ceilings on prices and rents and stabilization of wages and salaries at fair levels.

Although technically the bill is not dead, the senate has voted against dispersal of some 4,000 government employees to nearby Maryland and Virginia and elsewhere in the country to insure continuity of vital governmental activities in event of atomic attack on Washington. The vote was relatively close, 45 to 39. The vote, came, however, on a motion by Senator Dirksen of Illinois to recommit the bill for further study, so it was not killed outright. Such a dispersal program has been under study in the capital since last August and the cost has been estimated up to $139,000,000 and would include construction of four permanent buildings.

Despite his declaration that he would refuse to continue as a member of the crime probe committee, after the senate voted to continue the life of its special, crime investigation committee unanimously, Senator Estes Kefauver has agreed to remain a member of the committee, although chairmanship will be taken over by Senator Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland.

FBI Agent Resigns to Fight Devil

Oliver D. Collier, a former agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and an expert on fraud inquiries, gave up his position with the organization in order to enter the Gospel ministry. He preached his first sermon on April 15th as pastor of the Calvary Gospel Tabernacle, Assemblies of God, in Jamaica, N. Y. The news was carried by the New York Times, and by the Associated Press. The young minister served in the F.B.I. for sixteen years. For the past ten years he was head of the accounting division of the New York office of the F.B.I. His decision to change from chasing criminals to preaching the Gospel of Christ came after long and careful thought. He said, "It was the result of a deep conviction in my own soul that God has called me, and when I was offered this post (the Jamaica Church) I could not refuse." He described his call as "a strong inward compulsion" in his first sermon to his new congregation. "You will never find peace until you answer the call of God. This morning I know God will direct my future,"

A. T. HICKMAN, the Gospel of Christ came after long and careful thought. He said, "It was the result of a deep conviction in my own soul that God has called me, and when I was offered this post (the Jamaica Church) I could not refuse." He described his call as "a strong inward compulsion" in his first sermon to his new congregation. "You will never find peace until you answer the call of God. This morning I know God will direct my future," said the minister. Then he added, "I thank God for the opportunity to preach the Gospel."

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Chief director of the F.B.I. sent Mr. Collier a letter expressing his sincere wishes for success in the service of God. Friends at the New York and Washington offices of the F.B.I. sent their congratulations. They also sent gifts and flowers for his church. It was a real promotion for the former F.B.I. Agent. There is no higher calling under the shining sun than that of preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ. All other professions, and vocations in life have their places, but they are not as important as preaching the Gospel of Christ.

As it is written, "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things." (Rom. 10:15). The Gospel ministry is not a money-paying proposition, but the former F.B.I. agent has given up his well-paying position with the organization for the purpose of devoting his full time to the ministry of the Kingdom of Christ. Like father, like son; the young minister follows now in the footsteps of his father, the late Harry L. Collier, founder and pastor of the Full Gospel Tabernacle in Washington, D.C. God give us more young men to fight the devil in this immoral age in which we live. — Amen.

"You Are An Individual"

JOHN E. EITSON, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, says until he had grown to manhood he had hated himself most of the time. He hated himself because he couldn't do the things other people could do; he hated himself because he was so bashful; he hated himself because he so often made a fool of himself. He went through the war not caring whether he lived or died. He would volunteer for dangerous missions just to see if he could take it. He wanted to prove to himself that he was not a coward.

Carnegie

He was still bitter after he got out of the army. He got a job, worked three days and quit. He had left school at the end of the eighth grade. But now he decided to go to the veterans' school, and this was the first time he had ever felt the stirring of ambition. But he worked so hard that he became ill. Now he had something to worry about: stomach ulcers. Next his eyes became infected, and a carbuncle developed. Soon he was in the hospital.

Lying in the hospital, he read a great deal. He came across the following in a book that was handed him:

"You are an individual; there is no one like you; there never has been; and there never will be anyone like you."

- Now he began to think. He suddenly realized that he didn't need to be like all those people he had resented. He was different and he would make the most of his differences. He began to like himself better; he began liking other people. Gradually he became happier. As he became happier, his physical self improved, and he says from that time on he didn't worry. He is happier now than he ever thought it possible for him to be.

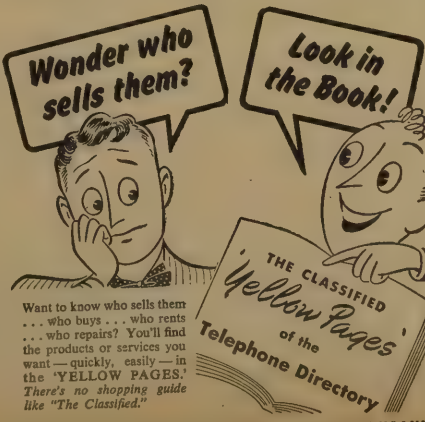

Your Health

THE R. N.

The nursing care of the sick, whether in the home or the hospital, is one of the most satisfying of all human relationships, and possibly one of the least appreciated. Seldom does the patient or the family realize the hours of training that the nurse has endured to reach the place where she can help restore her patient to well-being. Together with the beginning textbooks on the nursing arts, the student is armed with such studies as chemistry, physics, anatomy, physiology, microbiology, psychology, sociology. Through the nursing educator, the physician and educators in allied fields such as psychology, sociology and some of the sciences, the student nurse is given every opportunity to study the sciences related to the physical and mental functioning of the individual patient. Three years of study, including classroom work and practical experience in an approved school of nursing, are necessary for graduation. To practice nursing as a registered nurse, it is necessary to pass a state board examination and obtain a license. The scope is unlimited, for there are so many fields open to the registered nurse. Many choose to become hospital nurses where they are in daily contact with patients; others choose public health nursing so they can work in a community helping to prevent disease. Then there are the army nurses, the navy nurses, and other branches of the armed forces. Again many choose to become nurse educators, carrying on the objective of educating new students to the field. Not to be forgotten are the nurses in industry, the nurses in the public school and the nurses in offices. Through her understanding of the patient, her ability to carry out the instructions of the physician and her care in making the patient comfortable, the nurse is contributing extensively to the recovery of the patient. Whether she is, the nurse is a valuable asset in the community.

CUTWORMS IN COTTON AND GRAIN FIELDS

To control cutworms in cotton fields, 10 to 15 pounds of 10 per cent DDT or 20 percent toxaphene should be applied on each acre. For oats, fescue, clovers, and pastures, the application is 25 to 40 pounds of 10 per cent DDT or 20 per cent toxaphene.

Do not apply these materials on pasture land carrying cattle. If it becomes necessary to treat pastures, remove cattle for at least 30 days.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

On the Alabama Power Company's beautiful reservoirs, Crappie, Large and Smallmouth Bass, White Lakes & Bream are the most plentiful and the most sought after basses of the fin-fan tribes, and at this time the fishermen that have the know how are having little difficulty in catching creel limits. Last year's poor fishing weather and good spawning conditions seem to be paying off with a wonderful harvest this spring. Many of the large black bull crappie are being taken on artificial bait, something that has been more or less, a rarity. The best results of the past week has been with live minnows, about 24 inches deep about the willows and stumps. A number of Smallmouth Bass are being taken on live minnows by Crappie fishermen, while the Largemouth Bass seems to be best attracted by shallow running plugs. Bream are caught most any time with red worms, however, a fly placed in the right spot often pays off just as well. The White Lake Bass got off to a slow start in the Coosa Lakes this year because of the late spring and general weather conditions. However, several 2 pounders or better have been entered in the contest. Within the next week or so you can expect to see large schools fairly dancing on the surface while feeding on the millions of small gizzard shad. Be sure and have a small spoon or two in your tackle box, casting and trolling are the best methods, Lakes Jordan and Mitchell are the best locations.

Not to many entries were reported this week—not that the fish are not striking but because most of the fishermen feel that their catch is not large enough to place in the contest. Don't you be one of those—weigh your largest catch, you may win a handsome prize for your trouble.

From Martin Dam, Mrs. Pauline Orr, store keeper, reports: Mr. P. Loomis Mann, Plant Operator, Martin Dam, using an old stand-by on Martin Lake, a Lazy Ike, to reel in a fighting 3 pound Largemouth Bass. Tommie Wills' Fishing Camp, Little Tom Creek, Lake Lay, reports: Wallace B. Cannon, Route 2, Box 221, Sylacauga, caught a very nice 12 ounce Shelleracker Bream with the aid of a fly rod and worms. Also, from the same location Charles F. Ellison, Bemiston, Talladega, used live minnows to reel a 1 pound 13 ounce Crappie.

Joe Stanley's Fishing Camp, Weoka Creek, Lake Jordan, reports: A. B. Payne, Hill Top Arms Apartments, Montgomery, caught a 1 pound 14 oz.

Crappie with a live minnow as bait. Claude Wood's Store at the Weoka Creek Bridge, Lake Jordan, reports: Milton K. Boyd, 237 South Perry St., Montgomery, also, used a live minnow to catch his 1 pound 9 ounce Crappie. J. B. Kelly's Store near Wetumpka, reports: Jimmie Woodfin, 401 Chisholm Street, Montgomery, caught a 3 pound 9 ounce Smallmouth Bass. Live minnow was the bait and Lake Jordan was the place. Near by, Roy S. Reynolds, Route 2, Wetumpka, caught the mate of the fish above, 4 pounds even.

Mrs. Mathews, Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, Lake Jordan, reports: Mrs. B. A. Lane, Deatsville, caught a 1 pound 14 ounce White Perch with a live minnow.

Bear in mind this is the beginning of another month and another $10.00 cash merchandise certificate will be awarded some lucky angler. The winner of the month of April will be announced next week.

SOUTHERN BELL OFFERS PAY INCREASES TO NON-SUPERVISORY EMPLOYEES

Pay increases most of which will range from $3 to $6 a week, were offered today by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company for its non-supervisory employees.

C. D. Garner, Vice President for personnel, said the proposal, which conforms to the Government's Wage Stabilization Program, would add approximately $10,000,000 a year to the Company's labor costs and that the money to pay these and other increased costs would have to be obtained through increases in telephone rates.

In addition to the wage offer, the Company also proposed that the present agreement on working conditions be extended for one year.

The offer was made in the course of negotiations now going on between the Company and the communications workers of America-CIO. More than 45,000 employees in nine states served by the Southern Bell are represented by the Union.

According to the Company's proposal, the increased rates of pay would take effect on the first payroll period after expiration of the present contract between the union and the Company on next June 4th.

"The wage increases being offered," Mr. Garner said, "are in addition to the regularly scheduled progression increases which our employees receive until they reach the top rates for their jobs."

He said that increases in telephone rates are still lagging far behind increases in telephone wages.

"Including the present wage increase offer, the rate increases granted since 1939 are falling short by about $30,000,000 annually of covering the cost of wage increases over the same period. Mr. Garner described the wage increase offer as one that is fair to employees and customers alike. He said the Company must be guided in the negotiations by the interests of telephone users as well as telephone employees.

A statement by Mr. Garner follows:

"In today's bargaining session the Company presented an offer of wage increases most of which range from $3 to $6 a week. The increases proposed are in addition to the regularly scheduled progression increases which telephone employees receive until they reach the top rate for their jobs. The offer amounts to about $10,000,000 a year in additional labor costs to Southern Bell. It is made with full realization that such large extra costs cannot be absorbed without an increase in the telephone rates paid by our customers. Yet we are convinced the offer is justified."

"Since the last general wage increase to Southern Bell employees, there has been a rise in the cost of living and there has been a corresponding rise in pay scales. A survey just completed covering 4,000 firms employing 750,000 people shows there has been a general upward movement of wages in the South. It is clear that Southern Bell employees are entitled to an increase."

"It is Southern Bell's Policy to pay wage rates in line with those paid

RECEIVES HONOR AT HOWARD

Honors and Leadership Day was observed Wednesday on the Howard College campus as several hundred students and visitors gathered for the annual May ceremonies. The day's events included tapping ceremonies by the campus honor societies, recognition of students with high scholastic averages, awarding of Oscars to the best actor or actress of the year from all Howard College masquers, Exchange Club Scholastic Cup and the Sophomore Award, presented by Omicron Delta Kappa, Men's National Leadership Society.

Winner of the Exchange Cup was Ralph Slade with an average of 2.885. (3.000 is a perfect A average). The cup is awarded annually to the Senior having the highest scholastic record for four year's work. Students recognized for leading their classes scholastically thus far were:

Ralph Slade, Senior, Cynthia, Ky., 2.885; George Irons, Junior Class, Birmingham, 3.000; Anne Williams, Sophomore Class, Birmingham, 2.911; Frances Jo Neely, Freshman, Birmingham, 3.000.

Hypatia, the Women's Honor Society, chose eight girls. Members are chosen on the four fold basis of scholarship, leadership, character and promise of future usefulness.

other workers in the community having similar skills. But it is not just a matter of policy. If we failed to pay wages good enough to attract and keep high-type employees, we would be unable to provide service of the quality that the public has come to expect. In the public interest, Southern Bell has to pay good wages.

"The wage increase offer we have made plus other increased costs of doing business will require increased telephone rates. Increases in telephone rates are still lagging far behind increases in telephone wages. Taking into account, the present wage offer, the rate increases granted since 1939 are falling short by about $30,000,000 annually of covering the cost of wage increases over the same period. The money to pay employees' wages comes from telephone customers, and the customers' interests must be protected along with those of our employees. We must agree only to those increases that are justified and no more."

"Southern Bell has made this offer as one that is fair to employees and customers alike. In the negotiations now in progress we intend to be guided by the interests of telephone users as well as of telephone workers. We cannot overlook our responsibility to the public we serve."

electd 12 new members into its fold. Membership is based on a certain number of points from five fields of campus life: (1) religious and social affairs; (2) scholarship; (3) athletics; (4) speech, music and dramatic arts; (5) and publications.

Trident, Howard's Honor Society for men, tapped 10 upperclassmen. This is termed the highest honor one may receive at Howard. Members are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and esteem among students. Among those chosen was Arthur W. Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Dennis of Verhena Route One. Aside from being elected to Trident, Arthur is a charter member of the Howard College Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, Men's National Leadership Society.

Arthur is a Senior Physical Education Major. Upon graduation May 28th, he will enter the Graduate School of George Peabody College in Nashville where he will pursue work towards a master of arts degree in School Administration.

CONTROLLING WILT AND NEMATODES ON TOMATOES

Root-knot nematodes on tomato plants can be as destructive as wilt, and the general symptoms are much the same for both diseases.

"If plants are suffering from wilt," says J. C. Ford, API Extension Service garden specialist, "the stems of diseased plants will be found dark inside when split. If nematodes are causing the trouble, knots or galls will be found on the roots of unhealthy plants."

Ford reminds farmers that a box of soil from the woods is a good place to grow tomato plants. Also, a spot out in the field where tomatoes and peppers have not been grown for several years is a good place to set plants. The soil can be fumigated to reduce nematode damage.

SELECT GOOD LAND FOR WINTER GRAZING EARLY

The one thing that holds up planting of winter grazing more than anything else is the lack of a place to plant it at the proper time, believes D. R. Harbor, API Extension Service agronomist.

To avoid this mistake, he urges farmers to plan for winter grazing crops early. In other words, set aside early land to be planted to winter grazing crops in the late summer or early fall.

Harbor says that good land preparation, which includes farrowing, is essential for early seeding of crimson clover and regrass.

Two places where winter grazing can be seeded early on prepared land is to let follow small grains or winter legumes harvested for seed or used for grazing. Idle land, of course, can be prepared on time.

Harbor agrees that it is impossible to grow such crops as corn, cotton, and peanuts on a field and then remove these crops early enough to seed winter grazing on time.

POULTRY PRICES MORE FAVORABLE

Prices paid for poultry feed and prices received for eggs have been more favorable to poultrymen for the past few months than during the same time a year ago.

As shown by the Crop Reporting Service, Alabama farmers received an average of 41.4 cents per dozen for eggs on April 15 this year compared to 31.4 cents per dozen at this time a year ago. Laying mash that cost $5 in mid-April of 1950 advanced to $5.50 this year.

"These more favorable prices for eggs and for feed indicate the high demand for eggs," points out A. W. Jones, API Extension Service Marketing specialist.

Poppies Arrive At

Legion Home—
Poppies which everyone in Clanton will be asked to wear in honor of America's war dead on Poppy Day, May 26th, have arrived at the American Legion Home from the Veterans' Hospital in Montgomery, where they were made by disabled war veterans.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary were busy today counting and sorting the little red flowers in preparation for Poppy Day. Baskets in which the volunteer workers will carry the flowers and the coin containers, in which they will receive contributions, were being made ready. The work was being directed by Mrs. Lew H. Headley, Auxiliary Poppy Chairman.

"The poppies are crepe-paper replicas of the wild poppies which bloom between the crosses, row on row, in the war cemeteries in France and Belgium," Mrs. Headley explained. Each one has been shaped by hand by some veteran of the Veterans' Hospital. Each one is slightly different, but each carries the same message, "Honor the dead and aid the disabled."

We are getting the flowers ready for the volunteer workers from the Auxiliary and cooperating organizations who will distribute them on the streets on Poppy Day. We hope that every one will be proud to wear a poppy given their lives for our country, and this year in tribute to those who have will contribute as generously as they can for the welfare of the disabled veterans and needy children of the veterans.

"Since all Auxiliary workers are unpaid, the entire amount of the contributions they collect on Poppy Day goes into the funds which support Legion and Auxiliary activities for disabled veterans and for child welfare. Most of the money will remain in our local funds to aid local veterans and their families during the coming year."

Presents Program—

The Better Speech Club, which consists of the members of Mrs. Curry Thomas's Sixth Grade of the Clanton Elementary School, presented a delightful Mother's Day Program last Friday, May 11th, in their classroom.

The parents and friends of the club were met at the door by the host and hostess and given a lovely corsage and a program.

They were ushered to a seat in the rear of the room and as they waited for the program to begin, they listened to recordings, "Songs My Mother Taught Me."

The president of the club, Linda Wade, gave the welcoming remarks. The theme class sang, "Welcome Mothers." One group gave a devotional message from Proverbs, the 31st chapter and another group gave the 23rd Psalm after which a prayer was given by Betty Sue Bolton.

There were a number of tributes in verse and song given by the club members. Some of the tributes were from famous authors, but a number of the poems were original, written by the boys and girls as a tribute to their own mothers.

The conclusion of the program was a "Ritual"—a group of boys and girls formed a semi-circle around the teachers' desks which had been covered with green ivy and red roses with five tall red candles in the center. As each gave his tribute he lighted a candle. Those members of the Club who had a special part in this program included: Linda Wade, Betty Sue Bolton, Charles Jones, Carolyn Tucker, Marie Wesson and Patsy Barnette. MORE MILK FROM BETTER PASTURES THIS SUMMER

Last year the average milk production per cow on D.H.I.A. test in Alabama was 4,756 pounds.

"The question which immediately arises is whether or not this level of production is high enough for a milking herd to be profitable," admits Pete Turnham, API Extension Service dairy specialist.

He states that cows produce according to their inherited ability, their stage of lactation, and the kind and amount of feed they eat. Oftentimes, however, cows are underfed in the summer months when pastures get dry and the grasses and legumes get tough. A cow can eat enough grass in the spring and early summer to take care of her production, but it is believed that much improvement could be done on pastures in middle to late summer months.

Turnham adds that now is a good time to make plans for controlled grazing or perhaps irrigation during periods of drought in order to try to keep milk production as high as possible.

MILK SUBSTITUTES FOR CALVES

Alabama dairy farmers fed more than 600,000 quarts of milk to calves last year. Much of this milk could have been saved if portable pens had been used and calves changed over to milk substitutes at one to three months of age.

Baptist Notes—

I think it is the consensus of our church family that we are highly pleased with the response as to the number in Sunday School and B.T.U. last Sunday. Much time, interest and service was given toward reaching the desired objective and we are deeply conscious of the fact that persons are never defeated until they are defeated inside; therefore, we challenge the continued interest of our church in that we invest more time, thought, talent and prayer to the reaching of these objectives the first Sunday in June.

The church in conference Wednesday evening elected Bro. Raymond Cobb as BTU Director, successor to Bro. William Hicks, and Bro. Horn as associate. We are highly pleased with this decision and feel that the B.T.U. will continue to go forward in a great way.

It is the opinion of some members in our church that a committee be appointed to work out a program for at least two Sundays while the minister is away on his vacation and also attending the Southern Baptist Convention in San Francisco. The following are asked to serve as a committee to begin planning for these services: Mr. Delbert Collins, Mrs. H. W. Reinhardt, Mr. Raymond Cobb, Mrs. A. L. Collins and Mr. Emmett Billingsley.

The Vacation Bible School clinic at Liberty Hill Tuesday night failed to function according to plans due to the absence of the State Leader who was to direct the clinic; however, this will not greatly affect the opportunity of our church in Vacation Bible School work due to the fact that we have many who are versed and experienced in this type of work. Bro. Merchant is on the lookout for Director and Departmental Superintendents.

Choir practice Friday night at 7:00. We regret to report that our chorister has been ill but happy that he is much improved. Bro. Billingsley has been greatly encouraged the last few nights of practice by those who came for that purpose.

Mrs. James Headley and children of Birmingham visited her parents last week end, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raybon. Mrs. W. M. Benson, Mrs. Estelle Hayes, Paula Margaret Hayes and Mary Ogburn attended the church supper at Collins Chapel last Thursday night.

Miss Margaret Ward of Birmingham spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Sam Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Kendrick of Birmingham visited relatives Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. L. M. Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Robinson visited her son, Leander M. Jackson, Jr., at the Veterans' Hospital in Tuscaloosa recently.

Mrs. R. I. Thompson returned home Saturday and her condition is much improved. Mrs. Thompson has been in the Jefferson Hospital in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Smith spent Saturday in Birmingham.

Mr. Wendall Hayes of Mobile visited his parents over the week end. Mrs. Henderson Hayes of Birmingham and Mrs. Fred Sims of Calera, spent Saturday with her mother and grandmother, Mrs. G. S. Burnett, and children.

Miss Jackie Sue Davis of Collins Chapel spent the week end with her grandmother, Mrs. W. M. Benson.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Smith enjoyed a visit Sunday from relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Martin and children of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martin of Wetumpka; Mrs. Mae Martin and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Bean of Thorsby.

Mrs. Jeff Cargile returned home Sunday from the hospital in Montgomery.

Telephone Dream Realized—

On May 12th dreams and plans for the past five years were consummated of the Hon. W. J. Patrick, Mayor of Thorsby, placed the first call over Thorsby's new telephone system.

The citizens clubs and organizations of Thorsby filled the telephone office with baskets and pots of flowers and called all during the day in appreciation of the completion of this job well done. Thorsby now has the newest dial telephone system anywhere in the country. As many as ten phones (though we do not have that many on one line) on the same party line can enjoy the new harmonic ringing without ringing any two phones. Only the one dial will ring.

As time permits the company will install new phones throughout the town and surrounding communities.

Mr. Wilmer Lacey is the maintenance man and Mrs. Mable Thompson will be in the office three days each week to take care of the local business.

Last but not least Thorsby people are deeply grateful to the one man mostly responsible for this modern convenience, Mr. E. L. Robinson, whose home is in Wetumpka, but whose business interest is to a great extent in our town, Thorsby. Mr. Robinson is manager of the Thorsby Telephone Company and is a hustling fine young business man, who with his young wife, have endeared themselves to the many people in and around Thorsby who have had the pleasure of meeting and dealing with them.

Mrs. Grover Bice and Mrs. Carl McDowell made a business trip to Birmingham last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Bice of Clanton were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Wilson are the proud parents of a 8½ pound boy Sunday, May 13th. They are in the West End Baptist Hospital in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. DuBoise and son, Raymond, of Sheffield, Ala., Mrs. Tommie Ellen Sorenson, Wesley, Connie and Terry, of Jemison, were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Conway.

Mrs. Roy Kendrick spent the week end visiting friends and relatives in Birmingham.

Chilton County Dry Meeting—

There will be a meeting of the Chilton County Drys on May 26th at 2:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Clanton. The nominating committee that was appointed at the last temperance rally is now ready to make their recommendations as to the election of the president and vice president, secretary and treasurer.

All pastors, Sunday School Superintendents and leaders of all the organizations of any or all the churches of all denominations in Chilton County are instantly urged to attend this meeting, that they may have a voice in organizing the temperance forces of this County.

The board of directors of the Alabama Temperance Alliance has chosen Rev. B. B. Burks of Thorsby as Vice President of the State Organization. The chairman of the committee whose duty it will be to organize every County in the State of Alabama. If we are to win which we will, if given an opportunity to vote on this question in the State, we must have a good organization well directed in every county.

Mr. James Bosworth, Leonard Bosworth and Mrs. A. E. Reagan spent Sunday in Birmingham visiting with Mrs. Bosworth and other relatives.

Mrs. Bosworth is convalescing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Ross in Fairfield, Ala., and is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Akins I. Collins, accompanied by Mrs. Irene Peterson, Miss Helen Jenkins and Miss Naomi Turquist, attended a Senior Voice Recital at Calkins Hall at Alabama College on last Saturday night, when Miss Dorothy Wells, Soprano, was presented in a recital, accompanied on the piano by Miss Mary Frances Collins, talented young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Akins I. Collins. After the recital they attended a reception at Reynolds Hall, honoring the two musicians. It was a most enjoyable affair for all those who attended.

Mr. James Bosworth wishes to thank her friends for the many cards, flowers and gifts received while she was confined to the hospital. Being so well remembered made her very happy, and she wishes to say, "thanks a million" to all.

We would like to express our sympathy to the Primm and Raybon families in the Home-going of their mother, Mrs. Martha Primm. May the Lord be with them in this sad hour.

COTTON

The first cotton factory in Alabama was built by Horatio Jones and Co. in Madison County. This first factory did not make cloth but spun cotton into a yarn. The first cotton mill in the State to make cotton cloth was built in 1832 near Huntsville, and the first gin factory was built in 1833 by Daniel Pratt in Autauga County. Today, huge mills press oil out of the cotton seed which in the early days brought very little return to the farmers.

Clanton Kiwanis Sponsors Hearing Testing Program

Clanton Kiwanians get a genuine pleasure out of the knowledge that they have been the main supporter of an extensive hearing-testing program being conducted in Clanton schools and other schools in Chilton County.

The 1949 Underprivileged Children's Committee, under the chairmanship of Watson Yeager, conceived the idea. Watson, being a school man, became convinced that many of the failures in our public schools could be contributed to the fact that many of the boys and girls could not hear as they should. On his committee was Burke Allison, who had been handicapped with the same difficulty. These two began to talk up the idea of purchasing equipment and sponsoring the testing program in the county schools, which includes the schools of Clanton. Their suggestion was received with enthusiasm, not only by the Board of Directors, but with every member of the club.

Burke Allison was appointed as chairman of this important committee for 1950, chiefly on the basis of his untiring interest in this project. The club sent out invitations to P.T.A. organizations over the county to help in the purchase of equipment. This was done for the purpose of creating an interest among these groups in the project. Several of them helped. The local Board of Education assisted in the purchase and also arranged for operation of the equipment. The ultimate result was that the Chilton County Board of Education has in operation equipment worth $714.70.

The results of this project have been very gratifying. By the end of the 1950-51 school term, approximately 3,500 school children and teachers will have been screened. When the hearing of a child is found to be defective, his parents are notified and urged to consult a specialist. The Kiwanis Club and other organizations are already discussing means whereby help can be given indigent families in remedying defective hearing among their children. Two trained workers are used in operating the equipment in the schools. After tests are made, the results are shown to teachers to be used in making adjustments to the advantage of pupils with defective hearing. Next year the program will continue with special emphasis on beginners, those found defective this year, and those whom the teacher feels should be checked. Clanton Kiwanians have definitely

Clanton Chapter Joins National Chamber of Commerce

Businessmen in Clanton have teamed with 1,300,000 others throughout the nation to work for good citizenship, good government and good business.

By joining the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Clanton Chamber takes its place with more than 2,600 chambers and some 500 trade associations in an organization which wields powerful influence in national affairs, and which will bring to Clanton the advantages of pooled information, ideas and advice about improving the local community.

In the National Chamber, American businessmen work as a team. They work on the theory that business cannot flourish and expand, and conditions cannot improve in one area or one field, if the country as a whole is not strong, productive and prosperous, and if business in general is not free to advance.

The future of Clanton, therefore, becomes a matter of concern to businessmen all over the country. At the same time, local businessmen obtain a voice in framing policies which guide the national organization as it copes with the urgent and complex problems of these troubled times.

Nearly forty years ago, a Senator arose in the Capitol to make a speech. In his hand he held two telegrams. One was from a chamber of commerce in the eastern end of his state. It asked him to support a pending bill. The other was from the western end. It asked him to oppose the bill.

"I don't know," said the Senator, "whether this is a good bill or not. I am not well informed about the subject. I asked the two largest chambers of commerce in my state for their views, and these two telegrams are my answer."

"What does business think? I wish I knew, and I am sure that the rest of you here in the Senate would like to know, because the bill you have before you is of the utmost importance to business."

Business leadership throughout the country had long felt the need of an instrument to coordinate and give public expression to business opinion. A small group had been working quietly with the thought that a national businessmen's organization could be formed to accomplish the purposes sought.

In the summer of 1912, at the request of this group, President Taft called a meeting in Washington of local chamber of commerce representatives. Thus, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States came into being. Its beginnings were small, but as businessmen in cities and towns over the nation came to know its work the membership grew. The bulk of the country's trade associations came into the membership so as to give voice to specific industries. The local chambers gave representation to business geographically and to civic interests as represented in the activities of local chambers.

Today, the Clanton Chamber is a part of this far flung fabric of business representation—big and little—which might be called the nation's "business front."

The National Chamber interprets to government the considered views of business on issues of national importance, and in turn interprets to its business membership the moves of the legislative and administrative branches of government. It has helped to create within local chambers of commerce more than 2,400 committees on national affairs which conduct continuous campaigns for more efficient government.

At all times, the national organization is ready to survey business opinion in the interest of applying business experience for the solution of economic problems. That function has been welcomed by public representatives in the nation's capital, who know that businessmen conduct their operations with the knowledge that the public welfare must at all times be safeguarded.

An early president of the National Chamber, asked to suggest a slogan for the organization, without hesitation responded:

"If it is not in the public interest it is not in the interest of business."

COUNTY FARMERS RECEIVE 260,000 PEPPER PLANTS

Last week 33 Chilton County farmers received approximately 260,000 pimiento pepper plants. Peppers will be grown in 36 result demonstrations.

Pepper projects are being developed in cooperation with management of King Pharr Canning Operations, Selma, Ala. All peppers that meet size and grade qualifications are sold under growers and canners agreement at a specified price.

Pimiento pepper is a cash crop that goes to market principally in August and September. This is a low-income period in most Chilton County farming operations. Seventeen projects in ten different Chilton County communities in 1950 paid attractive net returns.

Demonstrations to further prove the adaptability of this crop are being conducted by:

Clyde Headley, John B. Derasmus, Jack Friday, Morris Popwell, E. H. Bowles, W. O. Huet, G. W. Nelson, Bentley Farns, James Darby, G. U. Mims, E. V. Mims, J. O. Baker, Dolle Vinson, Ralph Mims, A. D. Thrash, Ivan Marler, Chilton Area Horticulture Substation, Ranie Jones, James Albert Nelson, Kenneth Cox, R. P. Kendrick, Hester Howell, T. T. Raspberry, C. A. Mims, Richard Lee Gill, Euell A. Killingsworth, G. E. Sansom, H. L. Bruce, George Parker, R. M. Foshee and Glen Mims.

Pimiento pepper has the possibility of helping Chilton County farmers fill a late summer and fall gap in income and can help truck crop farmers more nearly realize year-round income.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT

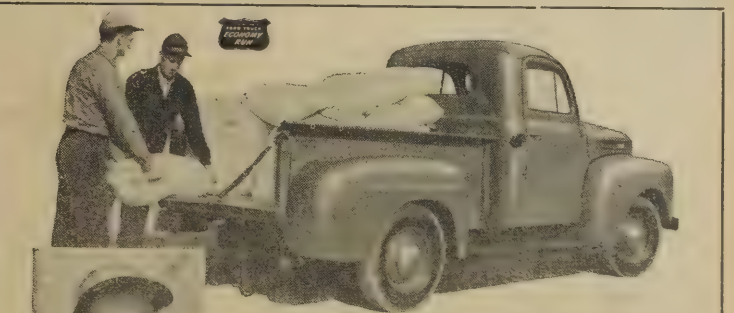

Montgomery, Ala. — The 6,863 Alabama deaths from all causes reported during the last three months of 1950 included 54 occurring in Chilton County. The announcement was made by the State Department of Health.

The State Health Department's announcement pointed out that it was based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

Alabama's Negro birth rate exceeded the white rate during the last three months of last year by more than 28 per cent.

The State Department of Health announced the rates for both white people and Negroes today. The white rate was 25.2 per 1,000 population. The Negro rate was given as 32.4 per 1,000 population. The rate for the two races combined was 27.6 per 1,000 population. All rates were on an annual basis. That is, the rates given are those that would be found to exist if births occurred throughout the year at the same rate as in October, November and December.

The State Health Department's announcement was based upon provisional reports prepared by its Bureau of Vital Statistics. They may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

"We haul feed for 14½¢ a mile!"

"I am sold on the Power Pilot economy of Ford Trucks," says the manager of Eglantine Farms...

"The performance of our Ford F-1 Pickup far surpassed our expectations," reads the statement from Eglantine Farm & Feed Service. "The Ford Truck Power Pilot gives us more power from less gas." Eglantine Farms operate eight Ford Trucks, two trucks of another make.

Their Economy Run records show that in 12,994 miles of the run, the F-1 Pickup hauled an average load of 1,039 lbs., had no repairs, cost them a total of $233.65 for gas, oil and maintenance (they got regular service from their Ford Dealer). Result—a running cost of only 14½¢ a mile!

It is therefore Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed, that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title, or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 29th day of May, 1951, and that failure to do so, their said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Ordered and Decreed, this the 8th day of May, 1951.

Voting In Baby Competition-

pion over the ones who only complete one club, when the day of reckoning arrives.

You need not hold your subscriptions until they reach the amount of your club. Send them in as you secure them, a careful record will be kept here and when they reach the amount of your club a certificate for the 25,000 bonus votes will be sent you—this is especially true if the subscriptions should be new ones; then they will not miss a copy.

The voting has started to perk up a bit and the active ones are keeping pretty well together. Naturally, no one wants to see their sweatshirt falling much behind the leaders, but at the same time, they are starting to accumulate a fund of votes for the final week; we rather encourage this. The time the votes are really going to count something will be on the last day of the contest, when you have accumulated to drop in the ballot box the final day, the greater your chance for victory. No one will have any idea who the leading Baby is at that time. This is for your protection and safety; these prizes are a reward for personality and effort—that's the way it should be, and will be, until the end of the campaign.

Be sure and make this $10.00 club! We know anyone who is very much concerned, will have no trouble in making at least one club and when you complete it, you will have the satisfaction of knowing your chances for final victory will be equal to any other in the race.

You will notice a considerable reduction has been made in the number of candidates remaining in the contest. This has been brought about by eliminating all the little ones for whom no votes have been received at all. Next week, there will be a further reduction by dropping all the babies for whom no subscriptions have been received up to that time.

It should be evident to all, that simply clipping coupons from our newspaper would never be sufficient to win any prizes; the help, of course, but some little work must be done along subscription lines if the baby is to be successful. Our subscribers are all around you and will be glad to give you their renewal if you solicit them. Love and affection for a little child is one of humanities greatest attributes and we all get an extra lift doing the graceful little acts that add to their happiness and well-being.

We are short a number of pictures of little ones for whom considerable interest has been shown and we hope we get a good, plain one soon, so we can have engravings made from it. We will treat them with special care and return the picture when we receive it back from the engraver.

Pick out the prize you want to pull down for your baby, then get busy; it's as simple as that: your little pride and joy is worth it, surely.

Twenty Thousand Bonus Given In Our Great Baby Campaign

This Is The Last Clubbing Offer That Will Be Made:
Be Sure And Make It

THE PRIZES:

First Prize	$125.00
Second Prize	75.00
Third Prize	50.00
Fourth Prize	25.00
Fifth Prize	15.00
Sixth Prize	10.00

Given On All Clubs of $8.00 Worth Of Subscriptions Turned In The Office By June 7th

The Club offer just finished seems to have been a popular one for all workers. This evident fact induces us to make another club offer. Here it is—

Beginning immediately and good until June 7th, we will give a bonus of $20.00 extra votes on all clubs of $8.00 worth of subscriptions turned in during this time. As in the previous offer, both old and new subscriptions will count in the make-up of the club. It is the same as the previous club with the exception that you will have to turn in $8.00 worth and the bonus will be $20.00 instead of $25.00 as in the other club.

At the end of this $20.00 bonus offer we will be standing on the threshold of the last and final period of the contest. This is the last clubbing offer that will be made, so you can all readily understand how very important it is not to miss securing these $20.00 extra votes which could spell the difference between success and failure.

Several of our workers have complained that collecting the coupon ballots, good for 25 votes, takes up too much time, time which used in the getting of a subscription would benefit the baby's chances immeasurably more. We can readily understand the virtue of this complaint and wanting to cooperate in every way possible, we gladly comply with their wishes and have dropped the coupon ballot from our paper and it will appear no more. Now whatever time you have to devote to the baby's interest in this affair, you can apply it on subscription getting. Now that we think of it, one subscription secured, with the bonus applying on it will give the baby more votes than could be collected via the coupon route in a month.

Nothing particular exciting in the voting this week, most of the little contestants are keeping pretty well together. They are evidently trying to pile up a reserve supply of votes for the last day, but at the same time, they are not allowing any particular one to make a run-away race of it. This is a very logical view to take, not letting the others know the number of votes they have. We rather encourage this, as it is at once your safety and your protection. This avoids any possible plunging the last day, that's as it should be, and will be, until the end.

So, altogether now, make this last club offer the most profitable in votes of all; if you have a balance from the other club, you can apply it to this one.

SUSAN SPEAKS

Here Is Where A Lot Of Your Tax Money Goes.

Modern Road Building Is Expensive

Approximately one and a half million dollars were spent in Chilton County during the Folsom Administration on public roads. The figures come from the State Highway Department and to be exact, taking into account County, State and Federal money, the figure is: $1,459,089.42. That is more money than has been spent in Chilton County for roads, etc., in any like period in the county's history. A substantial portion of this money was from county funds.

Besides spending more money for roads than has ever been spent before in this county, during the Folsom administration $85,000.00 was spent in this county for the state experiment station, plus $12,000.00 annually for its maintenance. Too, $35,000.00 was spent on an armory. This came from the federal government, it is true, but was through the efforts of the State Adjutant General James Saliba.

U. S. Highway 31 was widened thru Thorsby at a cost of $40,000.00 and thru Clanton at a cost of $17,000.00.

Chilton County paid to the State Highway Department $35,000.00 for taking under its supervision the new highway between Maplesville and Jemison. Then the State spent $65,000.00 more in completing the highway.

The construction work now being done south of Clanton on U. S. 31 was planned during the last administration as was the new bridge across the L. & N. tracks below Verbena. Work was also planned for the highway to be straightened out north of Calaca and a bridge constructed across the train. Both of the bridges were death traps and constantly endangered the lives of the motoring public.

During the present County administration more than a half-million dollars has been spent on highway construction and maintenance. This amount is a part of the grand total shown in the total highway construction. Of the FACP funds of more than $350,000 accrued for Chilton County $294,100 have already been obligated leaving only $55,000 accrued funds unobligated.

A shooting on the Coosa River near here, last Friday afternoon sent Milton Smitherman to Central Alabama Hospital suffering from gun shot wounds in the abdomen.

The argument between Milton Smitherman and Harvey Traywick is reported to have been over whether or not boats would be placed in the river at the mouth of Yellowleaf Creek.

The Sheriff's office investigated and placed Traywick in the county jail charged with assault with intent to murder. Martin's ambulance answered the call and brought the wounded man to the hospital.

WIDENED MEMORIAL DAY HORIZONS

A GRIM REMINDER

A grim reminder of what could happen to you, or anyone who is not careful in their driving these days, is the 1941 model car on the Ford Used Car Lot across from the Southern Bell Office.

A Pinson, Alabama, resident was killed in the wreck Friday night and you who take your driving responsibility lightly should drive by the lot and see what can happen. In this instance it appears an irresistible force met an immovable object.

BIGGEST SUFFERER

Folks in Clanton who are prone to suffer from hay fever are having a hard time these days. What with dust, dust, everywhere from the many improvements that we are enjoying (?) and the dry, dry, weather, several of our worst sufferers are about ready to holler "uncle." The widening of U. S. 31 keeps a cloud of dust hanging over that part of the county through which the highway traverses, traffic being what it is on that piece of road these days.

But, the game is worth the candle, so if the nose drops and the capsules hold out we'll all enjoy a much improved piece of highway through our community in the near future.

MY TOWN

"My town is the place where my home is founded, where my business is situated and where my vote is cast; where my children are educated, where my neighbors dwell and where my life is chiefly lived. It is the home spot for me."

"My town has the right of my civic loyalty. It supports me and I should support it. My town wants my citizenship, not my partisanship; my friendliness, not my dissension; my sympathy, not my criticism; my intelligence, not my indifference. My town supplies me with protection, trade, friends, education, schools, churches, and the right to free moral American citizenship."

"It has some things that are better than others; the best things I should seek to make better, the worst things I should help to reduce."

"Take it all-in-all, it is my town, and it is entitled to the best there is in me."

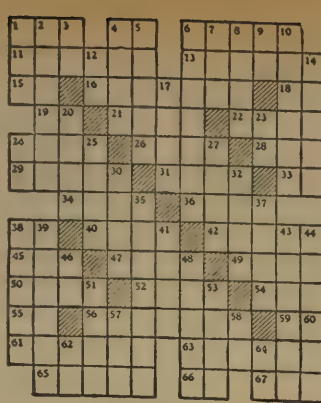

A bird feeder can be made cat-proof by mounting garbage can lid on post, as shown. This also keeps squirrels from stealing grains from feeder.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Clanton Lions are working hard for a bigger and better Horse Show this year. The show will be held in July and the various committees are hard at work. The hardest working committee at present is the advertising committee. Eric Ellis is Chairman. They're asking the cooperation of all you businessmen in the show this year and to make it the best little Horse Show in Alabama, they'll have to have it. The Clanton Horse Show will be the biggest attraction in Chilton County this year.

John M. Higgins has been named Civil Defense coordinator for this county according to H. M. Gaustad of the State Civil Defense Department, who visited the office of the News last Friday with Probate Judge W. L. Parrish. They were busily engaged in perfecting the county civil defense set-up.

Speaking of Civil Defense in our county, we learned from Mr. Gaustad that the Dams on the Coosa are not considered as prime targets of the enemy, should attack on our country occur. Our big job would be in aiding stricken areas such as Birmingham or Montgomery who had been attacked. According to Mr. Gaustad, the cost of the atomic bomb is prohibitive for such bombing as dams as the damage wrought is not sufficient in comparison to the cost of making the bomb.

And that suits us right down to the dam.

A good friend of ours, (and a Republican) made the statement the other day that he thought something was going with our county money, you couldn't see where any was being spent on roads and such. Just in case you don't read the feature article elsewhere in this issue we are going to point out that during the Folsom Administration there was $1,459,069.42 spent in Chilton County on Highways, farm to market roads, the experiment station, etc. One and a half million dollars ain't hay.

Gabby Tiffin wants more people to turn out to the baseball games. He says there aren't enough fans who attend to pay the expenses. That sounds bad when the home team is doing practically all the winning. We believe he told us the home team had won five out of six games played this year. Too, Gabby says things will get even hotter now. The boys out of school will be able to play the rest of the season and accordingly they will add just that much more strength to the team. Watch the front page each week for the time, place, and teams, for the coming week. Then make plans to go and root for the home team. Tell you what: We'll meet you there.

Truman Luker, who left here a little over a year ago to go to Tuscaloosa, is back in business here. Truman says he came to Clanton and had just about the worst location he could have and when he left he had the best location you could have. He sold out to Amon Jones, you know. Truman is doing all kinds of floor covering work and venetian blind work now. He hasn't found a location yet but he is going ahead with his work at his home. He says all his customers get personal service because he oversees it all himself and he has had years of experience in this type work. We're glad to welcome Truman back into the business life of Clanton. He and all the Lukers.

Ewart Corley has made Joseph Stal-in very unhappy. Stalin can now add another capitalist to his list—Ewart has become a capitalist. He went back to the Selma Times Journal at Selma, worked two weeks, and retired. He can be seen daily on the streets of Clanton where he toils not, neither does he spin—did we say spin? Anyway, Ewart is happy only when he's in Clanton. He's happy.

LEUKEMIA

Leukemia, frequently referred to as "cancer of the blood," is one of the fatal diseases of the blood. It causes more than 6,000 deaths a year in the United States. That means that leukemia kills five times as many persons as infantile paralysis, almost as many as appendicitis and one and a half times the combined total of measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria.

The cause of leukemia is not known. Symptoms include a sudden fever, extreme prostration and a general weariness. There may be bleeding from the gums and nose, rapid heart beat and a decided pallor. In children, early symptoms include pain in the arms, legs and joints. The spleen, an organ involved in all activities related to the blood, enlarges in leukemia and the bone marrow shows changes.

Twenty-five years ago leukemia was considered rare. Perhaps the present increase is more relative than real because the reporting of deaths by specified causes has become qualified to diagnose leukemia and are more alert to recognize it. Improved laboratory techniques for blood testing have helped discover cases.

Much research is under way on the cause and treatment of leukemia. In many cases temporary help is given through blood transfusions, x-ray irradiation of the spleen and certain arsenic preparations taken by mouth. Colchicine is used with some benefit in prolonging the life of the patient. X-rays, however, cannot always be used, particularly in persons with acute leukemia. The disease is practically always fatal and treatment at present does little more than stave off the end and keep the patient comfortable.

Thus it is for conditions such as leukemia, the causes and treatment of which are not known, that research must continue. Among the groups sponsoring a splendid program of research through animal experimentation is the National Society for Medical Research, members of which are now carrying on research in various medical schools and laboratories throughout the country.

To make smooth starch quickly, put starch in a pint jar, add a small amount of water, and shake well. Let stand a few moments and shake again. Pour in boiling water, stirring constantly. You'll have no more lumpy starch worries.

There is much to appreciate about a daily newspaper, published in the larger city; but aren't there many things for which we can be thankful and appreciate in our own county paper?

It brings to us such interesting local news that we never would know otherwise. The happenings all around us that never find their way into the Associated Press, nor the big daily newspaper. Some of the things we are the most interested in never are published in

A. T. HICKMAN the big daily news; but once a week we can look forward to seeing local announcements of keen interest; local social happenings. And then the local merchants tell us what they have to sell that will meet our shopping need, which saves, not only money in price, but hours of time that would be required in going to the larger far-off city.

In our county paper we learn who got married last week. We learn who were blessed with new baby boys to them. Just where our neighbors were last week end, and where Bill and Sally ate dinner last Sunday; and how many fish Peter, James and John caught last Wednesday afternoon. In our county paper we learn what the local Clubs are doing for the betterment of our community; and what the preachers and churches are doing in making our home county a better place in which to live. We learn of the death of the people we know, and those others are again among neighbors and friends. We learn about local politics in our own county paper, who will be running for such and such an office; and who will be our next go and so.

No one is left out of the news in our county paper. The babies are mentioned; the "Shut-Ins" are given their part of the publicity. The "kids" have their birthday parties, and we know all about such before and after by reading the county paper. The young people have their part in the county news. The people who stay home, and those who "gad about" are all mentioned in the county paper, and the birthdays of the young and old. The all-day meetings with the dinner on the ground, announcements of the protracted meetings, the all-day singings, O, just a hundred and one things which goes to make news for our county paper, and make it all worthwhile.

Subscribe for a friend today. Send him a copy of your county paper across the land and sea. The old timer will appreciate hearing from the old friends of yesterday. Hats off to our home-town papers. — Hickman.

Prayer Gives Mental Strength

ON MY DESK is a touching and inspiring letter from Molly Rael, Los Angeles, Calif. When Molly was a little girl of 11, her mother was suddenly taken away. Although Molly was one of nine children, her mother had carried the tremendous burden almost single-handed, and Molly had never realized the responsibilities of a home until now.

But at that early age, she had to do most of the cooking and housekeeping. Her sisters and brothers, all older than she, were either in college or working at jobs. This left only Molly to take care of her mother, in addition to the other work.

After two weeks, her mother was ordered to the hospital. Molly watched the nurses place her mother on a stretcher and take her out of the house. She felt as if her heart within her had turned to stone; she never expected to see her beloved mother come home again. She couldn't talk; she couldn't cry.

That evening when her brothers and sisters came home, they found their home a dismal place, such as it never before had been. There was little conversation to penetrate the gloom. Suddenly one of her brothers suggested that all of them stay up during the night and pray for their mother's recovery. All agreed. They decided to keep busy at something so they wouldn't fall asleep, but never to stop praying even for one minute. All of them knew there was little hope for their mother; knew that the doctors did not expect her to live. That was a night never to be forgotten by the young members of that family.

The next morning nine young people were heartened as if by a miracle. The doctor called them to say that their mother had opened her eyes, a sign of returning strength which he had not expected. Three weeks later she was at home again, on the road to recovery.

Molly says she knows more people have recovered from severe illnesses with no prayer said over them, but nothing will ever make her believe that their prayers didn't help. Even if they had not, their faith and their keeping themselves busy, freed them from worry and gave them the necessary spiritual and mental strength to face their trial.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, W. Va.: Do you remember when mantels were artistically draped with fancy diaphanous strips of material called "lambrequins"?

From Bessie Williams, Decatur, Ill.: I remember my mother cleaning house on Saturday by moving all the furniture out on the porch while she gave the front room a good sweeping by putting wet papers on the floor.

From Mrs. Ida Combs, Gilboa, Ohio: I remember when we didn't have electric lights. My dad would go to the woods and get pine and he would make the pine lights for him to do things. And the tar would run down on our hands and burn us. I was married in 1900 and never saw an orange until after my first child was born.

From Mrs. W. E. Messner, Overland Park, Kans.: I remember when we went to school in a one-room white frame schoolhouse with outdoor rest rooms and wood and coal shed, with a big old heating stove at the back of the room, and when there was any night entertainments at the schoolhouse, there were coal oil lamps hanging from the walls for lighting the room, and for the curtains on the "stee" there was a wire stretched across the front end of the room, with sheets pinned to the wire with big safety pins so that they would slide back and forth on the wire to open or close the curtains.

From Emma Funk, Munster, Ind.: I remember when we would save the comings of our hair and made pictures of flowers framed and watch chains, also real hair for dolls. Wonder why we don't save and sell comings now?

SAFETY TIPS

Exposed chains, sprockets, gears, pulleys, belts, and shafts are among the hazards that not only cause injuries but sometimes cost a farmer his life.

GROWING BROILERS

Farmers who use deep litter, automatic water fountains, plenty of big feed hoppers, and in some cases automatic feeders and feed carriers are the boys who get most from their hours of labor.

HONEY PRODUCTION

Don't wait until all supers are filled with honey before putting in others. Empty supers should not be placed on top of supers that have been filled, but under the full ones near the brood chamber.

ALFALFA

Avoid heavy continuous grazing which results in quick death of a good alfalfa crop.

SCREWWORMS

The screwworm may not show up in Alabama until late summer. But at the same time catfishmen are cautioned to be watchful and careful. The screwworm cost Alabama farmers several million dollars last year. Animals moved here from further south could easily introduce the pest at anytime.

Make a handy box by fastening casters to the corners of a fruit lug. It can be used for hauling the clothes basket to and from the line. Add screendoor handles to the sides, and it becomes a play wagon for small tots. Tie a rope to the handle, and you can haul a scrub bucket and cleaning supplies from room to room. Or store seldom-used articles in the handy box, under a bed or shelf.

This community was quite upset for several hours last week when the news of the disappearance of Zettie Sanders was reported.

Zettie is with the Forestry Division and had gone into the National Forest near here alone just after noon last Tuesday. He did not return home that night and an alarm was sent out. People hunted throughout the night and were unable to find any trace of Zettie or his government truck.

Just about noon the following day—J. D. Gay and Ed Lovelady, both forestry men, had joined the hunt and located the truck and Zettie out there in the woods. Zettie, it is reported, had blacked out around 3:00 p.m. the afternoon before and did not regain consciousness until he heard the men call his name. They brought him to his home in Plantersville and his family rushed him to a Selma hospital. The doctors in Selma advised his family that they could not locate the cause of the black-out and advised them to carry Zettie to Birmingham to a specialist. He was carried to Birmingham last Friday. Mrs. Sanders accompanied him. The Birmingham doctors state they are unable to locate his trouble. Mrs. Sanders returned to her home Sunday and stated that Zettie was much improved, however, he still remains in the hospital there.

OFFICE OF PRICE STABILIZATION

Montgomery, Ala. — Retail business firms in Chilton County that offer "services" subject to price control are required to post their ceiling prices by June 15, the district director of the Office of Price Stabilization said today.

"Service establishments covered by price control laws include barbers, dry cleaning, shoe repair shops, filling stations, painting, carpentry, plumbing and others," OPS Director Charles G. Dobbins said.

"The filing and posting of prices is required by Ceiling Price Regulation 34," the director said.

This regulation removes most services from the general price "freeze" and puts them under a special fair-market regulation.

Each firm covered by the regulation should file its ceiling prices with the Montgomery district office not later than June 15.

In general, prices for services are set at the highest price a service was sold for during the period between December 19 and January 25.

Other services covered by the regulation include tailor shops, beauty salons, parking lots, checking account services offered by banks, paper hanging, auto and radio repairs. Also, admission prices to the following: amusement parks, bowling alleys, skating rinks, and golf courses.

Among the few services exempt from price controls are medical, hospital, and dental services.

All firms in doubt about whether they are covered by price control laws are urged by OPS to contact the district office in Montgomery.

SLAUGHTERERS UNDER RIGID CONTROL

Montgomery, Ala. — All commercial slaughterers in Chilton County are now under rigid control to assure the flow of meat through normal trade channels when the new dollar-and-cent ceiling prices go into effect, rolling back beef prices, the district director of the Office of Price Stabilization said today.

"A system for distributing meat to shortage areas, if the need arises, has also been set up by law," OPS Director Charles G. Dobbins said.

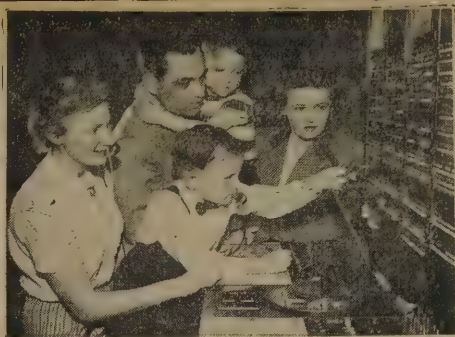

Beginning May 7, all slaughterers were required to prepare invoices with every sale of meat. Only those who have registered with OPS and have received permit numbers are now legally allowed to slaughter. The permit numbers issued by OPS must be stamped on all wholesale cuts of meat sold.

Quotas for commercial slaughterers for the May period beginning April 29 now are: cattle, 90%; calves, 80%; sheep and lambs, 80%; and swine, 110%.

Farm slaughterers who sell less than 6000 pounds of meat a year are not required to register.

Slaughterers in the South Alabama OPS district should apply immediately for meat grading services by the Department of Agriculture, addressing the Meat Grading Section, Livestock Division, Department of Agriculture, 50 Seventh Street, Atlanta.

THE MILLIONTH STOCKHOLDER of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company—the only business in the United States to achieve such a broad democracy of ownership—is represented by Mr. and Mrs. Brady Denton, of Saginaw, Michigan, who jointly own seven shares of stock. Denton, an automobile salesman, and his wife, Dorothy, and two of their boys are shown above during a visit to their local telephone exchange. Brady, Jr., 6, learns about switchboard operations from Miss Doris Beiser, Michigan Bell operator, as Johnny, 3, looks on from his father's arms.

3,606 A. T. & T. COMPANY STOCKHOLDERS IN ALABAMA AS NATIONWIDE TOTAL REACHED 1,000,000

Telephone Service Demands in Alabama Are Increasing Bringing Need of Additional New Facilities

The number of stockholders of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company reached 1,000,000 today (May 15), Southern Bell Manager, Mr. P. J. Kreis, announced.

As the 1,000,000th point was attained, there were 3,606 stockholders in Alabama, owning 86,033 shares.

"The Bell System is the only American business with such a democracy of ownership as to have 1,000,000 owners," Mr. Kreis pointed out.

"The people in all walks of life who have invested in the Bell Telephone business, and thus become stockholders live in 19,000 cities, towns and rural areas in the nation, including Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady Denton, of Saginaw, Mich., are joint owners of the millionth certificate representing stock. He is an automobile salesman—typical of the average Bell System stockholder, who are farmers, business men, clergymen, merchants, teachers, widows, and other "hometown" folks.

Funds supplied by people who have invested in the Bell System, like the Dentons, have made it possible for Southern Bell to spend $66,600,000 for additional facilities in Alabama between January 1, 1945, and March 31, 1951, Mr. Kreis said.

Telephone service demands in Alabama are on the increase, Mr. Kreis said, calling for large amounts of additional facilities yet to be installed.

Funds for new facilities do not come from customer's monthly payment of their bills but must be raised in the form of new capital. Telephone earnings must be such as will attract the funds of people who have funds to invest, Mr. Kreis declared. "That is why it is essential that the Telephone Company in Alabama be financially strong, with adequate earnings to do the job that people of the state want done."

Luby "Red" Gore stated, "I still plan on planting that draw just north of the house. I have early corn planted and will have it off in plenty of time to plant fescue."

A good mulch helps conserve water and prevent soil from washing away. If sericea hay is not needed and to keep it from getting tough clip and let the mulch rot on the ground.

Watch the grass and weeds in young stands of sericea and fescue. If the competition for water from these plants go to wilting the young seedlings, mow or graze soon.

Soil and water conservation depends to a large extent upon the source of seed. If you have grass or legume seed in quantities large enough to harvest contact a neighbor with a combine and save them.

GELATIN INSTEAD OF STARCH FOR COTTONS

Auburn, Ala. — The original finish is restored to cottons when a gelatin solution is used in the place of starch, according to Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist.

She points out that sheers and dark cottons can be given that "just bought, look" by dipping them in a weak gelatin solution. After doing this, roll them in towels to absorb excess moisture; then press garments while they are slightly damp.

The gelatin solution is prepared by soaking one ounce of gelatin in a cup of cold water for a few minutes and then dissolving it in a pint of boiling water. Dilute this mixture with 8 to 15 parts of hot water, depending on the thickness of the garments to be dipped.

Garments receiving this treatment will retain a nice, new finish for several wearings. They tend to resist wrinkles and dark sheers will not have a starched glaze.

"Not only is the gelatin solution recommended for cottons," says the specialist, "it may be used on sheer rayons, velvets, baby clothes, handkerchiefs, and other dainty garments."

Old Mulberry Gives Way To Progress After 100 Years Of Faithful Service

Mulberry Church was organized in 1818 with eight members who were: Joseph Williams, Jimmie Davenport, Rev. Henry Gragg, Aaron and Patsy Campbell, the aged father and mother of Lawson Campbell, and Rev. James Cockrel.

Among the very first to preach at the church and pastor it were Rev. Henry Gragg, a primitive Baptist, and Rev. James Cockrel, a Baptist.

The first building was of logs, and stood across the road from where the building that has just been torn down stood. The seats in this building were made of split logs with two large pegs driven in each end for legs. The floor was of dirt and heat came from a large rock fireplace in one end of the building. Light were from homemade candles.

The old log building was used some fifteen years, being replaced by a frame structure. This building was later moved to what is now the Manning Place and used to house a cotton gin. The building just torn down was erected in 1853, using slave labor. A compartment in the rear of the building was maintained for the slave members to sit in on the service.

Grandpa Green Raspberry assisted in erecting all three of the buildings. Early pastors of the church included Revs. W. L. Cochran, J. C. Hand, James McCullough, D. M. Lloyd, J. R. Miller, Arrie Mullins, W. M. Lee and Thomas J. Elam.

A Sunday School was organized on April 18, 1885, and elected as the first superintendent Joseph Let Williams, with E. A. Malone assistant superintendent.

Later pastors have been Revs. Buford Lawrence, E. C. Purdue, James S. Holland, J. W. Mitchell, H. Greely Williams, T. J. Cook, Paul Oden, W. R. Seymour, Allen Ruff, R. W. Stuckey, James R. Coleman and the present pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones.

Beginning in 1905 and continuing up to the present time serving as clerks of the church have been: H. N. Mullins, E. J. Hayes, W. T. White, S. J. M. Webb, J. D. Conway, H. R. Oden, Mrs. Maxine Oden Lenoir, E. H. Davis, J. H. Wells, R. C. Veasey and the present clerk, Mrs. Jack Tucker.

Oscar Davenport has served as chorister for the church for more than 30 years, which position he still holds.

In 1938 eight Sunday School classrooms were added to the building, and in 1940 the church was wired for electricity and lighted throughout. A new floor was put in in 1942.

On March 25, 1951, plans were adopted for a new church building of concrete and regular brick veneer to replace the old frame building.

At the present time services are being held in Isabella High School, with Sunday School, B.T.U. and preaching morning and evening every Sunday.

STRAWBERRIES — RICH SOURCE OF VITAMIN C

Auburn, Ala. — There's a lot of food value in strawberries. And they compare favorably with citrus fruits as a source of vitamin C. In fact, when strawberries are plentiful, they can be used as the source of Vitamin C, instead of citrus fruit or other foods.

The food experts have figured it out this way. Two-thirds of a cup of fresh strawberries will provide slightly more vitamin C than will a half cup of fresh orange juice.

"There's one thing, to remember, though, in using strawberries for vitamin C," warns Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist. "They lose it quickly if they are crushed and allowed to remain exposed to the air very long. So, to conserve that vitamin C value, follow two good rules. Don't wash the berries until just before they are hulled, and don't crush the berries until just before they are ready to serve."

CLEAN CLOTHING BEFORE PRESSING

When pressing out wrinkles in suits and coats, take care not to press in stains or soil, cautions Levice Ellis, A.P.I. Extension Service clothing specialist.

She reminds homemakers that heat sets many stains, making them difficult or impossible to remove. Even grease or soil spots may be driven in to fabric by the heat and pressure of the iron, usually making them more difficult to remove.

"Therefore," advises the specialist, "before pressing clothes at home, look them over to see if they are stained, spotted or soiled. If so, take out stains or sponge with cleaning fluid before applying the iron."

THESE ARE THE DAIRYMEN who will lead Alabama producers in this year's campaign to advertise dairy products. They are officers and directors of the Alabama unit of the American Dairy Association who were elected at a recent Spring meeting of that organization in Montgomery.

The leaders hope to get every dairyman in the state to participate in the set-aside program proposed for the months of June and July this year. This plan calls on A.D.A. members to contribute one cent for each pound of butterfat they sell during the 60-day period. And their aim is to have every dairyman a member during 1951.

MRS. CURRY THOMAS'S SIXTH GRADE HAVE CLOSING OF SCHOOL YEAR PROGRAM

The pupils of Mrs. Curry Thomas's Sixth Grade of the Clanton Elementary School had a very happy day on Monday, May 21st, 1951, when they enjoyed a program planned by the activities committee chairman, Patsy Barrett.

Songs, poems, Bible Scriptures and folk dances which the boys and girls had learned during this school year, were presented by individual pupils and groups. Marie Wesson and Carolyn Tucker played piano selections.

Several members of the class were presented awards for outstanding achievements. Patsy Barrett for spelling; Ralph Vines, for writing; Jimmie Cox, for second highest rating in class and Linda Wade received an award for serving as pianist for the year. Kenneth Messer received the award for having the highest scholastic record. He also was presented with the "Jesse Chandler Memorial Award" which is given to the student with the highest average in school for the year by the Clanton Study Club. Mrs. John Mullins, president of the Study Club, presented the award, "Richard Haliburton's Complete Book of Marvels."

Eight pupils received awards for having perfect attendance records: June Gwathney, Charles Jones, Ralph Vines, Jimmy Cox, James Bennett, Lora Mae Mims and Pauline Hayes.

The pupils of the class presented the teacher with a love gift as their appreciation of what she had done for them during the year.

The room mothers under the leadership of Mrs. James Wade, have helped to make possible a social hour for the class from time to time. On this occasion, the table (or teacher's desk) was covered with a lace cover and had two large punch bowls placed on either end filled with delicious punch. The bowls were encircled with red roses. Cookies and ice cream were served and Mrs. James Wade presented each boy and girl a "diploma" all tied in red ribbon, which turned out to be the class "prophecy." Each boy and girl read what his future would be according to his "diploma."

The program was concluded with games which the mothers who were present took part in. This was the end of Grammar School for these boys and girls, but there will NEVER be an end to the memories they have of "The Better Speech Club" and Mrs. Curry Thomas's Sixth Grade.

game of the year, defeating a team composed of L. & N. Railroad Workers, by a score of 14 to 3.

McGee and C. L. Coggins got four base hits while Chambers banged out two triples and a single.

The prettiest play of the game was made by Julius Smith in the seventh inning. He raced from his "short stop" position into short center field to snare a looping fly ball that was a sure base hit. C. L. Coggins was the winning pitcher.

On Sunday, May 20th, the Alabama Mills boys lost a heart-breaker to Clanton by a score of 6 to 5. It was the fifth loss of the year for the "Millers."

Julius Smith was the hero of the day. He tapped out two doubles, two singles and made two spectacular catches in center field. McGee and Minor got two hits each and it was the slick fielding of Minor that brought the "Oohs" and "Aahs" from the crowd.

Smith pitched a swell game and deserved to win, but he just didn't have Lady Luck on his side; the town won out in the tenth inning.

The game scheduled for next Sunday will be with Lomax. They are still trying to schedule a game for Saturday. Any team wishing a game with Alabama Mills for Saturday, contact Braxton Bates, the manager.

Visitors from Birmingham who attended the game Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Redmond, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bob Argo, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Parks and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bates and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bates, Jr.

We had a good congregation for both services at Mulberry Sunday.

AGAINST the dramatic backdrop of the political testimony of General Douglas MacArthur, a joint senate committee relative to this nation's foreign policy, which the general generally decried, a committee of the top brass men of the nation, the Committee for Economic Development, has issued a statement on national policy which appears to be almost wholly at variance with that of the erstwhile Korean area commander.

The theme of General MacArthur's testimony is that this nation's major effort to stop the Russian Communism should be made in Asia, by starting an aggressive war there, and that our enemy is not necessarily Russia but Communism, and as brought out by Senator Fulbright, Communism is an idea or a belief which cannot be defeated by force of arms, but Russian Communist imperialism and its threat to engulf the free world is the enemy against which we are now fighting in Korea and mobilizing for come what may.

The Committee for Economic Development in its national policy statement recognizes the nation's commitments to place major emphasis on the European phase of this global struggle and says:

"Considering that some American reverse in Korea caused people in other countries to doubt the ability of the United States to halt the spread of Communism, it requires little imagination to foresee the strength of the wave of the future psychology which would sweep the world in the event of the Soviet conquest of western Europe. The Russians would then be in an excellent position to use tactics of psychological warfare and internal subversion in a drive to neutralize or dominate many of the countries remaining outside the Soviet orbit and thus largely to isolate the United States—strategically, diplomatically, ideologically and economically."

"The many millions of Americans who have supported the European policy of the United States government since the war have done so, out of self-interest alone; they have recognized that the fall of western Europe would impoverish civilization. The loss of western Europe would be the loss of the fountainhead of a great part of political traditions, our philosophy, and our music. Cherished ancestral ties would be severed. Spiritual and political bonds which grow out of our common attitudes toward religion, towards the rights and responsibilities of the individuals, and toward the role of the state would be broken."

"We are thus committed by cultural affinity and by treaty obligation, as well as by self-interest, to share in the strengthening of the defenses of western Europe against the Soviet threat to European security."

Says the CED: "Given the flexibility of Soviet tactics, it is clearly the task of the western powers to organize a comprehensive and balanced security program which leaves no breach wide enough to invite a Soviet thrust. In view of the present military weakness of the western alliance first priority must now obviously be given to rearmament. The rearmament effort must be on a scale sufficient to create within two or three years a military force able, in the event of open war, to check an onslaught by the Red army until the full war potential of the United States and the allied free nations could be mobilized and brought to bear on the aggressor..."

And the CED lays great stress on the fact that rearmament and security are not synonymous. "The contest between the Soviet Union and the west is ultimately a contest of strength, not of arms alone; strength embraces not only armed might, but in addition [d] those less measurable elements—such as greater productivity, efficiency, equity in the distribution of income, political and economic stability, and social cohesiveness and spirit—which are the real sinews of national power..."

It is imperative that the Marshall plan be preserved and sustained in the rearmament period upon which we are entering..."

THE POPE has elected the Archangel Gabriel patron of telecommunications. This puts him in charge of radio, television, telegraph, and telephone. This is a full-time job, so we probably won't hear him playing for such functions as the razing of walls any more.

It's just as well. Petrillo is mad because an ASCAP man didn't get that Jericho job anyway.

We had hoped that Gabriel would be concentered for baseball commissioner. Everybody else has. But an angel wouldn't be as avid as a senator to resign an honored position for a high-paying sports job.

Probably the Vatican has been getting too many singing commercials, blurred images, delayed telegrams and wrong numbers and has instructed Gabriel to blow tops on such nuisances. We hope he won't meet too much interference from the F.C.C.

It'll take someone of celestial calibre to straighten out telephone service. But don't lift your hopes too high. Maybe an angel who figures time in eternities won't think central takes too long to answer.

We'd like to hear an archangel mix in verbal exchange with some of those telephone operators. He might get his wings pinned back by some of the words they know. But we'd hope Gabriel's attention to sinners throughout the ages has taught him a few choice words too.

When he begins listening to radio and television, Gabriel is going to wish he were back toting walls—even with a union card. Crashing walls don't sound nearly as nerve-racking as most of the programs.

CHILTON FARMERS INCREASE CORN YIELD

Chilton County farmers are continuing to increase their corn yield. Hybrid seed, more fertilizer, closer spacing and later planting dates are all factors that have contributed to higher per acre yields.

In the effort to work fewer acres and make more corn, growers are using more nitrate of soda as a side dressing. Where corn does not follow vetch extra nitrate is needed if a good crop is to be expected. While the amounts used per acre will vary depending on the type of land, number of plants per acre and amount of mixed fertilizer used under the corn, the interval between planting and side dressing should be about the same. Nitrate should be applied thirty to thirty-five days after planting. Nitrate applied too late may have very little effect on the yield.

Many farmers continue to confuse plant starvation with dry weather injury. When corn plants turn yellow along the midrib and "fries" they are starved for nitrate. Corn lacks moisture when the leaves roll or twist without losing their green color. The leaves of potash starved corn turn brown along the margin and the edges appear scorched.

On lighter soil zinc starvation may appear. Usually zinc deficiency occurs when a heavy growth of vetch is turned or when high rates of nitrate are used. When there is a shortage of zinc the leaves turn white early in the season. This condition cannot be corrected by applying a side dressing of zinc. Zinc compounds must be applied before planting to prevent bleaching or whitening of the leaves.

A farmer may plant, fertilize and space properly only to find that all of this good work can be lost by a late, deep, cultivation. For high yields, corn should be cultivated shallow and layed-by early. As a general rule, when the yields go up, the number of workings decrease. It is rare for corn making forty or more bushels per acre to be plowed more than twice.

FARM PRODUCTION COSTS AND PRICES

With a little more than one-third of the year gone, several interesting developments and prospects confront farmers and consumers.

A. W. Jones, A.P.I. Extension Service specialist, says that of first importance is the fact that supplies of most farm products are likely to continue large. Consumption of food per person this year will probably be a little greater than in 1950.

"Farm production is expected to set a new record this year," reveals Jones. "Of course, prices received by farmers for things they sell and also for things they buy are increasing."

HANDLING VEGETABLES ON WAY TO CONSUMER

Temperature is the most important single factor in handling vegetables from the time they are harvested until they reach the consumer.

This fact is true mainly because of the high per cent of water in vegetables, and high temperatures tend to cause the plants to lose water and wilt. Different vegetables react differently to high temperatures. In sweet corn and English peas the sugars are changed to starch, the skin of the seed or kernel is toughened, and the color is deadened. Tomatoes ripen very rapidly and become soft when exposed to high temperatures. Green, leafy vegetables wilt and become tough and fibrous.

"With these facts in mind," says John Bagby, API Extension Service "horticulturist," it is easy to see that if fresh vegetables are to retain their good quality until they reach the consumer, they must be kept at low temperatures by the use of ice, water, or mechanical refrigeration."

BETTER WAY TO NAIL CORRUGATED ROOFING

Auburn, Ala. — Slant nailing is better for many applications of corrugated aluminum roofing as well as for aluminum V crimp roofing.

"Slant nailing consists of driving the nail at an angle just off the crown, nailing out in the direction roof is being laid," explains William T. Cox, A.P.I. Extension Service specialist in farm buildings. "Locating the nail hole on the slope of the corrugation causes the moisture to run steadily into the valley and prevents its collection around the base of the nail head."

Cox adds that this method of nailing gives better weather sealing by drawing the sheets closer together, and it also increases the nail's holding power. "The greatest holding power is obtained when the application is over sheathing and the point of the nail penetrates slightly through the sheathing."

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Frank Rich, B. R. Crowson will have a complete cover of kudzu as a result of seeding kudzu seed the spring of 1949 and 1950. In both cases Fescue grass will be planted for winter grazing.

S. M. Tatam states, "I am going to plant fall tomatoes on the field south of the house and as soon as frost comes I want to plant that Fescue meadow."

Clyde Burnett, Pleasant Grove, has a very nice seed patch of Fescue grass that will be saved for seed.

Now is a good time to study or observe just what the carrying capacity of your summer pasture is. Kudzu established on rough, steep, eroded, or dry land can go a long way toward balancing the grazing system. Kudzu, in addition to being a good soil erosion plant, is the insurance a lot of farmers need during a drought.

S. D. Posey has seeded two acres with five pounds of kudzu seed. This rough gullied land will be used as grazing for hogs when established. Soil and water conservation farm plans were prepared on Acie Mims, Morris Mims, and Jack Roberts' farms. New or revised plans were prepared for Sam Johnson and N. L. Roberts.

Don't forget good seed are essential for the establishment of conservation crops. There is a good demand for all clovers and grasses. Why not try to have yours harvested.

Keep your washing machine free from dust by covering it with the discarded slip cover of a chair. The back-of-the chair part fits over the wringer; the rest protects the tub.

DEEPER TOPSOIL FOR BETTER CROP YIELDS

Studies made throughout the country indicate a very close relationship between the depth of topsoil and the yields of crops.

Where the topsoil was eight inches deep at the Southern Piedmont Experiment Station in Georgia, hybrid corn produced an average of 65 bushels per acre during the three-year period. The corresponding yields were 52 bushels per acre for five inches of topsoil and 38 bushels for two inches of topsoil.

"On most Alabama farms," points out S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist, "more than half of the topsoil has been lost through erosion. Faced with these facts it can easily be seen what further losses of the remaining topsoil will mean to Alabama agriculture. In other words, conserve topsoil."

CARE OF THE PECAN GROVE

During the growing season the pecan grove should be kept clean by diskling every four or five weeks. If the grove is in sod, it should be kept mowed or grazed close to the ground so plants will not rob trees of needed moisture and minerals.

THE SACRED HARP SINGING CONVENTION

The Sacred Harp Singing Convention was held at New Harmony Church near Lomax, Ala., the third Sunday in May.

The house was called to order by the Chairman, W. L. Sanders. Prayed by Elder J. B. Williams.

The arranging committee for the day were: T. C. Jackson, W. D. Garther, M. C. Jackson. Morning directors were: G. H. Thompson, J. B. Williams of Tallapoosa; G. A. Beckett, Sylacauga; M. W. Brown, J. W. Gibson, of Clay County; Gedy Hall, of Tallapoosa; W. D. Garther, of Tallapoosa; Mr. White, of Montgomery.

This bringing the singing to a close for the preaching services.

Elder J. B. Williams came to the stand in humbleness to the Lord Who so wonderfully blesses him in the spirit. The text was, "In My Father's House are Many Mansions, if it were not so, I would have told you," demonstrating our Eternal Home, which is through the grace of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ alone, but how then being the children of God may enter into the "Rest" which is promised through obedience and be able to enjoy the home, which is the church here and were dismissed for lunch hour.

There was a nice table spread and we thank all who had a part in helping us out, for with the support of others, it is a success and we do appreciate it so much.

The chairman, W. L. Sanders, sang three songs while the crowd was gathering in the house for the afternoon.

Move in order to go in business session. The minutes were read and accepted as read. Whereas the church of New Harmony has asked they be given the singing the third Sunday in May each year for homecoming, moved in order and adopted the resolution. The fall session being left open for anyone present to call for the singing, not being called for New Harmony gave it a home the third Sunday in September. Business session closed.

Memorial services were held in memory of the following: "Tune White" for the author, B. F. White, directed by W. L. Sanders; "Jesus Died for Me," by a quartet in memory of Mr. Z. J. Jones, who has passed on since our last convention and who was a member of the convention. We missed his presence so much, also in his memory, "Carry Me Home," directed by T. C. Jackson; "Where I Am Gone," directed by W. L. Sanders, in memory of Mrs. Loudie Weldon and her father, also Mr. B. F. Patterson who have passed on.

Being asked to remember the following friends who were not there because of illness and who are faithful to come our way: "Resurrected" by T. C. Jackson for A. O. Snider, who expressed his desire to be with us, also J. H. Jackson who is ill and all our loved ones who have passed on; "I'll Take My Staff and Travel On," for Mrs. J. H. Blankenship and Mrs. J. B. Williams, who were unable to be with us, directed by Elder J. B. Williams; "The Heavenly Port," for Mrs. Otis Williams, of Tallapoosa, who is seriously ill.

Directors for the afternoon were: Virgil Crocker, of Perry County; G. B. Williams, Mrs. G. H. Gaines, Birmingham; Coleman Crocker, Perry County; Roland Sanders, C. P. Ratliff, of Perry County; M. C. Jackson, W. T. Jackson, T. C. Jackson, of Sylacauga; Joe Jackson, Flora Oaks, W. D. Garther, Mr. White. Closing song by the chairman. Dismissed by Elder J. B. Williams.

We had a wonderful singing, a beautiful day and so many visitors. Some we didn't even know, but we extend to all an invitation to come each time and be with us. We not being able to mention them all would like to at least mention some old friends who show so much interest in the church and singing and living so far away. The Anderson Teel family, also the Uncle Bob Gibson family. We look forward to seeing them each time. Their parents came from Coosa County in the years 1898 and 1899 and lived here until their deaths, and their bodies are now resting in New Harmony Cemetery.

Let us all continue to make this a wonderful place to come by singing the good old songs and by extending our heartiest welcome to those who come our way.

The convention wouldn't want either to forget the editors who so kindly give space in their paper to advertise our convention. We thank you so much, Mr. Wyatt and Mr. Tucker; also, thanks to you, Mr. Easterling, for announcing it over the radio.—The Secretary, Flora Oaks.

Lion-Kiwanis Game Called Friday Night

It's the big game of the year! Yes, the annual baseball game between the Clanton Lions Club and the Clanton Kiwanis Club will take place this Friday night under the lights at the Clanton City Ball Park at 7:30.

You'll see all types of ball players this Friday night when Earl Parrish and Oscar Floyd start running the bases for the Lions Club. Then, too, you'll probably see Superintendent of Education Bookholdt catching a long fly, or you might even see a preacher or two from the Kiwanis Club out there on the diamond. Anyway, it's all for a good cause because the proceeds will all be used for the underprivileged children and for sight conservation in Chilton County. Do your part! Don't leave the whole job up to just a few men. Come on out and see the fun at the Clanton Baseball Park at 7:30 Friday night.

NEW PARENTS' COLUMN WILL START THIS WEEK

DR. DONALD M. MAYNARD

If you've often wondered what to do when your child brings up some unexpected problem, you'll welcome Donald M. Maynard's "Parents' Problems," a new column starting today in the Chilton County News.

"Parents' Problems" answers all kinds of questions about rearing children from birth through the teens—everyday problems in homes like yours, from thumb-sucking to dating. Every week, you'll find it filled with practical down-to-earth advice on how to help your child grow up.

Dr. Maynard is well qualified to offer parents sound and practical advice. He is head of the Department of Religious Education of the Boston University School of Theology and formerly held the same position at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tennessee. He is a recognized authority on family life, an author, lecturer and counselor of long experience, and father of two children. He writes as a parent thinks. "I think of my task," says Dr. Maynard, "as primarily that of helping parents come to a better understanding of child behavior, with new insights as to how they may deal with that behavior intelligently. It is my conviction that as we help children develop self-confidence in themselves and trust in others, we are laying a foundation for a wholesome and significant life. Underlying all my answers, there is real regard for the sacredness of all personality."

In clear, non-technical language, Dr. Maynard offers a brief analysis of each problem, its causes, and offers practical corrective measures — the kind of advice you can use. Dr. Maynard will answer questions from readers of Chilton County News through this column.

If you have children, don't miss Donald M. Maynard's "Parents' Problems," beginning today another helpful service of Chilton County News.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Klinner announce the engagement and marriage of their daughter, Hildred Klinner, to Johnny Folmar. The wedding will be an event of June 2nd, 1951, and will be solemnized in the home of the bride.

This Is A Vital Period; Be Sure And Make This $10.00 Club

The present bonus offer, one of 20,000 extra votes on $800 clubs, and which ends June 7th, is a most important one and we hope all the workers will realize how necessary it is to complete their club and secure these 20,000 extra votes. If you can possibly make two of them, you can readily understand the advantage it will give your own little one over the ones who make but one club.

The Campaign, of course, is not complete until the 7th of June, but the balance of the campaign, if you have taken it, is yours. Your baby will secure the 20,000 extra votes we are giving on it, these 20,000 extra votes could easily spell the difference between victory and defeat so we trust you will make a special effort while it is in effect.

No appreciable chance in the voting as it appears today. Most of the supporters of their little favorite are busy coming to the polls and are not present. After it is over, the contest will very likely become more active. At the conclusion of the voting period, you will be entering the last and probably the most vital phase of the whole competition and if your little sweetheart can enter it with that confidence which these bonus votes give, victory should almost be in your grasp.

This is the time your friends' assistance can easily be the most helpful. Explain to them how important it is to the baby's success to get as many of these bonus votes as is possible. Even though their subscription does not expire for several weeks, and if they have already given you one year, they will readily give you an additional year to help the baby; they might just as well give it to you while it means so much to the baby, they very likely will.

Chilton County News has been sending out letters to all the clubs for years to come. The letters will be sent to all the clubs.

What behind in the campaign? The letters will be due by June 7th. A rich harvest in votes is in touch with them while this club is on.

"Vulcan" Column in the Birmingham News stated that Ben Franklin came out in favor of the turkey buzzard as the national bird. We believe it was the turkey, and not the turkey buzzard that Mr. Franklin came out in favor of.

FIN-FAN SCOTT

Dick Scott is doing a good job of selling Lake Lay and Lake Mitchell to the fishermen of the State, as a fisherman's paradise. Dick writes Fin-Fan Items each week for the state's press.

Funny thing is that Dick is absolutely right. Now some publicity men are prone to exaggerate a bit when it comes to boosting their pet projects, but not him. When he says that folks are all wrong when they think of the Gulf and North Alabama, when fishing is mentioned, he is right 100 percent.

The woods along the banks of the Coosa in Chilton are as pretty as the next place. The scenery is unbeatable; the fish are just as big and just as game; Lake Lay is 22 miles long—and that's a lot of water; so, there just isn't any reason for passing up Chilton County when you plan that next fishing trip.

One thing's for sure. In Dick Scott we have a fine booster of Chilton County and her assets.

HOLY COW

It wasn't only the cow that jumped over the moon. Since reading the OPS ceiling price chart on meats, we find it was the cow, the bull, the calf and the whole d—family. And after reading the chart we find that beef didn't only jump over that moon, but got hung up there somewhere.

THE DEMOCRACY OF A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A Chamber of Commerce is made up of a composite group of serious, happy, high-minded men in the service for the good of their community — Democracy of Doers.

This is exactly what a Chamber of Commerce is—an organized influence for the greatest good of the greatest number—the true significance of Democracy.

In a Chamber of Commerce, each individual member may constitute an important factor and exercise his talents and activities by co-operation with other members of vision and purpose, and thus round out in a Chamber, and by the Chamber, a super-service.

Full education of individuality comes only where there is a responsible share on the part of each person, according to his capacity and eagerness to co-operate with others.

A Chamber of Commerce is the life-blood of service which circulates through the arteries of active men, and like the health-giving blood, it does not appear externally, but is internally coursing.

A Chamber of Commerce and its influence on the individual is immeasurably great. Multiply this individual by a select roster of result-getters and you get a glint of its incalculable service to the community.

The democracy of a Chamber of Commerce is inclusive, not exclusive. Creeds and cults, abilities and achievements all working in one organized influence that spell out the age-old thought written like this—The Golden Rule.

No higher honor can be given any man than to be chosen as a President, a Director, or a Worker in the ranks with rightly thinking, actively working members of a Chamber of Commerce.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

When we run the picture of A. B. Foshee as a possible candidate for Probate Judge the other week Charlie Cox called him up and kidded him about it. The past week we run the picture of Charlie Cox, so Buster Foshee decided to get even—he called the Cox home and Mrs. Cox told Buster that Charlie had gone to Florida. Buster promptly sat down and wrote him that when his picture was published he didn't have to leave town.

So help us, we have seen everything. The other night I. D. Armstrong was down on the post office steps trying to sell Burke Allison insurance on his new baby. And funnier than that, was the fact that Burke knew all the answers—he hadn't been selling insurance for the past fifteen years for nothing. We left them on the steps still talking and don't know how it all came out. The last we heard I. D. was telling Burke what good insurance he had and Burke was telling I. D. what a fine baby he had.

Sunday last, was the completion of a year's work here for the First Methodist preacher J. M. McKinney. He has made himself very popular with his members and in other church circles and the wish of all who know him is that he will be appointed here another year. Preacher McKinney is a man who inspires confidence and respect, and as a spiritual leader, has made himself felt in the Methodist Church and in Chilton County. We wish for the McKinney family the best always, and hope they return to Clanton after Conference.

Remember, it's always the fresh egg that gets slapped in the pan.

Joe Jackson says he has a mighty good Featurette coming to the Drive-In next week. It's "Beaver Valley." Joe says it took two years to make this picture of beavers at work. It's in technicolor and very interesting.

Vathel Lindsey wants to sell his push cart. The old push cart has lots of good features according to Vathel and he will sell it at a bargain. It can be seen at Robinson's Machine Shop.

Preacher R. E. Wilkins and his family are going to attend the National Sunday School Convention in California in June. Preacher says they will leave the first week in June and drive through in his car. His membership at the West End Baptist Church are paying all his expenses on the trip and we think it a high compliment to the Wilkins family. It's certainly proof that they are popular at West End Baptist and much appreciated. We hope they have a wonderful trip and enjoy themselves to the fullest.

Red Smith was telling us a cock roach and bull story Monday. Red claims to know a fellow who has cock-roaches at his house so big that he set rat traps for them and caught them. Here's the way Red tells it: Tommy Wright who now lives in Florida but used to make Clanton his home, says that he kept hearing noises about his house and thought the place was infested with mice. He went out and bought some mouse traps and set them and awaited developments. Shortly a trap was sprung and he rushed to take the mouse out, 'Sit, lo and behold, it was a cock-roach that had thrown the trap and had been caught. Now, ladies and gentlemen, that is a true story. We don't know the roach personally, but we do know Red Smith and he is a truthful gentleman.

Before repapering a wall, insert pieces of match stick in the holes left when you remove shelves or whatnots. Cut the sticks just long enough so you can feel them under the paper. When you rehange shelves the match sticks will tend to tighten the screws or nails in the old holes.

Your Health HEALTHFUL EATING

Food is essential to the human body to keep it functioning smoothly. Americans can be assured that eating sufficient amounts of the generous variety of foods available in this country will result in the body receiving the proper amounts of proteins, fats, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins so necessary to tissue repair, the building of good bone structure, adequate energy for the day's tasks and general well being.

Carbohydrates are sugars, starches, celluloses and gums, for example, bread and potatoes. They provide energy. Proteins are made up of simpler or nitrogen containing substances called amino acids. They provide energy and the material for growth and repair of tissues. Fats, made up of simpler material called fatty acids, provide energy, the reserves of the body, and are more slowly utilized.

While proteins can be a source of fuel for maintaining body temperature and for muscular work, fats and carbohydrates are the natural fuel food-stuffs.

To maintain an even balance, the body requires certain fats, proteins, vitamins and water. The intake of food can vary depending on occupation. For example a worker in an office who does not have a great deal of exercise requires fewer calories than does the laborer or farmer whose daily activities demand more energy.

A calorie is a measure of food energy, and nutrition experts agree that 2,000 to 3,500 calories should be taken into the body each day to maintain a normal body balance as shown by a constant weight. There are certain foods which have been designated "must" foods and which, if taken daily in adequate amounts, give the recommended number of calories to the human system and also the minerals and vitamins, which, in minute amounts, are essential to proper use of foods, in the body. These "must" foods are milk, eggs, meat, fruit, potatoes, vegetables, whole grain cereals, and bread, and butter or reinforced margarine.

It is wise to remember too that the end-result of a balanced diet is the ability and strength to perform well one's daily work. Let your physician give you a physical examination each year. He is the one to decide whether your body properly assimilates the food in your program of eating for health.

Psalm 101

I would like to call your attention to the 101st Psalm. It is a Psalm of King David, who was the sweet singer of Israel. He says in this Psalm, "I will sing of mercy and judgment, unto Thee, O Lord, will I sing." David was a man who could sing, and

A. T. HICKMAN midnight when they were fastened in jail. God heard their prayers, and took notice to their singing. He gave them deliverance. We too, would get deliverance from lot of ills if we would sing unto the Lord. Yes, sing of His mercy, and even of His judgment.

Then David said, "I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way." Not only could David sing, but he learned to behave himself very wisely. And after all, it is more important to behave ourselves wisely in a perfect way, than to sing or preach either.

It makes no difference how much a person may know, or how much he may profess, if he doesn't behave himself wisely in a perfect way, he will spoil everything. So while we are in the learning process, let us not forget to learn to behave ourselves wisely.

Again David said, "I will walk with in my house with a perfect heart." That is, he was to live his religion at home. And after all, friends people are no more religious at church on Sunday, than at home during the week. They might put on more of a show of religion on Sunday than through the week at home, but the show is not worth anything without the real goods. The home needs your perfect heart as well as the church. Pretending to be perfect at church on Sunday, and acting otherwise through the week is the work of the devil. Then please notice that David said, "I will set no wicked thing before mine eyes." The eyes are an avenue to the soul. What we see affects the mind, heart and is manifested in the life. So we had better be on the guard these days as what we allow to come before the eye. Watch out for the evil that could come into your home through TV. There is too much wickedness before the eyes of people already, and we cannot afford to pave the way for more. Finish reading Psalm 101.

Note verses 5, 6 and 7.—Hickman.

Three Rules for Well-Being

A YEAR AGO Edith Sundie, 628 West 114th Street, New York City, was on the verge of a breakdown. She would go to her work every morning feeling that a crushing weight was settling down on her. She didn't see how she was going to handle all the work before her, some of it left over from the day before. She dreaded the nerve-racking sessions with her high-strung boss who worked always under tension. At the end of the day, she had no appetite, and only forced down the food necessary to keep her going. All the day long, every day, from morning to night, she was tired. When she tried to sleep, it was only half a sleep, the other half was a nightmare.

Did this mental state take its toll? Naturally! That was inevitable. Soon her physical self became undermined. She suffered violent pains in her stomach. She went to a doctor who discovered a thyroid deficiency and said her pulse rate was far too high. Then he told her what she already knew, that she was living under too great strain. He added that he could relieve her symptoms but that she herself would have to effect the cure.

As she left the doctor's office, she asked herself if it were worth while? She was living 1500 miles from home. Human values meant most to her yet there was no opportunity to give anything significant to anyone's life. If she were run over no one would miss her particularly. A gnawing sense of futility suffused her entire being.

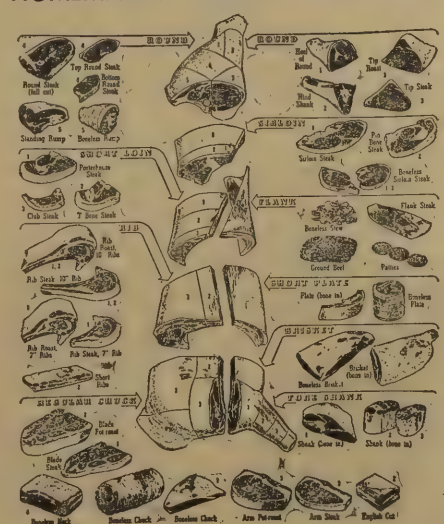

Suddenly she wondered whether the people all around her felt the same. What would happen if they became swiftly and miraculously happy. Each helping the other!

Well, she might find someone she could help. She went home and wrote a set of rules to follow for just one week, to see if they would work. Here they are:

- 1—Try to learn another's problems and help to solve them.
- 2—Do the best at hand and forget all the others.
- 3—Laugh often, and laugh at myself. See the funny side of troubles whenever possible.

Within a month the doctor told her she needn't take any more thyroid tablets! Shortly after she went on a vacation, climbed mountains, went swimming, took long hikes. Returning, her doctor pronounced her in perfect physical condition.

Baptist Notes—

The pastor and Bro. W. J. Patrick visited Indian Grave Church Wednesday night at the prayer meeting hour. There was a good group present, and among them, four of the deacons of the church. The church voiced the opinion that they would do their part in sending their pastor to the Southern Baptist Convention.

The following attended the State Sunday School Convention in Birmingham Thursday: Bro. Merchant, Mrs. Cecil Clecker, the pastor and his wife. A very fine spirit prevailed throughout the day at the convention and much good will be done throughout the state as a result of this meeting. We are anxious to put into effect in our Sunday School many of the things that we learned about doing the work in a more effective and efficient way.

The officers and teachers of our Sunday School will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30 at which time final plans will be made to complete the drive for 300 in Sunday School next Sunday.

The B.T.U. is showing a very fine interest under the leadership of Bro. Cobb and I know that his workers will rally to the call for 225 in B.T.U.; these goals and objectives are not too high if we are willing to pay the price, but we are to remember that we must go if they are to come. So let us stir ourselves and throw everything we have into this drive in order that we might reach these objectives, remembering that we are doing this in the name of Christ and for His glory.

"GRABBING" POTATOES MAY INCREASE YIELDS

What does "grabbling" do to the yield of potatoes? Dr. C. L. L. the A.P.I. Experiment Station has season test results on that question. Ten plots were used. Five "grabbled" and five were left undisturbed until the vines began to die. Then all potatoes were harvested weighed. "Grabbling" was at the of about one pound per week per foot of row for eight weeks. The yield from the "grabbled" plots, including the "grabbling," was 127 bushels per acre against 116 bushels from the undisturbed plots.

CHECK FRUIT JUICE FOR ITS VITAMIN C

Many of the chilled juices that well with hot dishes on most menus carry much of the day's vitamin C requirement. "And if you rely on fruit juice, vitamin C, it's well to check the choice for its vitamin C content," Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension service nutritionist, "Rich in this vitamin is fresh orange juice, but all juices rank high." She adds that tomato juice is a good source of Vitamin C, unless fortified with added vitamin. It takes more than twice as much tomato juice to match the vitamin content of orange juice.

Bailey, Warr Take Top Honors

LLOYD WARR

Mary Ella Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Bailey of Route 1, had the highest average in scholarship of the recent graduating class of Chilton County High School. On May 11, at the Class Night exercises, Mary Ella gave her valedictory, "America and World Peace." She gave the accomplishments of the United Nations as outlined by Senator Sparkman in his speech before the Alabama Education Association in March. She urged all American citizens to support the United Nations and all efforts for securing world peace.

Lloyd Warr, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Warr, of Clanton, held the second highest average of the class of '51. During the past year Lloyd was president of the Beta Club, an organization of scholarship and service. He carried a heavy schedule of classes and maintained his high scholarship rating. He expects to enter A.P.I. at Auburn in the fall.

MARY ELLA BAILEY

ROBERTA CURRY AND DAUGHTER IN CONCERT

Clanton music lovers are looking forward on June 10 to a unique musical of song and harp sponsored by Clanton Music Appreciation Club.

Roberta Curry, formerly of Clanton, Ala., the daughter of Mrs. Clara B. Curry, comes back to us at this time as both soloist and teacher of singing and rhythmic speech.

Miss Curry has appeared successfully in New York City in the concert, light opera and radio field. As a highly successful teacher of rhythmic speech at the Walt Whitman School, she brings a class work design of both traditional and modern method. These teaching concepts as taught in New York City by Miss Curry develop good speech in a rich musical and literary setting.

Patricia Minthorne, daughter of Miss Curry, a coming 8th grade graduate at Walt Whitman School, is a promising young harpist and pianist.

She has attended, the Salzedo Summer Harp Colony studying under Carol Chandler, now of Baltimore, Md. Patricia will return in August to Mr. Salzedo's Summer Colony at Camden, Me. Joan Traub, pupil of Carlos Salzedo and teacher at the Walt Whitman School, is her present teacher. Miss Traub takes first harpist desk next fall with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Summer classes with Roberta Curry begin June 11th in the studio of Mary Louise Vail in Birmingham.

WHITE CLOVER POPULAR IN PASTURE MIXTURES

White clover is one of Alabama's most important grazing plants. It is an essential plant for any permanent pasture mixture, and the Louisiana white clover is the most common kind grown. Sometimes it is called Louisiana Dutch.

J. C. Lowery, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist, further reveals that a giant kind of white clover called Ladino is rapidly becoming popular in Alabama. There are numerous strains, of course, because this white clover crosses easily.

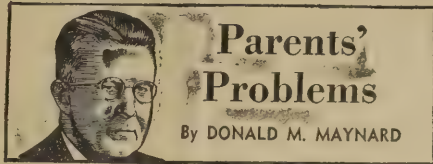

"It is practical, however, to save seed of the Louisiana white clover or common white clover," says Lowery. "There is a need for a great amount of white clover seed in the state."

EROSION

Too many farmers are still trying to grow row crops on steep, rough, eroded land. Such areas are not adapted to growing row crops, and those who try to grow them are, at best staging an up-hill fight—erosion will sooner or later win.

FLOCKS OWNERS

Unless a commercial flock is to be kept, cut the number of pullets to only those needed for the home egg supply.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

The Choice of Clothes

My nine-year-old daughter has very definite ideas about the clothes she wants to wear. Should I make an issue of this or let her choose what she is to wear—even though it would mean discarding good dresses?

You are to be congratulated on having a daughter who has sufficient initiative and resourcefulness to want to choose her own dresses. You have an excellent opportunity to help acquaint her with some of the basic principles that should underlie the selection of clothes, as well as to help her realize something of their cost.

It seems to me, therefore, that whenever possible, you should encourage her to select her own dresses, even though at times you may not agree with her choice. You cannot expect her judgment to be infallible and one way to learn is to make mistakes. She will not learn from her mistakes, however, if she is permitted to discard at will dresses that are practically new.

To give her as much freedom as possible in this regard does not mean that there will not be times when the decision concerning clothes must be yours—perhaps most of the time. But try to play fair with her—to encourage her growing independence. You will need to help her realize, of course, that good dresses cannot be discarded because of a whim or a sudden change of taste.

Is it not true, however, that a dress may be discarded only to be replaced by another? Is it not possible, also, to do a little "remodeling" of old dresses so as to make them meet present requirements?

Teen Indecision?

My son is seventeen. He has just finished high school. For some time he has thought he would study medicine. Now he is not so sure. He says he has no patience with "complaining women." What should my procedure as his mother be? Should I encourage him to go ahead and study medicine? Should I encourage him to take some time before making up his mind? Should I do nothing to influence him?

I wonder if your son is a tease. Somehow, I can almost see the mischievous grin he gives you as he talks about "complaining women." He wants to see if you can take it.

If you suspect this to be the case, you may want readily to admit one of the weaknesses of your sex, but at the same time remind him that not all of the complaining is done by women and that, indeed, men seem to be more upset by minor physical hurts than do women.

Even though he may be teasing in part, it would seem that he is also genuinely concerned because he no longer is certain that he wants to study medicine. Help him to see that he does not need to make a final decision now. Whatever the final decision may be, he will want to go on to college. When he gets there, he will find that there are many required courses during the first two years and that intensive specialization does not begin until the third year. During the first two years, he will have an opportunity to receive vocational guidance counseling from the college authorities, and by the beginning of his junior year will be in a much better position to decide upon his lifework.

The Effect of Movies

At what age should a normal child begin to attend movies? Is the average wild-west movie harmful to a child under six years?

It is difficult to answer your question because after all there is no such thing as a "normal" or an "average" child. Children differ considerably in their temperaments, emotional stability, and sensitivity to exciting events. A movie may be harmful to one child may have no ill effect whatsoever upon another.

Nevertheless, there are certain general considerations:

1. In so far as possible, children under six should be kept from experiences that unduly excite or overstimulate them. Some authorities in the field of child guidance feel that movies in particular, even those designed especially for children, are likely to provide this overstimulation.

Furthermore, many movies have terrifying episodes which, even though the child may not understand them, may frighten him and create needless fears. One has only to observe a group of children at the so-called "children's movie program" to note how many of the children not only become almost hysterical during certain portions of the movie, but hold their hands before their eyes or put their heads on the seats when certain episodes appear. For these the movie obviously is too exciting and therefore harmful.

I believe you would find that the average wild-west movie is also just too exciting for a child under six years. He may not show much excitement at the movie itself, but the overstimulation he experiences at his conduct at home.

Symptoms of overstimulation may be any of the following:

(a) Manifestation of unusual fear about something that ordinarily doesn't frighten him; (b) a tendency to cry and fret; (c) an effort to put off going to bed as long as possible and tossing fitfully about before going to sleep; (d) crying out in his sleep; and (e) the weakness of the nervous system, which tends to cause more creative experiences to seem dull and uninteresting.

3. Parents are going to face the problem of movie attendance soon enough without precipitating the problem. It would seem wise, therefore, to postpone as long as possible the taking of their small children to the movies.

Certainly a child under six should go only occasionally, if at all, and should go only to those movies that are recommended for children. After the children begin going with a fair degree of regularity, they should not be permitted to go indiscriminately.

Many times, we like fish, would avoid trouble if we kept our mouth shut. We see some who talk all the time, but we are reminded that a parrot can talk and that "Still Water Runs Deep." Also, "An Empty Wagon on Rattles." "Silence is Golden," and many other true sayings that our parents and teachers taught us.

We think the editorial page in this paper is wonderful, so read it each week.

Diamond News—

The Alabama Mills Baseball team gave old dope bucket a severe jolt last Sunday afternoon when they overpowered a highly favored Lomax team by a score of 17-4.

A very large crowd of fans turned out to see this battle, but left disappointed. The Lomax team had lost only one game the entire season, but after the third inning they trailed 12 to 2. The Millers coasted on in to record their eighth victory of the season. They have lost only 5 games, but the team is showing improvement in each encounter.

Junior Coggins was a surprise starting pitcher, but went all the way without any trouble.

James Minor, second baseman, led the hitting with 5 hits and one walk. His fielding was sensational. He came up with an unassisted double play in the 6th inning. He caught a line drive on the dead run and stopped on second base to catch a runner there. He also threw out one base runner while lying flat on the ground. All the Mill boys played a good game.

Downing and Williams were the outstanding players on the Lomax team. The game this week end will be with Isabella at the City Park Saturday and with Draper there Sunday. A game may be played with Wetumpka Friday, but the game is not a certainty.

OVERSEAS POSITIONS
AVAILABLE AS U. S. CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES

The manpower shortages that are increasing since the Korean conflict are not all confined to the United States, according to information released here by Mr. Clair Norris, manager of the local office of the Alabama State Employment Service. Our domestic manpower problems are serious enough, but there has developed another manpower situation outside our borders, one that demands immediate attention.

The Army needs many kinds of civilian workers for overseas positions. The openings range through highly trained professional groupings to skilled technicians in various fields. There is a demand for clerical workers, attorneys, accountants, economists, engineers of various kinds, nurses, public health medical officers, veterinarians, geologists and geodetic engineers.

The United States has assumed broad and immense responsibilities in other parts of the world. Many of these responsibilities are delegated to the Department of the Army. According to Mr. Norris, the Employment Service has for several years participated in securing civilian workers for Department of Army employment overseas by having recruiters interview applicants in local employment offices. The Employment Service has broadened the base of this activity by starting a system whereby an applicant's qualifications are referred directly to field offices of the Overseas Affairs Branch. Rapid decisions are made on applicant's acceptability. If favorable, regular application follows on Civil Service forms, and an interview is arranged.

Clerk-typists and clerk-stenographers are in heavy demand. Communications foremen, radio technicians, radio repairmen, cable splicers, and code clerks are wanted. Also wanted are budget officers, personnel technicians, wage analysts, engineering aides, communications specialists, librarians, court reporters, information specialists, tabulating machine operators and supervisors, recreation directors, and employee utilization specialists.

Pay is on the same scale as in similar government positions in the United States, with a 10 per cent differential for duty in Japan and a 25 per cent differential in Alaska and Okinawa.

One important thing should be borne in mind by every applicant. Come to the Clanton office of the Alabama State Employment Service. That is where information will be available about these overseas positions. Mr. Norris added that workers now employed in essential industries should not apply.

Mr. S. L. Williams of Heflin, Ala., was home for the week end to visit with his family.

MRS. R. C. WILLIAMS NEW PRESIDENT OF MUSIC CLUB

The Clanton Music Appreciation Club held their last meeting of the current season Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ellis with Mrs. N. S. Johnson and Mrs. R. C. Williams as hostesses.

The retiring president, Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, presided over a short business session, after which she installed the following new officers:

First vice-president, Mrs. Joe Campbell; second vice-president, Mrs. Bert Sneed; recording secretary, Mrs. Reid Mullins; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Dyer Shackelford; treasurer, Mrs. N. S. Johnson; accompanist, Mrs. W. E. Huddleston; publicity chairman, Mrs. Joe Mullins; parliamentary, Miss Elizabeth Barton; choral director, Mrs. Raymond Mims.

The program was on the Life and Music of R. Nathaniel Dett, and Mrs. W. A. Willis presented an interesting paper on the life and works of Dett, after which the club chorus sang, "I'll Never Turn Back No More," and "Little Lambs," and Mrs. Percy Pitts rendered a piano solo, "Juba" from In The Bottoms. The hostesses served a delicious ice course, after which the meeting adjourned.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

The annual banquet of the Music Appreciation Club held on Tuesday evening, May 21st in the dining room of the Methodist Church climaxed a year filled with high endeavor and fine achievement.

On this occasion members and their guests were seated around a banquet table of unusual artistic beauty. Flowers in the club colors, candle light, strains of the Federation Hymn celebrated the occasion.

Mrs. Ellis, emcee, assisted by Mrs. Percy Pitts and Mrs. W. A. Willis, reviewed the splendid work of the club under the leadership of Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, retiring president. The new officers were recognized, and Mrs. R. C. Williams, new president, made an inspiring address.

A group of very young student violinists from Montevallo, under the direction of Miss Clara Ordway, assistant professor of Music at Alabama College, presented the program. Among these artists was Miss Audrey Popwell of Clanton, a music major at Alabama College and a member of the graduating class. Miss Popwell assisted as accompanist, as director, and as violinists. The uniqueness of the program derived through the variety represented by violin solos, duets, quartets, and at one time twelve or more violins in ensemble created great interest. A desire was expressed that the youth of our community be provided with opportunities to study violin.

M. LOCKHART BEGINS NEW FIELD OF WORK

Editor Chilton County News:

I would appreciate a few lines just to say that we are moving into another field of work at Randolph, Ala. Just in case someone might not know, Randolph is located about 12 miles west of Jemison, Ala. just across the Bibb County line.

Our work here at the Holtville Riverside Baptist Church in Elmore County has been a joy and great success. We have had the privilege to work with some of the finest people in the world. It has been a great privilege to watch the church grow, not in leaps and bounds, but gradual and beautiful. The people rejoice in clinging together in Christian fellowship and spiritual unity.

The church here was organized in September, 1949, with eight charter members. It was the happy privilege of the writer to be in the organization and even to hold services in the homes before the church was organized. The church now is composed of more than 50 members with some of the finest consecrated leaders ever to grace any church.

The building was erected at an approximate cost of $9,000.00 and has been a full-time work since the day it was organized. And, useless to say, the church is located in one of the most beautiful sections in all Alabama.

People who have been here and watched the beautiful cooperation of the church would wonder why the writer would think of leaving such a fine field of work. Well, after praying over the matter of responding to a Macedonian call for three months it was my sincere conviction that the Lord would have me move on into another building program which includes educational rooms and a new pastorage in the Randolph Community.

We especially enjoyed the supper given to the pastor and family at the church here at Riverside a few nights ago. The occasion was attended by a large group of people and everybody was happy.

I think that we would be very ungrateful not to mention the fine love offering given by the church and friends of the community on the occasion of our last services with them. Some given before and since the services were held amounted to more than $150.00. The amount given during the services was $104.00. We thank God for our friends.

At one time we wondered if the Lord would be pleased for our building to conclude with the work here at Riverside, but it was not long before we felt and saw that it was His will for us to continue our building program a little longer. So, pray for us and come over to Randolph to see us some time.—M. Lockhart, Randolph, Ala.

SIT-DOWN IRONING IS MORE EFFICIENT

Auburn, Ala. — Recent studies showed that when seated comfortably at a board of the right height, 25 women used less tiring motions than when standing while they ironed.

When standing, they tended to exert unnecessary pressure on the iron or grasp the handle tightly. When sitting, they used an easy sliding motion which irons just as well with less effort.

"Also," says Miss Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist, "the studies showed that the ideal height of the board for a seated woman just clears her lap, and the ideal chair is a comfortable, armless office chair with a swivel seat, adjustable back rest and castors so that she can swing around to reach clothes basket or rack or move along the board for fast and easy work."

It was found that with such equipment women can iron for long hours without fatigue and with high efficiency.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

The Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for the Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., has announced an examination for Machinist, $141 per hour. Application forms and other information may be obtained from Reese G. Mullins at the local Post Office or at any first or second class post office located in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The Fifth Region of the U. S. Civil Service Commission has called attention to examinations for Professional Engineers, $3100 to $7600 a year. These examinations have been announced by boards of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for employment in specific installations. Examinations have been announced by boards of examiners at the long range proving ground, U. S. Air Force, Cocco, Ala., the Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., the South Atlantic Division Engineers, U. S. Army, Atlanta, Ga., Eglin Air Force Base, Eglin Field, Fla., and the Charleston Naval Shipyard, Charleston, S. C. Engineers desiring employment at these government installations should file applications with the Board of Examiners at the installation in which they are interested. Persons interested in employment as a professional engineer with government installations other than these listed above should file an application with the Fifth U. S. Civil Service Region, 5 Forsyth Street, Atlanta, Ga.

Application forms and other information can be obtained from Reese G. Mullins at the local Post Office or at any first or second class post office in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

JUNE DAIRY MONTH PROGRAM OUTLINED

Auburn, Ala. — Several representatives of Alabama's dairy industry were on hand at the A.P.I. Extension Service staff conference May 21 to present briefly the program for June Dairy Month.

Each year June Dairy Month is sponsored and supported by the entire dairy industry, including all phases of production, manufacturing, and distribution. Their slogan is "for a stronger nation—essential dairy foods." The program is designed to better acquaint the public with the value of milk and milk products.

Those who outlined the program included Jack Dunn, president of Alabama Dairy Products, Anniston; J. Lem Morrison, president of the Alabama Dairy Association, Greensboro; Albert Randall, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Dairy Committee, Seale; and Senator John Whaley, vice-president of the fluid milk division of Alabama Dairy Products, Opelika.

Mary Hulse, A. W. Jones, R. Y. Cannon, and J. R. Parrish, all from A.P.I., assisted in presenting the program outline for June Dairy Month.

FACTS ON KEEPING A STAND OF COTTON

Auburn, Ala. — The big job just ahead for many farmers is keeping their stand of cotton, according to O. N. Andrews, A.P.I. Extension Service cotton improvement specialist.

He points out that stands of cotton are quite often reduced when chopped. Often only one plant is left in a hill, and, of course, some choppers carelessly destroy a good stand. Careless cultivation takes its toll of cotton plants and further reduces stands in many fields. This loss is primarily caused by improper adjustment of cultivating equipment and careless operation.

"Best yields of cotton are obtained when there are 25,000 to 35,000 stalks per acre after cultivation is completed," asserts Andrews. "Therefore, to get this number of plants there should be two to three stalks 12 to 18 inches apart in rows three to three and one-half apart."

OLD MONTGOMERY THEATRE

This Theatre was built in 1860. It was here that all the great stars of the American stage came, and among these was John Wilkes Booth who killed President Lincoln. It was here also that Dan Emmett, hummed the tune "Dixie" to Herman F. Arnold, who wrote it down on the walls. Later Arnold went back and copied the tune, making it into an orchestra score.

STANTON NEWS

The Natural Gas meeting was well attended at the Stanton Jr. High School last Monday night at 7:30. Mayor McCain of Maplesville, Ala., had charge of this meeting. A number of our people signed for Natural Gas that night. A committee was selected to make a house to house canvass and to give the people a chance to secure natural gas, if wanted. This committee consisted of Mrs. Arthur Sims as Chairman, Mr. W. J. Fluker, Rev. Crowe and Miss Ruth Hicks as co-workers. This committee has just about completed their survey and their reports are encouraging. Its looks now as if the residents of Jones, Plantersville, Maplesville and Stanton will get Natural Gas.

Mr. McCain has held several meetings with our people and is to be commended for his fine community spirit as well as his able assistance to all workers in this cause.

Of interest throughout this section is the announcement of the birth of a daughter, Pamela, May 19, 1951, Selma Baptist Hospital, to S-Sgt. and Mrs. Jimmie Guthrie. Mrs. Guthrie was the former Dorothy Harville. S-Sgt. Guthrie is with Uncle Sam. His parents reside at Plantersville, Ala.

The infant son, Ladon, of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Duncan spent 2 or 3 days in a Selma Hospital last week. It seems from reports that this child was suffering with an ear infection. The father of this child is in Japan at this time, however, is expected home during the month of August.

Mrs. H. C. Dunkin and Mrs. Melvin Carter entertained the softball teams and their dates of Stanton and Plantersville at a weiner roast recently. This entertainment was held at the Dunkin residence and was attended by a large crowd. This was a happy get-together and such a nice time was reported by all who attended.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dunkin of Birmingham, Ala., spent the week end with their parents, the H. C. Dunkins.

Mrs. Howard Duncan and son, Ladon, have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Sammie Rogers of Marion Junction.

Miss Jimmie Gregg, daughter of Mrs. Stella Gregg, writes often to her mother and one letter particularly will be of interest to her many, many friends and relatives throughout this and adjoining communities. Miss Gregg is taking a 3-months course at Massillon State Hospital, Massillon, O. Miss Gregg states that approximately 300 student nurses are being trained in 14 hospitals in five states, are receiving psychiatric training at Massillon State Hospital. Each student nurse spends three months of her senior year at the Massillon institution where she studies under a teaching staff rated as one of the best in the country.

The affiliating hospitals are scattered over Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Alabama, and this year students from Mississippi are being sent to the Massillon Hospital for the first time. The number of students in training at Massillon, averages about 72 at a time. New groups of students are received from each hospital every three months, but the starting periods are staggered so that half of the hospitals change one month and half the next month, starting in January.

At Massillon State Hospital the type of actual nursing of the type required in modern mental institutions. They are so scheduled that each comes in contact with all phases of the treatments used at the state institution, which now houses over 3,000 patients.

Miss Gregg's picture together with four other student nurses appeared in a Massillon newspaper recently. The other girls were from Kentucky, Ohio, Mississippi and Indiana.

An 8-pound bass was landed Friday in the fishing pond of H. G. Mills at Plantersville, Ala., by Sol Osburn.

The pond is popular with fishermen of this section as well as from other sections. The fish are reported to be biting, and the pond has yielded some big catches. Mills is proud of the fact that women anglers have won as many honors there as have men, in landing the big ones.

Biennial Call For Election Of Trustees

In its regular session held on May 29, 1951, the Chilton County Board of Education designated Friday night, June 15, as the date for patrons of the various schools in the county to meet to nominate trustees for their school for the ensuing two years. This new term will begin July 1, 7:00 p.m. is the suggested hour for the meeting which will be held at the schoolhouse in each community. The present chairman of the local trustee board is designated as chairman of the meeting. In his absence, the local P-T-A. president or the principal of the school are suggested as chairman.

The state law provides that six people are to be nominated by the patrons of the school. These people should be people of good repute, interested in the welfare of the school and living within a reasonable distance of the school. From the six, the County Board of Education will elect three to serve as trustees. The ones elected will receive notice of such election shortly after their appointment.

Chairmen of the various meetings are requested to send in their lists immediately to the Superintendent of Education, Clanton.

SERVICES AT COURTHOUSE

Next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock we will again hold our services at the courthouse in Clanton for our men in the military service. Everyone is invited to attend and especially those of you who have sons or husbands in the service. And we hope you pastors who have boys from your church and community in the service will come and cooperate with us in this work.

The county sheriff has been very nice in allowing us to use the courthouse and we appreciate that very much for people do not have that privilege everywhere.

We cannot reach our sons who are fighting or serving in foreign lands, but if we are Christians we can join our hearts and our voices together in supplication to One Who can reach them wherever they may be. Won't you as a Christian please come and help us to intercede for our sons in this greatest danger they have ever faced. We do not want your money, but we desire your presence and prayerful support. Bro. Marvin Morris will speak after prayer and song service.

School Vandalism Is Reported In County

Recent months have seen an increase in vandalism of school property in Chilton County, according to a report from the County Superintendent of Education. Window panes are being smashed, and in many cases doors are being forced open to gain entrance to the buildings. In such cases, damage is deliberate and with criminal intent.

Destruction of school property means expense to the taxpaying public, since the public must bear the expense of replacing the destroyed property. Since the money allotted for this purpose is very limited, the Board finds it necessary to be slow about repairing the damages, and in some case it must be postponed indefinitely. A building that has already been visited invites further damaging by the unappreciative.

In many cases it is possibly the work of idle, shiftless youth. In others it is no doubt the work of the undeveloped mind of an adult. In either case, it is very difficult to trace down the culprit, since the only evidence they leave are usually a rock that has been thrown through a window light or some other simple instrument of destruction. School authorities can cope with the situation only with the help of interested citizens of the county. Such destruction is a criminal offense, and will be treated as such if evidence enough can be gathered to convict the guilty. If citizens who know definitely who does this type of thing will cooperate with school and law enforcement officials, the situation can be remedied. Until such an attitude can be developed among the citizenry of a community where such destruction prevails, we can expect the destructive to continue their destruction of the public's property unmolested.

You can help, the superintendent points out, by watching and reporting prowlers or vandals to school authorities or law enforcement officials, and by being ready to help in the conviction of the culprits.

SHERLOO BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

Our Homecoming and Singing last Sunday was a real success. Old and new friends and acquaintances were together again. Several of the former members came back, some that had not been there since getting their Church Letter. It was a great joy to see them meet again.

The morning service was the best we have ever had. Mrs. J. D. Culp made a very inspiring talk and led in prayer. Everyone enjoyed this talk by Mrs. Culp. At 11:15 Bro. Paul Oden brought a wonderful message. The Lord was truly leading in the program of the day.

After lunch the chairman of the singing, Mr. Jessie C. Jones, gave the signal to return to the house. The house was soon filled with some of the best singers and quartets in Chilton and Autauga Counties. Many said it was the best singing they had ever heard. We are grateful to Bro. Jessie C. Jones and all the quartets and to Carlos Owens for the loud speakers. We want to thank everyone who had anything to do with making the day a success—L. C. Keen.

5,000 Extra Votes To Be Given In Our Great Baby Competition Ending June 23

Because of the fact that our next issue of the Chilton County News will not be in your hands until a short time before the close, we take this opportunity to speak a final word of advice and encouragement to the parents and supporters of the darling little children who are competing for fame and fortune in our Great Baby Campaign.

Through an error in proof-reading last week, the date of closing was stated as June 16th. That is incorrect. The time of closing will be Saturday evening, June 23rd, so be advised, the Contest will be closed at that; this is definite and final.

Seven o'clock in the evening has been selected as the closing hour that will be two weeks from this forthcoming Saturday.

All certificates for votes that may be in your possession, must be in the ballot box when it is turned over to the gentlemen who have been selected to make the final tabulation of votes, otherwise they cannot be counted, and with this warning, the publisher of this newspaper refuses to accept responsibility for any that are not. Don't discover after the judges have left with the Ballot Box, that you have some certificates which you forgot to deposit in the Box. It will be too late then, and they will not be counted.

When the votes have been tabulated the judges will return to our office and announce the winners. In the event of a tie, the babies so tied, will be given equal cash prizes.

In a close race of this kind two or three subscriptions, that you could have secured—and did not—may be just the ones to spell defeat for your little champion; be sure this does not happen in your case, at least. Do your very best these last few days and then, should defeat be your portion, you will have the satisfaction of knowing you did your very best; no one can do more.

The votes list in today's issue continues to go along with no appreciable advantage. However, don't let it confuse you or give you a certain sense of security, because your little one is right up with the others. In many cases this does not show their real strength; they may be holding a number of votes in reserve. This is the list that will be turned over to the Judges to which they will add the votes found in the Ballot Box.

As a matter of fact, practically any of the little sweethearts remaining in the race can easily be listed among the prize-winners if they have good results during this last period.

The territory has been pretty well gone over, we presume, and undoubtedly, subscriptions are not easily picked up, nevertheless there are quite a few who promised to help the Baby later on before the campaign closed. If they are to have a part in your little one's success, they can put it off no longer; get in touch with them and during these last few days, overlook no opportunity that might result in votes for your little one; it's now or never, you know and be assured you have our best wishes for your success.

The Judges who are to make the final count are now being selected and their names will be published next week, they will be men you all know and trust and their findings will be accepted without question.

AMERICAN SONG

"I hear America singing," wrote Walt Whitman in an early interpretation of the Voice of America as a great, full-throated chorus. The mechanic singing, "blithe and strong"; the shoemaker, the plowboy, the young wife at work, the girl sewing or washing—"Each singing what belongs to him or her and to none else."

The song that is the American promise of a free and abundant life for every individual is going out through many unofficial channels. Perhaps none is more important than the letters Americans send abroad. Almost half a million went to Russia last year.

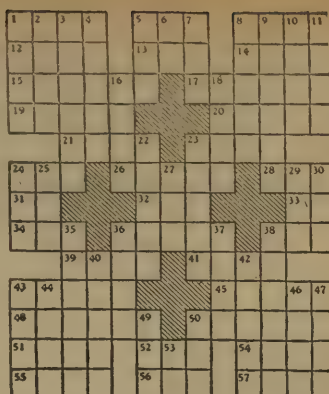

Americans writing to friends or relatives abroad have the chance to make their letters really reflect the truth about their country. Not through empty boasting, not necessarily through political discussion, certainly not through anything that would endanger the recipients in police states, but through their individual expression of the spirit and details of free life in a free land.

Such a tide of letters from Italian-Americans helped to turn back the Communist threat in Italy a few years ago, and it can help to promote world peace today. The Common Council for American Unity has urged Americans to take more conscious thought on this matter. Whitman's free individual—"singing what belongs to him or her and to none else"—can take part in that greater chorus of shared experience which excludes no one anywhere from the freedom it celebrates.—Christian Science Monitor.

Answer to Puzzle No. 136

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Dr. W. C. Golden has moved his office out into his pretty, modern, little clinic on Selma Road. Don't think he has completed fixing everything just as he wanted it, but he moved in on June 1, anyway. It will be, when finished, credit to that neighborhood as it is a very attractive little building and when he completes his landscaping you can depend on a most modern doctor's office in the Fourteen-hundred block on Selma Road.

Dave Tingle and his co-workers in the Veterans Administration who moved into Dr. Golden's old office next to the County Board of Education, tells us they had quite a day of the first day after Dr. Golden moved out. Dave says they spent more time explaining where Dr. Golden might be found than they did at their jobs. The Veterans moved from upstairs over the Upchurch Drug Company, you know.

Good news for Clanton Methodists—Rev. J. W. McKinney has returned here for another year. The Methodists held their Conference at Montgomery last week and made appointments on the final day which was last Sunday. The McKinneys are very much appreciated in Clanton County and we extend to them our very best wishes for the year ahead and for all the years to come. J. Carlisle Miller who moved from here to Panama City, Fla. was returned to that church for another year and W. B. (Jack) Atkinson, who was at Clanton Methodist year before last, was returned to the Toulminville Methodist Church at Mobile.

Surely it was this kind of weather that inspired the song: "How Dry I Am."

Master Sergeant "Dock" Parrish is home after having spent the past 11 months in Korea. "Dock," or Emmett Derrill Parrish as he was christened, has been in five invasions and Clanton and Chilton County should be proud of him and his record of service to his country. He was in the invasion of Sicily; at Anzio Beach on the way to Rome in January, 1944; later the invasion of Germany. One year ago this month "Dock" was sent to Korea where he participated in that invasion. Mrs. Parrish, whose home is in Elton, Va., and the Sgt. have one child, a son, who will enjoy his 30-day furlough before he reports for duty at Fort Meade, Md.

Chilton County's luscious peaches are ready for market and the crop is much better than some estimates. Positive proof is a beauty sitting atop our typewriter raised on the farm of Willie Hamilton. Just as soon as we finish this paragraph we will be able to tell you about the flavor of this year's crop.

Dr. J. S. Gowan, of Huntsville, has been appointed a member of the Advisory Council of the State Department of Industrial Relations. Dr. Gowan is a son of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Gowan of Clanton. We congratulate Dr. Gowan on the signal honor and wish him well.

Your Health HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES

Arteriosclerosis is a condition wherein the arteries have lost their flexibility and elasticity. While the disease is associated with the aging process, it also develops in the younger age group.

The only function of the arteries is to convey blood to the cells which make up the various organs, muscles and bones of the body. So long as the amount of blood received or the rate at which the blood is received by a given organ is adequate for its nutrition nothing happens. But if the arteries become obstructed or so narrow that the flow of blood is interfered with, the groups of cells within the organ die, impairing its function. Again the blood supply may be sufficient for the organ at rest but insufficient when the organ is working.

In arteriosclerosis the hardening may be only an increase in the thickness of the wall of the artery with some loss of elasticity and narrowing. Again there may be patchy or plaque-like deposits of fat in and just beneath the lining membrane of the artery. Gradually, calcium salts, which are normally present in the body, are deposited in these fatty patches where they remain to become stony hard.

While the exact cause of arteriosclerosis is not known, heredity is considered a factor. Overweight is also a factor, since it is found twice as frequently in obese people. Infections, chronic overwork, long periods of inadequate rest, and continuous nervous and emotional tension are other factors that enter into the picture of hardening of the arteries.

As in everything else, moderation is indicated in the prevention of a premature arteriosclerosis. A slower pace of living, strict attention to good hygiene and attention to keeping the weight within normal limits are basic influences. While we cannot prevent or replace the old, once the hardening process has started, certain drugs, operative procedures and other medical management alleviate the condition.

VALUE OF MILK

To avoid lack of vitamins and minerals in the diet, adults should consume at least one pint of milk a day. U. S. Department of Agriculture data show that 75 per cent of the calcium consumed by people in the United States comes from dairy products.

FARM MACHINERY SPEED

Pulling machines faster than the speed for which they are designed is not a good practice. Vibration and shaking loosens parts from their mountings and causes them to shift out of alignment.

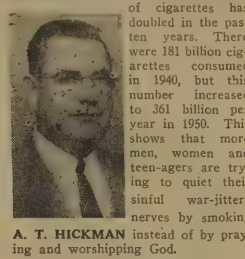

KEEP EGGS IN THE REFRIGERATOR

Don't confuse the egg with the banana and leave both products out of the refrigerator. Eggs keep their freshness and good flavor much longer in the refrigerator.

Melt butter in the pie pan when making banana cracker pie. Add the cracker crumbs and mix. This saves washing an extra pan, and you don't waste any butter.

Our Changing Times

"Just look how the world has made a change." This seems to be the common comment nowadays. Of course this old world has made a change. For the most part it has changed for the worse and not for the better. Americans are consuming more cigarettes than ever before. The consumption of cigarettes has doubled in the past ten years. There were 181 billion cigarettes consumed in 1940, but this number increased to 361 billion per year in 1950. This shows that more men, women and teen-agers are trying to quiet their sinful war-jittery nerves by smoking.

A. T. HICKMAN instead of by praying and worshipping God.

In our Capital City of Washington, D.C., more than 60 per cent of the people never go to church. Only 34.4% of the residents in the Nation's Capitol attend church at any time during the year, and many of those go only once a year. Only 28.4% attend church every Sunday. And only 51 per cent of the whole population are affiliated with some church. This is less than the national average. And we have also discovered that in America, families not on relief, four out of five have no members of the family who drink beer, wine, or whiskey. But the families on relief, four out of five have members of the family who drink. This shows that liquor and poverty go hand-in-hand. Who hath wept, who hath sorrow? They that tarry long at the wine." (Prov. 23:29-30).

According to the Sunday School Times, Mr. J. Edgar Hoover places the blame for the widespread immorality and crime directly upon secular, materialistic philosophy. He said, "The continuing flood of immorality and crime accompanies an all-too-evident substitution of a secular, materialistic philosophy for the historic reliance upon divine guidance which has been a cornerstone of our democracy. For the youth who has experienced old fashioned Christian training and discipline in the home and has received sound, efficient Bible teaching in Sunday School has been given a sword and battle against temptation. Parents must create in the home an atmosphere of Christian living and reliance upon divine guidance. This can be accomplished by a revival of family Bible reading and prayer." And it is true that we need to restore in the American home the old fashioned family altar, and Bible reading and family worship. There are too many hell-holes in this country that are so-called homes.

Friend, awake, and prepare to meet thy God. — Hickman.

To prevent the occasional chipping of china by accident while washing it in the sink, try this idea. Slip a short piece of rubber tubing over the ends of the faucets. This keeps the china from striking the metal. A rubber mat on the drainboard of the sink will also act as a china protector.

To weigh a live chicken, bend a wire coat hanger into an inverted U and slip the bird's feet through the ends. This saves tying the chicken's feet and prevents it from flopping.

INCOME FROM WILDLIFE

Hunting rights on Alabama farms sold to sportsmen brought $257,405 last year. Wild animals pelts sold for more than $124,500. And producers of fishbait made $291,281.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

Fear of Fighting

My son is eight years old, strong and healthy. My problem is that he will not defend himself. He runs away from a fight. For instance, one of the boys on the block took his hand off and ran home with it. I told my son to go get it and his reply was "no." That the boy would beat him up. He has only one sister, but his father is willing to try to help solve this problem.

It is unfortunate, of course, that your son runs away from a fight, especially if his running away is an indication of fear, which I judge you feel it is. If he refuses to fight because he feels that more intelligent ways of settling disputes, he is to be commended. This does not seem to be the case, however. It should be remembered that children vary considerably in their liking of and readiness for a fight when confronted with a situation in which a fight may be expected. Your son, evidently doesn't like physical combat and there is not much that you can do to change that situation.

To heap ridicule or shame upon him will only increase his insecurity and make him even more loath to fight. You can encourage him to defend himself, however, and give him approval when he does so; his father may help if he teaches him how to box.

It is especially important that he should have ample opportunities to play with boys of his own age and place. In the rough-and-tumble of such play, he is likely to learn how to defend himself, especially if you encourage him to do so.

If he spends most of his time playing with his sister, or playing by himself, it is not strange that he should shrink from a fight, especially if the outcome of the fight is somewhat in doubt!

Let Them Whoop!

We are hearing many complaints about teen-agers' habits in our community—especially about the "war-whooping" late at night on the way home from group activities. How far should parents go in curbing the exuberance of youth?

It's when there isn't any "war-whooping" that parents need to be concerned about their youth.

As long as boys and girls go to group activities and have a joyous, albeit rather noisy, time on the way home, there isn't a great deal about which to be disturbed. After all, they are just normal youngsters.

Unless expressions of exuberance get out of bounds of reason and propriety, therefore, I am not certain that parents should make much effort to curb the enthusiasm of youth. If we do not surround our adolescents with too many restrictions and if they feel that we are trying to be fair and understanding, they are likely to listen to us when we feel it is wise to make suggestions about the possible curbing in certain situations of their exuberance. As long as we can expect them to manifest the thoughtfulness and judgment of adults, we can expect them to have some regard for the rights and privileges of others. Most young people, for example, will curb their "whoop" when passing hospitals or homes in which people are known to be sick.

If there are many complaints about teen-agers' habits in your community, and the complaints seem justified, it may be because there are not sufficient opportunities for wholesome recreation. Wise and skilled youth leaders, employed by the community or the church for a recreational and general youth program, can do much to improve the habits of teen-agers.

Help Them Obey You

I am a very busy mother of three children, aged seven, five and two. My husband and I have always insisted on obedience and therein lies my problem. The children are sweet and good, but so often put up an argument when asked to do something—or when called in from play for dinner or bedtime. What are we doing wrong that makes them that way?

I am not at all sure that you have anything particularly to worry about. In fact, there would be more cause for worry on your part if your children always obeyed promptly without any argument whatsoever. If they did so, it would be an indication either that they stood in great fear of you and your husband, which most certainly you do not want, or that they had lost the natural respect and awe which is one of the prerequisites of normal childhood.

It may be, however, that you accentuate their normal tendency to argue by not giving them reasons for the commands that you give them. Let me suggest that whenever possible, you do so.

If children realize that we have a good reason for what we ask them to do, they are much more likely to obey without undue questioning than if our commands are given in a more or less peremptory manner which we falsely assume is our right because we are their parents. Even then, however, they may question our judgment at times. (Sometimes, rightly so.)

It is important, also, that when you call them in from play you prepare them for the final summons. Give them a warning that within fifteen or twenty minutes, play will be time for them to come in. This will enable them to bring their play to a more satisfactory close than if they are expected to come immediately when called without previous warning.

If they continue to argue needlessly, then all you can do is to be firm, refuse to argue, and insist that now is the time that they must come in. If they don't come, the penalty may be to go without a meal—it won't hurt them—or to stay indoors the next evening.

Do What You Fear To Do

AT ONE TIME John Stemle, Jasper, Ind., was afraid to spend the night on the river unless he had a companion and left a carbide lamp burning all night. Not that the companion had to be a fighter; he just had to be there. Not that a little light was so much protection; it could work the other way around.

It was necessary for him to take these river trips in order to attract the attention of a manufacturer for the mass production of a boat he had designed. The questions most frequently asked by the man whom he would encounter in a two dollar rowboat, or in a $30,000 cruiser, was "Aren't you afraid at night? What do you do with yourself?"

Yes, he was afraid. And he searched for things to do in a pup tent on a dark, rainy night on a Mississippi sandbar. Sound is multiplied when you are lying with your ear to the ground. A fox or a coon coming down to the river sounds like a bear crashing through the underbrush. A fish crane looks pretty harmless by day, but at night the sounds it makes are horrible and terrifying. There's another little bird, no bigger than your fist, that emits a blood-curdling, mournful scream. Hearing those noises, made John afraid. Beyond the bounds of his tent, when they occur, one after the other, and sometimes several in unison, there are just two things you can do: (1) Bury your head under a blanket and let your imagination run wild. (2) Open your flap tent and go out and discover from where the noise emanates. The latter is the one and only thing to do, for the moment you discover the source of the sounds, you no longer fear them.

"Conquering that fear of noise at night," says John Stemle, "taught me to conquer other fears. For instance, when anything bothers me to the point of fright, I simply search for the origin or if it is mental, for the cause. Then when I have done that, fear dissipates into thin air."

This is just one more example of applying the advice: "Do what you fear to do, and your fear will no longer exist."

Fly fishing seems to be the style that pays off with best results, as spring begins to fade into summer. Many cane pole and bait casters are trying the fly rods for the first time.

and are finding a new experience in the old sport of angling. The thrill and anxiety that accompanies a catch made on one of these long slender rods is long remembered. A small fighting bluegill or a muskie largemouth, all produce a sensation, unsurpassed. Every single tug and movement is transmitted to the hands as the fight goes on, back and forth, through the willow branches, about the stumps, under the boat and finally, into the land net. The art of fly fishing is mastered only by long patient hours of practice, but even the greenest tenderfoot will get an occasional strike and after a few catches, well—there is another fly fisherman, and then, it's look out, you finny tribe.

Entries in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest pour in as the month of May prize winner is being determined.

LAKE MARTIN—
Lake Hill Inn, at the bridge near Alexander City, has been fisherman's headquarters during the month of May. Mr. W. L. Pemberton, reports: Chester Johnson, 201 Combs Street, Prattville, fished near the mouth of Elkahatchee Creek with a brown Lazy Ike and reeled in a 7 pound 12 ounce Largemouth Bass; Willard E. Motes, 213 South, Elm Street, Sylacauga, used a 9 foot fly rod and a Pepper Popping Bug (black and white) near Pineywood Camp, and after 9 1/2 minutes of hard playing, a 6 pound 12 ounce Largemouth Bass was landed; J. E. Pruett, 720 Cotton Avenue, Birmingham, also fished the mouth of Elkahatchee Creek using a Yellow Popping Bug and boated a 6 pound 9 ounce Largemouth Bass; Jimmie Ralph Pemberton, Alexander City, had good luck with a Yellow Fly Bug by reeling a 4 pound 8 ounce Smallmouth Bass. His catch was made in the River near Lake Hill Inn; Jim Chapman, Box 483, Alexander City, succeeded in landing a 9 ounce Bluegill Bream. The catch was made with a Yellow Jacket Fly Bug, near the double bridges.

Mrs. Lee S. Parks, Camp Kowaliga, at the bridge, reports: Raymond Guy, 423 Seventh Way, Alexander City, caught a 6 pound 4 ounce Largemouth Bass. Raymond used a Yellow Jacket Fly Bug and fished near the Kowaliga Creek Bridge; T. J. Dunn, 102 Putnam Street, Montgomery, fished near Pine Point with live bait on fly rod to catch his 5 pound 12 ounce Largemouth Bass.

LAKE YATES—
Mrs. H. E. Dopson, Dopson's Store, Red Hill, reports: Woodson Ingram, Route 1, Tallapoosa, fished in the head waters of the Lake with live bait and caught a 5 pound 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

LAKE LAY—
H. C. Leigh's Fishing Camp, Waxahatchee Creek, reports: W. T. Evans, Mulga, tried a Jigger Pole and a Green Broken Back Pike to lure a 6 pound 3 ounce Largemouth Bass into battle. During the schuffle the pole broke but the line was tied about half way down the pole and saved the day. The catch was made near Leigh's Camp.

A cotton yarn factory was established near Huntsville, prior to Sept. 29, 1820, by Horatio Jones & Co., and in 1832, the state legislature incorporated the Bell Factory of the County of Madison for the manufacture of cotton cloth, near the same location, on the Flint river. The Bell concern operated 3,000 spindles and 100 looms, and for 10 or 15 years was probably the most industrial enterprise in the State, except the Pratt grist factory and associated industries at Prattville.

The Captain Porter King House on Main Street at Marion, Ala., was the home of the Confederate officer to whom General Bee, at the first Battle of Manassas, made the remark about General Thomas J. Jackson "standing like a stone wall." From this time on Jackson was known to his troops as "Stonewall Jackson."

Prior to 1860, two hundred and thirty-three boats plied the Alabama Rivers.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

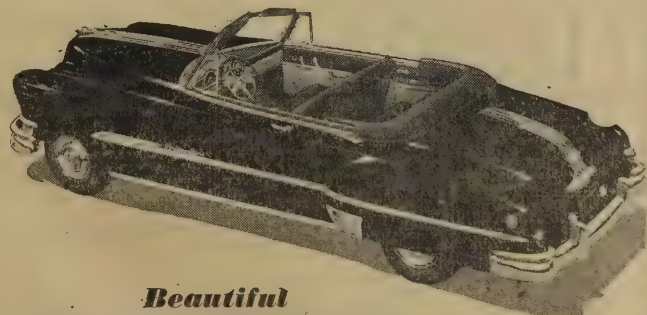

This institution for negroes was founded by Booker T. Washington in 1881, and today its 132 buildings occupy 1,800 acres. On the Chapel windows of the institute are depicted in stained glass the history of the American negro as expressed in the religious folk music of the race. It was here, in 1896, that George Washington Carver began his experiments, obtaining over 300 extractions from the peanut, and from the sweet potato over 175 by-products.

The committee whose duty it was to plan programs for three Sundays during the absence of the pastor reported the following plans:

June 10: Bro. Griffin will bring the message in the morning. For the evening we will have a special film, "The Old Beggar of Jerusalem." Herschel Smith will be in charge of the program.

June 17: Morning service by the Young People; Mrs. Lota Mae Marcus and Mrs. Reinhardt will be in charge. Song service in the evening with Mr. Billingsley and Mrs. Davenport in charge.

June 24: Bro. Griffin will deliver the morning message. In the evening there will be a special film, "Thy Will Be Done," which is taken from a missionary theme, the setting of which has to do with missions in China. Arden Folk will be in charge of the program.

We feel that the congregation will be well pleased with the program outlined by the committee for the three Sundays that our pastor will be attending the Southern Baptist Convention in San Francisco.

We wish to extend a cordial welcome to all visitors present.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

TESTIMONY in the great debate over the MacArthur affair dined on before a joint senate committee, the rest of congress moved to get some legislative work done, and there was even talk in some quarters of a summer recess or early adjournment, despite the log jam of legislative matters pending.

Most important of the legislation which must be enacted between now and June 30 is extension of the defense production act of 1950; the extension of reciprocal trade; military and economic aid to Europe and the east; the draft and universal military training and some other lesser legislation, including more veterans benefits, rent control extension, etc.

All major aid programs also expire June 30. The President's message on this question was expected to be in the hands of congress before the end of May, and if congress needs as much time for debate on the question as in the past, the deadline will not be met, and temporary extensions would be in order.

The foreign aid bill likely will include the Marshall plan aid for economic rehabilitation; economic aid for South Korea, non-Communist China and nearby areas; technical aid (the four-point program); arms aid to the Atlantic pact nations and arms aid for Greece, Turkey, Iran, Nationalist China and the Philippines. It may be that discussion on this measure will determine, insofar as congress is concerned, whether our foreign policy should place major emphasis on Europe, or as General MacArthur advises, make the Asian theatre the major area of American aid and action.

Political observers here see in the domestic economic picture a reversal of sentiment to some extent over that of a year ago. It will be remembered that President Truman in the summer of 1950 asked for limited powers to stimulate military production. However, the congress heaped upon him extensive powers over wages and prices as well as production, and these programs have been placed into action with set-up of the various mobilization agencies such as the national production authority and the office of price stabilization, with the defense production administration, presided over by Charles E. Wilson, as the over-all policy making agency.

Newest segment to fan the dissidents into action is the rebellion—not by consumers—but by livestock men, meat packers, distributors and feeders over rollbacks on live and dressed beef, all despite the fact that the live beef ceilings are at some 140 per cent above parity price, which generally is conceded to be a fair price on farm produce, including live.

It is fairly well known in Washington that Secretary of Agriculture Brannan was not particularly strong for imposition of beef price roll-backs. However, the secretary has approved the OPS ceiling prices and believes they should be given a chance to work. While declaring that we must watch closely cattle marketings and production in the months ahead, and the feed situation as compared to cattle production, Secretary Brannan asserts that judging from the actual experience of the rate at which cattle numbers were increased in 1949 and 1950, average cattle and calf prices at about the 1950 level, which will be allowed by the OPS ceilings, these prices still constitute a reasonable incentive for continuing production of beef animals.

Secretary Brannan points out that beef animals require only about a third as much grain as hogs and other animals and he pointed out how beef herds increased almost two million head during 1949 when the farm price of cattle averaged $19.00 and how the herds increased by 4.1 million head in 1950 at prices averaging $23.10 and the January average, 1951 of $27.00 was even more favorable, while the OPS ceiling price at the Chicago yards ranging from $27.30 for commercial grades up to $37.05 for prime grades.

So observers here declare it is hard to reconcile the statements made by cattlemen, some farm leaders and others, that OPS ceiling prices will only cause severe shortages, black markets, and rationing at a time when the parity on cattle as of April 1, 1951 averaged only $19.90.

Reverend Paul Oden and Fred Kelley attended the alumni and workers association convention, which was held from the 20th through the 28th of May, at the Alabama School for Blind, from where they both received their high school education, at Talladega, Ala. This association's members are made up of graduates from the Alabama School for the Blind and the State of Alabama.

We might also mention that different groups of this association are turning out work devoted entirely toward the war effort. The alumni and workers association of the Alabama School for the Blind is a fast growing organization in many ways and it has great potential progress ahead. It isn't a selfish egoistic organization, but a group reaching out toward higher levels. One of the chief aims is to help the blind and partial sighted boys, girls, men and women who are trying to help themselves, and Fred Kelly would like to remind the people of Maplesville and his friends that when you weigh on the penny weighing machines located on the streets of Maplesville, in front of stores and other businesses, that every penny is going into the treasury of a worthy organization. The Alumni and Workers Association of the Alabama School for the Blind. Headquarters are in Talladega, Ala.

Let us take this opportunity to thank Mr. Kelly for the above information. It has really opened our eyes to an association that some of us did not know existed. May it grow and have great progress.

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Eugenia Blackburn, Tracy, Calif.: I remember when we washed with a battling stick. We would soak soiled clothes in suds, lay them on a block and beat the dirt out.

From Ina J. Kellogg, Omaha: I remember when the grocer had pound rings of pure maple sugar with a hole in the middle.

From A.E.E., Waynesville, Ohio: I remember when my aunt scrubbed her hardwood kitchen floor with rush, a coarse green weed which grows in wet ground. She made a sort of brush, used sand and homemade lye soap.

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, V. Va.: I remember when men's shoes had loops on the back to pull them on.

From C. E. Picas, Chitpley, Fla.: I remember when country folks had open dug wells and many had long "well awseps," and all used the old oaken bucket.

Diamond News—

The Clanton baseball fans were treated to a fast game last Thursday night between two Alabama Mills baseball teams. Wetumpka won out over Clanton by a score of 7 to 4.

The visitors drove Clanton's pitcher, C. L. Coggins, from the mound in a four run out burst in the second inning. H. Smith came in to relieve and checked the visitors while the Clanton boys fought back.

Wetumpka led only five to four at the end of the eighth, but they went to work in the ninth to ice the game by scoring two more runs.

The visitors presented two good pitchers, Blackwell and Law. For the home team it was Bannister who was the outstanding player. He came through with three hits, and several nice catches in left field.

ISABELLA GAME—

Junior Coggins pitched and won his fourth game of the year without a loss as the Alabama Mills boys got the best of Isabella by a score of 12-6. Coggins only had one bad inning in the third the Isabella team mixed four hits with three errors to produce four runs. In the other eight frames they got only three singles for the home team, Chambers and Milton slapped out three base hits each Jack Lowery got a single, double and drove in three runs for the Mill team.

DRAPER GAME—

Johnny Smith pitched the Mill team to a victory over Draper Prison at Draper Sunday. Smith went into the game with a badly swollen finger on his pitching hand and he pitched on courage alone.

At the end of the fifth inning, Draper led by a score of 4 to 1. The Mill boys came to life in the sixth, pushing five big runs across the plate and led six to four at the end of seven innings. In the eighth frame the Clanton boys scored one more but Smith, tired, and the Draper team rallied for six runs and held 10 to 7, going into the ninth.

In the final inning an atom bomb struck Draper. The Mill team got four walks, five singles, two doubles and a home run to score eight times. By the end of the inning, the base paths were a circle of dust.

Lechman Jones was the big gun that blasted Draper. He rapped out two singles, a double and a long home run. The first baseman really had a busy day.

The Draper team scored twice in the ninth. The final score was 15-12 in favor of Alabama Mills.

Johnny Smith would have had a much easier time, but Rogers of Draper made the going tough by hitting three home runs over the left field fence.

Games scheduled for this week are: Wetumpka at Holtville, Wednesday night; Stanton vs. Clanton at City Park Saturday, and Thorshy vs. Clanton, there, Sunday.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

Information on the number and characteristics of persons who are still not covered by Social Security on their present jobs will be obtained as a part of the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey in June, it was announced today by District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin from her office at Clanton. In the Current Population Survey, the Census Bureau each month interviews a cross-section of 25,000 households throughout the country, including many in the Chilton-Perry area, in order to obtain up-to-date information on employment conditions in the nation, Miss Griffin said.

Recent extension of Social Security to include many persons previously outside the program—year-round farm workers, private household workers and self-employed persons were some of those recently brought under the program—makes it especially desirable to secure information about that segment of the labor force still without protection. The results of the June survey will show what kinds of work these persons do, the type of industry they work in, and what their personal characteristics are.

The current survey, in addition, will provide the official government figures on employment and unemployment. In April, according to figures developed from the Population Survey, employment showed little change, remaining at about 800 million as a post-Easter drop in trade offset gains in other sectors of the economy. However, many previously unemployed workers found jobs in construction and other expanding activities. As a result, unemployment dropped by 400,000 to the lowest April level in 8 years—4.7 million.

The survey will be conducted in the Chilton-Perry area during the week of June 11 to 16. Supervisor Griffin emphasized that all information reported in the survey is held in absolute confidence and that only statistical summaries are ever published.

COMPARED WITH OTHER THINGS YOU BUY...

TELEPHONE SERVICE

is still a Big Bargain!

Shopping nowadays is a reminder of what a bargain your telephone service is. Not only has telephone service gone up far less in price than most other things during the last ten years, but it has also increased in quantity and improved in quality.

While the overall cost of living has increased about three-fourths, Alabama's residence telephone rates have advanced less than one-third. Meanwhile, throughout most of Alabama, the number of telephones you can call at the local service rate has nearly tripled. And the service is better.

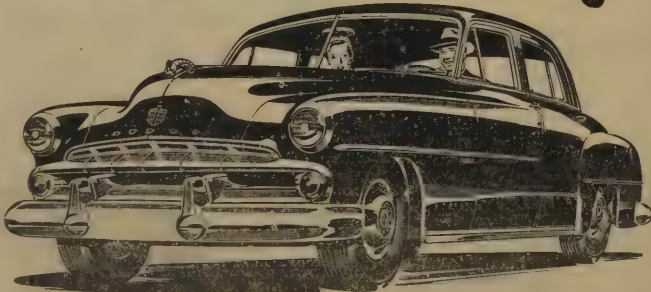

Considering that wages and family income have about doubled, telephone service stands out as a bigger bargain and a relatively smaller item in the family budget than it was ten years ago.

FARMERS URGED TO STEP UP PRODUCTION

Farmers can step up their production in two ways—by adding more land and by making the land they own produce more. Usually they find it more practical and economical to develop the land already owned, says Joe M. Murphree, County Supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration.

If the farm a family owns is not productive enough to earn a good living on and if the family lacks the money to improve it, they may be able to get a Farmers Home Administration loan for farm development.

Credit for this purpose was authorized in the F.H.A. Act of 1946, which included provisions for loans to improve under-developed farms and loans to enlarge underused farms.

Farm Development loans are made for clearing land, fencing, seeding and basic fertilizer, for perennials or annual re-seeding plants, as well as buildings, water supply and refinancing.

The Farmers Home Administration is trying to supplement the local banks and lending agencies, and offer up to forty years at an interest rate of 4%.

CARE OF INFRA-RED LAMPS ON THE FARM

Auburn, Ala. — Infra-red heat lamps are coming into wide use on Alabama farms for the brooding of chickens, pigs, and turkeys. These lamps are a good source of heat for brooding, but they can be dangerous if not properly protected against breakage.

Heat lamps can be obtained in either hard glass or regular glass. The hard glass lamp will not break as easily as the regular lamp, but it costs about three times as much as the regular lamp.

"The higher cost of the hard glass lamps has limited their use and has spread the use of the regular glass type," observes William T. Cox, A.P.I. Extension Service specialist in farm buildings. "Because of the fact that these regular infra-red heat lamps may be broken if touched by a sow's nose or a wet glove or if dripping water or chicken droppings strike them, precautions must be taken to provide for their safe operation."

Cox says that these precautions include providing porcelain sockets or lamp holders, rubber covered cords, hanging heat lamps from a light chain or wire so that they cannot fall into the litter, and protecting the lamp by means of a deep reflector so that water cannot drop on it. Also, no more than six 250 watt heat lamps should be used on a 15 ampere circuit, and lamps should be hung at the proper heights for the livestock being brooded.

The cartons in which heat lamps are sold list the manufacturer's recommendations for their use. If these recommendations as well as those of the county agent and electric company's representative are followed, infra-red lamps are one of the safest pieces of heating equipment available.

ALABAMA COW SETS PRODUCTION RECORD

A Talladega County cow has been proclaimed champion milk producer over all cows in her class in the United States.

Her owner, R. B. Kent, was recently presented a silver cup by the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club in recognition of her record which was 17,291 pounds of milk and 797 pounds of butterfat.

The cow joined the Kent herd a few years ago when Mr. Kent purchased a carload of cattle from Canada. She was just another good cow in the eyes of the owner, but when she was put on good grazing and managed properly she proved by official test what Jersey cows are capable of doing.

"It is the first national champion record that an Alabama cow has made in a long time," says Pete Turnham, A.P.I. Extension Service dairyman. "Even though some splendid Alabama Jerseys have come very close to national records in the past few years, it took this cow to come through and top them all."

TIPS ON THE CARE OF GARDEN DUSTER

Auburn, Ala. — When you use a garden duster, it is cheaper to do without one than to pay to take care of a duster, especially since new ones may become scarce. J. C. Ford, A.P.I. Extension Service garden specialist, points out that a garden dust containing Bordeaux mixture or other copper compounds left in a duster will corrode and ruin it.

When copper solutions are used in a sprayer, it should be emptied and rinsed out immediately after the job is finished or at the end of the day. A dust that does not contain copper may be left in the duster if it is kept dry.

Fold pillow slips together in pairs when you iron them. Then you won't have to search for matching ones when changing your bed linen.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

S. D. Posey and A. B. Milford have a mighty good stand of kudzu from seed planted this spring.

J. L. Freeman, Dry Valley, "The sericea on this old hill gives good grazing during the summer. It is especially good for dry times like we are having now."

Mr. Freeman is basing his summer grazing on sericea and winter grazing on fescue or white clover.

Jack Roberts is harvesting crimson clover now and will turn land as soon as possible and make a late June planting of sericea on 40 acres.

The last of this week or the first of next week fescue will be ready for harvest. The following have fescue they expect to harvest: Charlie Patterson, W. L. Parrish, C. C. Carlton, C. R. Childress, Hunter Rasco, J. N. Dennis, Jack Roberts, C. C. Fiquette and G. U. Mims.

George Jarrell and B. R. Crowson have bicolor lespedeza seed and will plant the last of June.

N. L. Roberts, Sam Johnson, Bowling Robinson, R. O. Williams and Charlie Patterson have a good stand of Bahia Grass.

Good fields of crimson clover are being harvested on the following farms: J. N. Dennis, C. C. Fiquette, J. L. Freeman and Jack Roberts.

Julian Hicks and James Darby have an excellent stand of sericea in their meadow outlets.

CABBAGE ROLLS FOR A DELICIOUS TREAT

Cabbage rolls play the role of a main dish if prepared in the following manner, according to Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist.

Wash fresh, green cabbage leaves and wilt them in hot, lightly salted water until they are limp enough to roll. Mix chopped or ground cooked meat with bread crumbs, cooked rice, or mashed potatoes. Add melted fat, an onion chopped fine, and moisten with gravy, milk, chili sauce, or catsup. Salt and pepper to taste.

Next, put some of the stuffing mixture on each cabbage leaf and roll it up. Place the rolls in a baking dish, add hot gravy or a very little hot water, cover the dish, and bake in a moderate oven for about three-fourths of an hour, or until tender.

KITCHEN CONVENIENCE MEANS ENERGY SAVED

Auburn, Ala. — A long-familiar rule for convenience in the kitchen has been to place the sink, range, and refrigerator within easy stepping distance of each other.

"Recently," says Stella Mitchell, A. P.I. Extension Service home management specialist, "the need for including the meal table in this easy-reach pattern has been found important for saving steps and labor."

Therefore, the specialist adds that a good rule is to arrange the kitchen so that the sum of the distances between range, sink, refrigerator, and dining-room is as small as possible.

If the dining table is at a distance from sink and range, smart housewives can save much back-tracking by using a table on wheels to roll in meals and roll out the dishes afterward.

This Month in rural Alabama

JUNE 7, 1951

SECTION OF - CHILTON COUNTY NEWS - CLANTON, ALA.

The Winter Green Story

GROWING winter legumes for soil improvement and livestock feed is an old story to many Alabama farmers—but it's a story worth telling again and again.

About this time each year good farmers begin to plan for the use they will make of their land during the fall and winter months. They know that legumes are one of the most important parts of a winter cover program. And farmers who cover their land with green each winter are aware of the increased yields they get from many crops, particularly cotton and corn, that follow winter legumes.

The production of winter legumes and grasses is a double-barreled program. Green grazing during the winter months is one of the best ways known for keeping dairy cattle at high level production at low cost. And beef cattle put on extra pounds when grazed on green crops during the winter.

Then there is the increased fertility of the soil. Farmers report that corn following winter legumes that have been turned under produced higher yields. And cotton in rotation with corn and winter legumes produces as much as 300 pounds more lint per acre.

Vetch, crimson clover, Austrian winter peas, Casey peas, blue lupine, ryegrass and oats are the main crops planted.

Although growers planted more winter cover crops last year than ever before, the results were poor. The hard winter seriously damaged or set back all of the crops and in the lupine area producers suffered almost a total loss. But farmers realize that weather like the 1950-51 winter doesn't come around often. They are getting set to plant a record acreage again this fall.

New Soil Maps

The new "Soil Areas" maps Mrs. Betty Ann Walter, of Auburn, is displaying are just off of the press. These maps show all of the agricultural and soil areas of the state. They were prepared by the State Department of Agriculture and the A.P.I. Extension Service and Experiment Station.

Dairy Slogan--For A Stronger Nation--Essential Dairy Foods

The emphasis is on wider use of dairy foods as dairymen throughout the nation celebrate June Dairy Month.

Alabama dairymen are joining with other producers by making a special contribution of one cent per pound on the butterfat sold during June and July. This money will be used in the vast research and advertising program sponsored by the National Dairy Council.

Producers of manufactured milk and milk products are leading the way in this program designed to keep dairy foods the nation's best buy.

No small part in the manufactured milk producer's program is the job of producing milk more efficiently. With this aim in mind many dairymen are using artificial breeding to step up their herd production.

The animal shown at right is one of hundreds of artificially bred calves now being grown out for use as herd replacements. This calf was one of the many calves entered in the recent Chambers County Artificial Breeding show at LaFayette. Looking the calf over are, left to right, James Thomas, Milltown dairyman and owner of the calf; Otis Childers, artificial breeding technician, LaFayette; John B. Cook, Waverly dairyman, and County Agent E. L. Stewart.

Not Enough Help

Farm Organization And Labor Utilization Will Solve Problem

By EARLE WILLIAMS, Assistant to the Director
A.P.I. Extension Service

IT is the opinion of most people interested in the field of farm labor that competition from industry and the demands of the armed forces are going to decrease the total farm labor force.

This condition coupled with a need for high level farm production may continue to exist for a number of years. There may also be a reduction in the rate of manufacture of farm equipment and supplies. Both of these factors affect agricultural production, but we believe that high level farm production can be maintained despite the adverse labor conditions. The answer lies in better farm organization and labor utilization.

Better farm organization means several things. First is the attainment of an economical size of business, and this means proper selection of crops consistent with good land use, mechanization, and production practices. The selection of livestock enterprises consistent with supplies of labor, feed, and other production factors is also important. The selection of kinds of machinery, facilities, and improvements to fit the farm business rounds out the farm organization.

As for better labor utilization, a recent issue of one of the farm magazines reports that "Top farm economists agree that the good farmer wastes up to 20 per cent of his labor. The average farmer wastes 40 per cent of his labor and the low-average farmer wastes up to 75 per cent of his labor." That sounds ridiculous, but research seems to prove their point.

Figures show that the average American farmer works 40 minutes to produce each bushel of corn, while the best corn growers do the same job in three minutes. The average hog grower works three hours to raise 100 pounds of pork; yet some farmers do the job in 45 minutes.

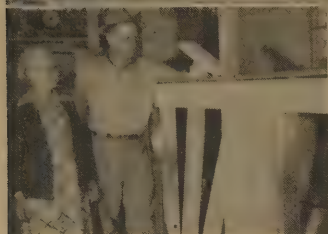

On the average it takes three man hours of labor to produce 100 pounds of milk, but some dairymen are producing 100 pounds of milk with only 40 minutes labor.

These figures all add up to the fact that the average, or below average, farmer isn't efficient with the utilization of labor on his farm. It will mean more money and at the same time less work for the producer if he will make a good farm organization plan and use his available labor fully and wisely.

Planning to Hog Off Corn?

FARMERS who plan to hog off corn this month should be sure that the grain can be "rubbed off" the cob before turning hogs in on the crop. Corn hogged too early is wasted.

White corn is just as good as yellow corn for hogging if green grazing is also available.

Production is the answer to successful dairy operations and R. L. Crider, left, and his dad, W. R. Crider, have the correct answer in one of the high producers on their dairy farm. This cow shown at upper left led the Cullman-Blount D.H.I.A. for three months.

Equipment is within easy reach—in the milk room of the J. A. Pierce dairy barn. At upper right, Mrs. Pierce demonstrates how everything can be reached conveniently from the equipment stand.

Inexpensive stanchions—made from painted two by fours—helped Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pierce, of Addison, Rt. 2, cut building costs on their grade A dairy barn in Winston County. They are shown, at left, in the milking room of the new barn.

These Families Agree

Dairying Is Ticket To Success In Winston

IN the Nesmith community, where Winston and Cullman Counties join, a new farm business is catching on for two farm families. It's grade A dairying.

R. L. Crider and his dad, W. R. Crider, aren't exactly new at the dairy business. They began operations the day a grade B milk route was started through the community and haven't missed a day since. Last September they moved the business into a neat, six-stanchion, grade A barn and changed to grade A production.

For the Criders dairying is a family business. When R. L. received his degree in dairying at Alabama Polytechnic Institute a year ago, he went back home to put his know-how to work on the farm. He looks after most of the problems of management now, and his parents and wife help keep the farm running smoothly.

The pride of the Crider dairy is an eight-year-old Jersey, Premier Design Sybil. She has produced as much as 1,400 pounds of milk and 72 pounds of butterfat in one month. All of the cows on the Crider farm are on DHIA test, and accurate individual cow records are kept every month.

A few steps up the road from the Crider dairy another family is starting out in the grade A business. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pierce have a new inexpensive barn to handle their beginning herd of four cows.

By using lumber from the farm, the Pierces built their four-stanchion barn for only $300, including labor cost. Wooden stanchions and home-made equipment helped to keep building costs down.

The Pierces started putting grade A milk in the can last November, and they're already on their way toward expanding operations. Four replacement heifers will soon be in production, and before long the dairy's goal of 12 cows will be a reality.

Although both the Criders and the Pierces are newcomers to the dairy field, they have found that home-grown feed is a must for profitable livestock farming. Both families are carrying out good year-around grazing programs to produce cheap feed on the land.

Also both families live on small farms, and they're taking advantage of every possibility to make every acre produce to the limit. The Crider farm has a total acreage of 65 acres, but they are sure that they can handle 30 cows profitably.

These residents are aware of the fact that high production is the secret of success for small farms. And dairying is their way of getting top returns from the land.

Recipe For June

JUNE is Dairy Month—and more emphasis should be placed on using dairy products in the diet. Days are getting hot, and food that looks, tastes, and is refreshing is enjoyed by all. Children love frozen desserts, ice creams, or sherbets and these are easy to make with mechanical refrigerators. If a hand turn freezer is available, children will usually delight in making the cream. And it is good entertainment for the young crowd when they gather for an afternoon together. A good recipe well adapted to the mechanical refrigerator follows:

Lime Sherbet

- | | |
|------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1 pkg. lime-flavored gelatin | 2 tbsps. grated lemon peel |
| 1 cup hot water | 2 cups milk |
| ¼ cup sugar | 1 cup whipping cream |
| | ¼ cup lemon juice |

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool slightly. Add remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Freeze firm in automatic refrigerator tray. Turn into chilled bowl; beat thoroughly. Return to tray. Finish freezing. Serves 8.

Costly Disease

Hog cholera continues to be a tragic disease in Alabama. Dr. R. S. Sugg, state veterinarian, Auburn, feels that at least 200,000 Alabama hogs are killed annually by cholera. At a low value of $20 per head, this means a $4 million loss each year.

A loss so big that recurs year after year is a challenge to farmers everywhere to stamp it out.

Along the Way

with
R. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, APL EXTENSION SERVICE

WE were told last summer that our military effort would not take more than seven per cent of our national production this year. But it's now taking eight per cent, with indications that it'll be taking 15 per cent by the end of 1951.

These goods are going into various military uses, but the work that produces them pays wages to people who must buy for their own needs. And this is one big cause of more inflation because more money goes into circulation without producing goods for workers to buy. This is another good reason for farmers to increase their production this year. Make each acre and each animal efficient in production. All of it will be needed.

There's also the fact that for many years ahead of us we may be living under military mobilization. This calls for more service and more sacrifice. The possibility of an atomic bomb explosion may be an example. One atomic bomb exploding 2,000 feet over an average metropolitan area may produce 120,000 casualties, killed and injured. Even with advance warning the total would be 60,000.

We can imagine our duties and responsibilities in such an emergency. Homes left standing would be turned into emergency homes and hospitals and numerous other things done.

Such a disaster would bring a war to us and our homes. And it may happen, not to one city, but to dozens or hundreds. Better think it over.

The War Is On

The 1951 battle to produce is now at its crest on Alabama farms. Farmers are killing weeds and grass and bugs to produce more per acre, per animal, or per man.

Top dressing with nitrogen fertilizer is an important operation during the months of June and July. But fertilizer is only one part of successful farming. Bugs must be killed and other things done.

The old practice of "laying-by" is out especially for cotton. Plowing stops but boll weevils keep going. Only a lazy or slothful farmer leaves his crops at the mercy of insects.

Better Communities

You and your neighbors, by thought, study and work together, can earn a certificate of honor from the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. You can earn it by working together for better farming of your farms and better living in your homes.

Yes, 59 communities in 19 Alabama counties were thus awarded for their excellent work in 1950. Seven of these communities are in Tallapoosa County, six in Tuscaloosa, five each in Coosa, Montgomery, and Morgan. Other counties with one to three communities to receive this signal honor are Barbour, Bullock, Butler, Conecuh, Elmore, Franklin, Lee, Limestone, Randolph, Russell. Your county agent or your home agent can tell you how to earn it.

An Old Tradition.

Warren Hall of Midway, Bullock County is the second generation in his family to engage in dairying for production of butter. His son, Warren, Jr., is the third. They're partners.

And they're experts at dairying as well as making butter. Grazing is No. 1 in their feeding, and purebred Jerseys convert grass into milk from which butter is made.

The Halls are a good example of people succeeding by doing something exceptionally well. Their butter is excellent. I've never tasted better butter.

Sericea Lespedeza Popular With Clay County Farmers

FARMERS in all sections of Clay County are sowing additional acreage to sericea lespedeza this year. They are finding that it is one of the best plants for producing hay, grazing, and soil improvement on hill land. To date, 206 farmers in the county have received PMA purchase orders for sericea seed.

Clay farmers are breaking and harvesting the land and thoroughly working into the soil 1,000 pounds of basic slag and 100 pounds of potash per acre or the equivalent amount of potash and phosphate from other sources.

The recommended seeding rate the producers used was 30 pounds per acre. The farmers who failed to plant during April are waiting until the last of June or the first of July to seed the crop.

Action Is Their Motto

Piney Woods Community Spirit Is High

THE Piney Woods Community Club may not be one of the oldest clubs in Alabama, but the people in that community can boast that their young organization is as active as any other in the state.

The club was organized last August largely through the efforts of W. A. Pruitt, a local farmer; Ewell Parker, principal of the junior high school; Cleburne County Agent Tom Ventress, and a few other local leaders.

The first meeting, held at the school, drew only 30 or 40 folks. But each month the attendance continued to grow, and at the last meeting the crowd filled two rooms in the school building.

The club operated with temporary officers for several months, but they now have a slate of officers who will serve for the next year. W. A. Pruitt is the club's first president, N. P. Wiggington is vice-president, and Curtis Alred serves as secretary-treasurer.

Timber is big business in this area, and the Piney Woods Club has taken on the job of educating all residents on the value of their number one crop. The group is getting technical help on timber management from County Agent Ventress and District Ranger F. D. Mayfield, of Heflin. But the club members know that care of the forest is everybody's business, and they are spreading the story.

A bright sidelight of the monthly meetings is the Sacred Harp singing by the group. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Alewine, Mrs. J. T. Pruitt, Mrs. E. W. Tanner, and Mrs. Marvin Pruitt are the leaders in the singing. The youngsters, who turn out in large numbers, also join in the musical portion of the program with a few of their own songs.

Then there is the community supper. Everyone brings some food along to the meeting, and after the business session is finished the doors of the school lunchroom are opened and the food is served.

The community club serves a double purpose. It gives the farmers a chance to catch up on the latest agricultural information, and everyone enjoys the neighborly visiting that goes with the meeting.

Help For The Future

Virginia Smith, 15-year-old Lawrence County 4-H Club member, feeds a group of replacement Holstein heifers that were imported from Wisconsin to build up the production ability of the Smith dairy herd. Claude Smith, of Mount Hope, owner of the farm, has imported 48 two-month-old heifers.

Through the program of importing better dairy animals, sponsored by County Agent Sam McClendon, 87 heifers have been placed on Lawrence County farms this year, and 51 more calves will be placed soon. Other farmers who have taken part in the improvement program are Earl Mills, Mount Hope; Claude Jackson, Landersville, and Claude Robertson, Mount Hope. Kelly Littrel, Brock Aycock, and Roy Young plan to take part in the program soon.

Tips On Good Dairying

THE dairyman who follows a few simple but good practices in farm and herd management can increase the efficiency of his dairy operations and secure more profit from his labor.

One of the best ways to cut the cost of production is to grow plenty of green grazing and to keep a good supply of roughage on hand. DHIA records show that where plenty of roughage is available the cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk is lower than where little or no roughage is used.

Another simple practice goes a long way toward preventing mastitis—and preventing this costly disease is easier than trying to cure it. Milking machines should be set at the pulse rate recommended by the manufacturer. If the machine is operated at a speed above the recommended pulse rate, the tissue of the udder may be damaged.

Pheasants Are Pleasant

Dick Brancomb examines a fine pheasant cock, one of thousands of these birds that have been produced on his farm near Union Springs. Starting three years ago with 100 day-old pheasant chicks, Brancomb has steadily increased his flocks until this year he hopes to market about 2,000 birds as fryers and bakers.

Brancomb ships the dressed pheasants, packed in ice, as far as Milwaukee. They bring him from $2.50 to $3.50 each. "There's plenty of work—pleasant work—in raising pheasants," comments Brancomb.

Timber owners should be on the lookout for bugs working in ice-damaged or burned trees. Bugs prefer weakened trees and will often complete the job of killing them before they have a chance to recover. Infected trees should be removed and sold or worked up for wood.

A familiar sight to many Army Air Force people is the barracks area of the Courtland Air Base shown at upper left. But this area has changed from the housing of bombardiers to broilers. This year a quarter of a million broilers will be produced at the base.

The old conference room on the air base now serves as a broiler house. At lower left, a group of birds on the ABC Poultry Farm are shown underneath the old situation map in the conference room.

From Flyers To Fryers

Broilers Replace Bombers At Courtland Air Base

THE Courtland Air Base has changed quite a bit in the last couple of years. Barracks built to house 40 men now have 5,000 tenants. The old machine shop has 17,000 inhabitants, and the map-lined walls of the commanding officers' conference room echo with the sounds of a thousand voices.

The old army air base is now one of the biggest poultry farms in the South.

Two years ago Ray Fectel, an Atlanta businessman, hatched up the idea of leasing a few buildings and going into the broiler business. His idea is now showing up in the form of fried chicken dinners on family tables in four Southern states. This year the ABC Poultry Farm will produce a quarter of a million broilers.

Last year Theo Youngblood, a young A.P.I. graduate in poultry husbandry, took over the reins, and he's driving toward more production and bigger profit. Youngblood says that he can turn out 17,000 birds a week when he hits peak production. That's 875,000 broilers a year.

"With a large operation, diseases and parasites become more of a problem," says Youngblood, "but we just about have the most common ailments whipped." Medicated feed containing sulfaquinoxaline is the stock treatment for colds and intestinal coccidiosis, and very good results have been obtained in controlling these troubles.

Although he uses Nichols and Christy strain New Hampshires, Youngblood says that any good broiler type bird can be profitable if handled right. "Put the feed through the birds instead of on the floor," he says. "That's what makes the difference between profit or loss." Checking back over his records of 350,000 broilers, the poultryman reveals that he got 34 pounds of meat for every 100 pounds of feed used.

The birds aren't marketed at any definite age because the ABC Poultry Farm strives to satisfy the customer. All birds are sold at the farm to processors, distributors, and wholesale dealers. And anything from one and one-half pound birds to three pound heavies is offered. But the majority of them are sold dressed out at about two pounds. The birds are sold in Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Florida.

Ray Fectel and Manager Theo Youngblood are proud of the records they have made in the broiler business and they're confident that they'll do even better in the future. The investment in buildings is very small. They are leased for consecutive one-year terms, and opportunities for expansion are almost unlimited. The operators of the ABC Poultry Farm have only one comment about growing broilers on a mass production scale. "We're in the broiler business to stay."

Prepare Land Now For Fall Seeding To Alfalfa

By D. R. HARBOR, Assistant Agronomist
A.P.I. Extension Service

FARMERS who have established alfalfa or who are planning to plant alfalfa this fall will find several management practices very important at this time of the year.

First, it's very important to keep up fertilization on old stands of alfalfa. If the old stand of alfalfa was not fertilized last fall or winter, it should be fertilized immediately after the first cutting of hay is made or after the crop has been grazed closely. The kind and amount of fertilizer needed varies with the different soils regions of the state.

Farmers should decide now which fields will be seeded to alfalfa this fall. To establish alfalfa successfully, the land should be turned now. Follow it by disking and harrowing often enough to control grass and weeds until time to plant next fall.

For the production of high quality hay several factors are important as guides to use in good hay curing weather.

First, wet soil or inclement weather will affect the curing process. The time to cut alfalfa for hay is when new shoots are one to two inches high or when one-half of the plants are in bloom. It is best to cut the hay in the morning after the dew has dried off. Leave the fresh cut hay in the swath two or three hours. And then rake into windrows. Put hay in the barn or bale on the second or third day.

Alfalfa used for grazing should not be over grazed. Continuous heavy grazing quickly kills the stand. Watch cattle on alfalfa for bloat. Ring the noses of hogs so they cannot destroy the stand.

He Shoots The Works

Still another pig gets vaccinated against cholera at S. B. Smith, of Newville, Rt. 1, continues his rounds in Henry County. This farmer has "hot" more than 12,000 pigs during the past two years, and he reports that outbreaks of cholera are now rare.

When Smith first started vaccinating hogs, most farmers wanted the virus shot for their pigs; now the majority ask for crystal violet or tissue vaccine. County Agent Hoyt Warren explains that the virus is likely to scatter cholera, and once started this treatment must be kept up. The crystal violet or tissue vaccine requires two weeks for immunity to cholera, but will not spread the dreaded disease.

The state furnishes the material for the vaccination for pigs under 40 pounds and charges only wholesale rates for pigs over 40 pounds. Holding the pig while Smith vaccinates is Lloyd Smith, also of Newville, Rt. 1.

Jersey Notes

TWO coming events scheduled by the Alabama Jersey Cattle Club are the State Jersey Breeders' Sale to be held in Oneonta on June 16, and the Fall Jersey Cow Sale set for September 1 in Demopolis.

Jersey club secretary W. H. Eaton, Auburn, says that 50 hand-picked heifers from some of the best Jersey herds in the state have been consigned to the June sale. The top quality heifers represent the best in Jersey blood lines.

Secretary Eaton stated that more information on the fall cow sale will be announced at a later date.

Figuring out the profits from two weeks' milk sales is a pleasant job for E. S. Pace, of Eastaboga, and Negro Tenant Rufus Jacobs. They are operating a 16 cow grade A dairy with a landlord-tenant arrangement that brings in good returns for both parties.

One of the big factors in the success of any livestock program is a good grazing system. And from the looks of the 17 acres of clover Jacobs and Mr. Pace are examining, center, they have that part of the feed production program in good shape. They also have 18 acres of permanent pasture and 13 acres of lespedeza for hay.

It takes good cows in order to produce milk at a profit, and Mr. Pace is taking care of that project with a sound breeding program. The two cows shown at right were artificially bred calves out of the breeding unit at Auburn. Pace is now growing six more artificially bred heifers to be used as herd replacements.

Dallas County Seed Producers Form Marketing Association

NUMBER nine in a growing list of county seed producers' organizations is the newly formed Dallas Seed Producers' Association. Organized last month, this group is making plans to market their crop of quality seed on a wholesale basis.

Wallace Moseley, president of the association, says the seed growers organized in order to have an effective method of marketing their yearly increasing seed crop. The practice of peddling seed to neighbors has become too hazardous since most farmers in the area are now producing their own seed, the president said.

Other officers of the association are Bill Blackwell, vice-president, Val Hain, treasurer, Mel Gilmer, secretary, and Bill Fuller, member of the board of directors.

In The Broiler House

Store feed hoppers that are not in use on overhead racks in the feed room. This will get the hoppers out of the way and protect them from damage. The racks can be easily made from 2 x 2 inch lumber. Build the racks across the back of feed room just above head height.

A feed rack made of 2 x 6 or 2 x 8 inch lumber will keep feed away from floor moisture and will eliminate hiding places for rats.

Tenant Farmer Dairy System Works In Calhoun

DURING the past 75 years farm owners and tenants have successfully worked out agreements for row crop tenant farming. But the present day switch to livestock farming has brought on the need for new landlord-tenant arrangements.

One new system has been worked out by E. S. Pace, of Eastaboga, and Rufus Jacobs, Negro tenant on the Pace farm. Pace had a few good dairy cows back in 1949 but he didn't have time to care for the cows, look after his store, and carry on his other farm operations so he began working on a plan to set up a tenant operated dairy. To run the dairy he selected Rufus Jacobs, who had been working on the place for 15 years.

In setting up the dairy, Pace agreed to build the dairy barn, furnish the cows, pay for half the fertilizer and seed, and buy the necessary equipment to get the business going. He also pays the breeding fees on the cows and raises replacement heifers for the herd, but he retains ownership of the cattle. Jacobs' part of the agreement was to grow the crops, furnish the remainder of the fertilizer and seed, milk the cows and manage the dairy. Operating expenses come out of the milk check and the remainder of the returns are split fifty-fifty.

The success of any farming operation depends on the pay-off. And when asked about their dairy business, the owner and tenant both answer with a broad smile. Jacobs is milking 16 cows and selling wholesale grade A milk. The cows are fed plenty of home-grown grain and green grazing, and they are paying for their feed with a steady flow of high quality milk. The dairy is shipping between 30 and 40 gallons of milk per day and the plant consistently gets a high mark from sanitation inspectors.

"With a pay check of $75 or more coming in every two weeks for each of us we couldn't help but think we have a good setup," says Mr. Pace. But the sale of milk isn't the only income. The tenant still finds time to grow some cotton and corn on the regular tenant system. Last year he made over 12 bales of cotton and he averaged 60 bushels per acre on his corn crop.

Another pay-off comes in the better yields the land is producing. Winter legumes and lespedeza are furnishing a big part of the feed for the cattle and they are building up the fertility of the soil. This means better yields of grain and cotton and still more returns to the producer.

As for the future, Mr. Pace says the dairy operations will go on. There are still a few problems that come up every once in a while, but the overall plan is working fine.

A Busy Boy All Of The Time

Kenneth Driskell, right, gets a few points on installing a starter switch in an electric motor from C. M. Pettus, left, rural service engineer for Alabama Power Company, and Mobile County Assistant Agent W. L. Deakle. Kenneth carries a farm and home electric project in his 4-H Club work and has done everything from wiring houses to giving demonstrations at adult farm meetings.

The 16-year-old Wilmer 4-H'er also finds time to carry on many other farm projects. His extensive club work includes projects in row crops, pigs, and cattle. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Driskell.

They Boost The Cotton Industry

ALABAMA'S fast advance in better quality ginning was the topic of conversation when the farm leaders at right gathered recently. In the group are, left to right, J. C. Lowery, A.P.I. Extension agronomist; State Senator Sam High, of Ashville, president of the Alabama Ginners Association; J. L. Lawson, assistant Extension director; Bill Andrews, Extension cotton specialist, and Paul A. Redmond, Jr., Birmingham textile executive.

These men agreed that the fine relationship between ginners, growers, and other segments of the cotton industry has done much to improve the state's entire economy.

Ginners Aid Farmers In Making Cotton King

By LAWRENCE ENNIS, JR.
A.P.I. Extension Gin Specialist

THE Alabama Cotton Ginners Association has proved in recent years to be one of the most valuable trade associations in the state, especially in the eyes of the cotton farmers.

This active organization has gone down the line with cotton farmers in their efforts to make the state's number one crop—cotton—a better product.

MR. ENNIS

Through the work of member ginners the association has taken a prominent part in cotton seed improvement, insect control work, improved cultural practices, greater use of fertilizers, and other practices which together have kept Alabama in the cotton picture.

The cotton ginner has long been a leader in his community. He considers it his duty to see that adequate amounts of good seed, insect poisons, and fertilizers are available at the right time for his customers. He is usually able to advise his customers on such questions as crop prospects, when to sell their cotton, and even on problems not directly related to cotton. Almost all of the ginners keep in very close contact with their county agents, and working together they boost the cotton industry.

Just as farmers continue to use better methods, the ginners improve their plants. In recent years 25 million dollars' worth of new and improved equipment has been added to the plants in the state.

For the past two years the ginners have promoted, in cooperation with the Extension Service at Auburn, a short course of study at the USDA ginning and fiber testing laboratories in Stoneville, Mississippi. Here members get the latest research data on how to operate and care for their gin plants more efficiently. They learn how to turn out cotton lint of the highest possible quality, and they find out what to expect from each piece of equipment they have.

Results of the excellent work the association is doing are reflected in many ways—chiefly in the pocketbooks of their farmer customers. Six years ago about 14 per cent of the cotton ginned in Alabama was damaged a full grade or more at the gin. This decreased the market value by $10 or more per bale. But the improvements in gin plants and in operating techniques have consistently decreased this figure so that only four per cent of the 1950-51 crop was gin-damaged. This record compares favorably with other sections of the cotton belt and is the best ginning Alabama cotton farmers have enjoyed.

The Alabama Cotton Ginners Association continues to work for cotton. The officers are enthusiastic about the past accomplishments, and continue to study the possibilities that lie ahead.

Officers of the association are Senator Sam High, of Ashville, president; P. M. Lightfoot, Tuskegee, and O. R. Hipp, of Andalusia, vice-presidents; and Lawrence Ennis, Jr., Auburn, secretary.

Temporary officers of the Alabama Artificial Breeding Association named at the state artificial breeding shortcourse in Auburn last month are, left to right, Robert Slayton, Leachapoka, vice-chairman; E. S. Pace, Eastaboga, chairman, and C. F. King, Athens, secretary. John L. Whately, Opelika, chairman of the legislative committee, is not shown. They will serve until a regular slate of officers is elected by the 10 counties participating in the association.

TO maintain the water content of green leafy vegetables and other produce selected for market, keep them cool, moist, and out of strong wind. Harvest in the cooler part of the day, and remove to the shade as soon as possible. Pre-cool with water or ice or both, and keep cool until the products reach the consumer.

CROPS most likely to be damaged by cutworms are cotton in the seedling stage, clovers, small grains, and fescue. For control of cutworms in cotton fields apply about 10 pounds per acre of 10 per cent DDT or 20 per cent toxaphene; put poison on plants and on the ground around plants. A good cotton duster will do the job. Caution—do not apply DDT or toxaphene to pastures without removing cattle for about 30 days.

FARMERS who produce and save their own seed usually have larger acreages seeded to soil improving and grazing crops than farmers who depend on buying them. This is a good reason why producers should make an effort to save all seed possible. The surplus can be sold and will usually bring a nice return to the farm operation.

THE hog raiser who gets his spring pigs to market as tops by September will beat runs from the corn belt that begin soon after. A patch of mature oats, with a little corn from the crib, green grazing, and supplement, will push the spring litter along and have them ready to go on early hybrid corn as soon as it is mature enough to rub off the cob.

JUNE is the right time to get next fall's litter of pigs, off to the right start. Good feeding of the brood sow during the three months, three weeks, and three days of the gestation period will help insure a big "edition" of big little pigs of the fall litter. A good ration for the sow includes some grain, supplement hand fed, free choice mineral mixture, and unlimited good green grazing.

JUNE marks the period of hot summer weather. It also marks one of the best growth periods of water weeds in farm ponds. For this reason owners should keep their ponds well fertilized. Plankton stimulated by the fertilizer will color the upper depths of the water and keep sunlight from penetrating to the pond bottom. This will prevent the growth of new weeds on the pond bottom.

CULTIVATING machinery that has been in storage should be checked before time to go into the field. Replace any parts taken off in storage or in need of repair. Tighten all bolts and nuts, and be sure all safety guards are in place. Grease all moving parts thoroughly, and be sure they work freely. Preventive maintenance of all farm machinery pays. Follow the recommendations of the manufacturer in the instruction manual.

THIS is the month to sell all lambs you still have, even if they are small. If lambs are to be kept for flock building, be sure to wean them this month so that ewes will breed in July.

The old home place at left is where Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Stone, of Ragland, lived for 12 years. They are shown on the front steps of the old dwelling.

It was a slow process—making one block at a time—but U. C. Stone stuck with the job, and his hard earned reward is a new home. He is shown (inset) taking a new block from the hand-operated block-making machine.

The neat home above is a tribute to Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Stone. Although the farmer had no building experience, he and his wife did a creditable job of putting up the complete building. It took three years of hard work and sticking with it to finish the job.

Dream Comes True

St. Clair Farmer Builds Home Of His Own

BUILDING costs keep many people from realizing their main ambition—a home of their own. But this is one problem that didn't stop the U. C. Stones, of Ragland.

For 12 years the St. Clair County couple lived in a weather-beaten old house and dreamed of the day when they could own a modern bungalow. Then one day, while looking over the for-sale column in the newspaper, Mr. Stone saw a way to get his home. He would just build it himself in his spare time.

In the paper was a classified ad offering for sale at $25 a hand-operated concrete block machine. Stone bought the machine and started out to build a house with hand-made concrete blocks.

For three years he spent almost every bit of his spare time working on the house. Afternoons, after he had finished his day's work, and weekends were devoted to molding concrete building blocks in the hand mold. "Some days I made only a half dozen blocks, and on others I was able to make 20 and even more blocks," he says.

With a small stockpile of materials built up, Mr. Stone hired a few men to help him get the foundation poured. Then he was on his own.

The most unusual part of the whole project is that Stone had no previous building experience; yet he did a job any workman would be proud of. All of the wiring, floors, and every other part of the house were done by Stone.

The house isn't complete yet, but the Stones moved in a couple of months ago. They'll continue to spend their spare time putting finishing touches to the interior and sprucing up the grounds.

The best part about their home is the price, say the occupants. The five-room bungalow complete with running water and modern conveniences was built for only $1,800. Improvements still to be added to the house and buildings will bring the entire cost to a little less than $3,000. However, there's no way to evaluate all of the hard work, ingenuity, and pride that has gone into the concrete block structure.

Give pullets on range plenty of shade, good leguminous grazing crops, and plenty of fresh water. Cull pullets as they go to the range and as weak birds are spotted throughout the range period. Weak and underweight pullets are not profitable.

The picture of the tomato plant shown at top was made in Etowah County on September 15, 1950. This plant shows the severe damage caused by late blight. No fungicide was applied.

The healthy tomato plant shown below was growing in the same area at the same time as the damaged plant. Late blight on this plant was controlled by the use of three applications of six per cent metallic copper and eight applications of liquid Parzate.

Tests Show That Tomato Blight Damage Can Be Prevented

By R. L. SELF, Associate Plant Pathologist
A. P. I. Agricultural Experiment Station

LATE blight ruined over half of the tomato crop in the Blount County area of North Alabama in 1950. Most of this loss could have been prevented. The few farmers who followed a regular spray or dust program throughout the season were able to control the disease and made a good crop in spite of the adverse weather conditions.

Late blight is a disease of the tomato fruit and foliage. Infected areas on the leaves and stems are purplish-black and enlarge rapidly. Under humid conditions a downy, white growth is present on the lower leaf surface. Infected fruits have grayish-green, enlarging water-soaked spots which have a firm, rough surface. Plants may become infected at any stage of growth.

Early blight usually attacks soon after fruiting. Symptoms on fruit, leaves, and stems consist of irregular brown spots which enlarge up to one-half inch in diameter. Nailhead is a similar disease, distinguishable on the fruit by the spots which are about the size of a nailhead.

Experimental work conducted by the A. P. I. Agricultural Experiment Station at Clanton, Cullman, and in Etowah County in 1950 showed several materials to give good control of both early and late blight.

Dusts for any part of Alabama. Applications of five or six per cent zineb (A-78 or Parzate formulation) or six per cent metallic copper have resulted in good late blight control and high yields. Frequent applications of copper to young plants have caused some stunting. Where only early blight has been present, the zineb dust has given better control than the copper dust. Rates varied from 10 to 35 pounds per acre, depending on size of plants.

Sprays for Northern Alabama. Several materials were very effective in 1950. The rates per 100 gallons of water of the more effective ones are as follows: Dithane D-14 or liquid Parzate, two quarts plus three-fourths of a pound of zinc sulfate; Z-78 or Parzate concentrates, two pounds per 100 gallons of water; Tribasic Copper Sulfate or Copper A of about 50 per cent metallic copper, six pounds.

Sprays for Central and Southern Alabama. It is suggested that zineb concentrate (two pounds per 100 gallons of water) or copper concentrate containing about 50 per cent metallic copper (four pounds per 100 gallons of water) be used. Dithane D-14 and liquid Parzate should be avoided at present. Rates for all sprays were 40 to 125 gallons per acre.

Otto Lieb's farming operations on his Baldwin County farm near Silver Hill aren't too large. But when it comes to extolling the wonders of crimson clover, beef cattle, and hogs, he doesn't take a back seat for anybody.

Lieb is a great advocate of crimson clover for grazing and soil erosion control. "After I get clover up to a stand," he says, "I can just sit back and let it rain without worrying about the sandy land washing away." And as for crimson clover as a grazing crop, the producer says there's nothing better. The hogs get fat, the beef cattle put on pounds fast, and the dairy cows fill the milking pail when they're eating clover.

Production Of White Clover Seed Goes Up In Alabama

By PRYCE B. GIBSON, Associate Plant Breeder
A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station

ALABAMA led all other Southeastern states in the production of white clover seed in 1950. In making the record, Alabama farmers harvested 7,200 acres of clover which produced about 500,000 pounds of seed valued at $56 per acre. In addition to producing seed, the clover furnished grazing for livestock.

The Experiment Station has harvested up to 450 pounds of white clover seed per acre. This high yield was obtained on a small acreage under favorable conditions for producing and harvesting seed. Yields varying from 25 to 125 pounds have been obtained from larger acreages. Variations in labor conditions prior to and at the time of harvesting have been largely responsible for the differences in yields.

For seed production, the Experiment Station recommends the common Louisiana type of white clover. Experimental results indicate that the Ladino or giant type produces few seed in Alabama. Ladino seed are produced in Oregon and surrounding states under irrigation and where the hours of daylight are longer than in Alabama.

Bees are essential for good pollination of all clover. If wild bees are not plentiful, it is recommended that producers secure one or more colonies for each acre of clover.

A mimeographed report describing the management of white clover for seed production and the methods of harvesting white clover seed as practiced on the Upper and Lower Coastal Plain Substations is available upon request to the A.P.I. Experiment Station, Auburn.

New plantings of kudzu (seed, seedlings, and crowns) must be cultivated to control weeds and grass. If kudzu was not fertilized at planting, do it when cultivating.

Lead State Dairy Association

At a recent meeting in Montgomery the Alabama branch of the American Dairy Association elected new officers and made plans for the year's activities. The group, composed of dairymen from all parts of the state, discussed plans for the set-aside plan which calls for dairymen all over the country to give the American Dairy Association a penny a pound on all butterfat sold during the months of June and July this year. The ADA will in turn use this money to encourage wider use of dairy products.

Elected to serve as officers and board members of the state association are, left to right, standing, S. M. Reese, manager, Southern Dairies, Birmingham, board member; John Garrett, Snowdon dairymen, board member; James Stover, manager, Dairy Producers, Incorporated, Montgomery, vice-president and board member; State Senator John L. Whatley, Opelika dairymen, board member; and Dr. K. M. Autrey, Auburn, board member. Seated is Lem Morrison, Greensboro dairymen and president of the state group.

Research Results

in brief
from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

PEACHES are best for freezing or cold pack canning when in the early, soft, ripe stage. The firm ripe stage has proved best for preserves or pre-cook canning, according to studies at Auburn.

FOR NEMATODE CONTROL, ETHYLENE DIBROMIDE (40 per cent) applied at the rate of one quart per 600 feet of row increased the yield of cucumbers from 141 to 331 bushels per acre the first year. Without further addition of the material the second year the yields were 195 and 223 bushels, respectively. The material was placed in furrows and covered six inches for three weeks before planting.

ABOUT 25 CALVES have been grown in portable outside pens with no losses during the last two years at the College Dairy and Dairy Production Unit. The five by 10-foot pens, developed by the Regional Animal Disease Laboratory at Auburn, provide partial shelter on three sides in cold weather; even during severe freezes the young calves remained healthy and vigorous. They were kept in the pens until four to six months of age.

CORN EARWORM IN SWEET CORN was controlled in 1950 experiments with three applications of DDT-mineral oil emulsion sprays. The sprays included two pounds of DDT and 10 pounds of mineral oil per acre per application. The three applications were made at three-day intervals beginning when one-half of the stalks were showing silk.

PEANUT YIELDS from soils producing low-grade or light "poppy" peanuts may be increased by applications of lime or land plaster (gypsum) if enough potash is also supplied, according to results of field experiments conducted in cooperation with farmers at 32 locations in four southeastern Alabama counties.

GRAIN SORGHUM is a satisfactory source of grain for fattening hogs when combined and self-fed. Its efficiency when hogged in the field is much less. The only circumstances under which hogging grain sorghum in the field is recommended by the Upper Coastal Plain Substation are under emergency conditions when the crop cannot be combined.

AN INTERESTING SIDELIGHT on the recent thinnings in 19-year-old slash pine plantations at Auburn is the exceptionally high rate of growth on one small area of well-drained bottomland. While an adequate stand of the best trees was left for future growth, pulpwood was harvested from the area at the rate of 40 cords per acre in two thinnings.

MARKETING RESEARCH indicates two different ways of reducing marketing costs. One is to reduce marketing services. The other is to perform these services more efficiently. Greater opportunities exist in more efficient operation of facilities and performance of services than in a general reduction of currently available facilities and services.

Gas Pipe Fitters To Be Issued City Licenses

The City of Clanton is ready to issue licenses to any gas pipe fitters who might apply for licenses — providing they can qualify as expert gas fitters.

There are more than one thousand homes in Clanton that have provided for the use of gas and these homes must be piped and outfitted for the use of gas appliances by expert pipe fitters. No one, according to the City Ordinance, can qualify to install their gas appliances without a license from the City of Clanton, and they must stand examination to prove their qualifications before the licenses will be issued. With so many homes to be served it will take a long time to get around and the City Council is anxious for those who can qualify to install the gas, get their licenses at once.

HE WHO NEVER LEARNS

DOG LAW REVIVED

Since the Stapp administration in our City Government we have had an ordinance prohibiting dogs from running at large through the city streets.

Beginning this week the City Council has ordered the law be enforced, (which has not been done for the past few years) and henceforth your pet will be picked up by the dog catcher if he is found running loose.

Whether or not you are in favor of this ordinance it is the law and must be obeyed. Personally, we will be glad to know that we can place our trash cans for the city garbage trucks without fear of finding the garbage scattered from here to breakfast when the truck calls for it.

As for the dog himself we are as fond of them as the next. We probably have spent as much time in the woods with our dog as any of our readers. But, we do believe there is a place for all things and running loose through our streets is no place for a dog. Let's keep our pets where they belong—in their own back yards, thereby saving hard feelings towards our city and maybe a buck or two, to get him out of the pound.

ECONOMIC STABILIZER Eric Johnston told the house agriculture committee that if the cattle-men of the country can prove that rollbacks of cattle prices will not work, he will be the first to recommend a change in the OPS roll-back order.

Admitting that economists in his office disagree as to whether these rollbacks will result in beef shortages, he asks that in the meantime the OPS order be given a fair chance to work.

Mr. Johnston points out that the threats of huge black markets which may result under beef ceiling prices have yet to become true. He points out that black markets in the old OPA days resulted because there was lack of effective control over thousands of small livestock slaughterers who paid big prices for beef and so drained off supplies that would otherwise have gone into legitimate markets.

But, Mr. Johnston says, the setup is different today. In the first place OPS has placed slaughterers under a rigid system of licensing and has prohibited issuance of new licenses. Also all meats must be stamped as federally inspected making it easier to trace meats to their source. On top of this, Mr. Johnston points out that even after the scheduled roll backs, which are to take place later in the summer or fall, cattle prices will still average 125 per cent of parity, which he maintains is high enough to insure incentive for continued heavy production. It all remains to be seen.

At a time when the civil defense administration was drumming up sentiment for a nation-wide program of training and educating the American public to "become a full partner with the military" in defending the lives of the country in case of aggression, this congress elated the civil defense administration requested appropriation from $403,000,000 to $31,750,000, which leaves the agency sitting in Washington largely twiddling its thumbs. Said former governor Milard Caldwell of Florida, boss of CDA, "I have faith that in time I hope that the time is not too late—the congress will recognize the fact that an informed, organized and trained public is a full partner with the military forces. Civil defense is either necessary or it is not. Congress should make the decision quickly. It's time to stop fiddling."

And the same congressional action was taken over another important appropriation. At a time when the Crusade for Freedom, championed by General Lucius Clay, was reaching fruition, when the National Committee for a Free Europe was spending huge sums of money to build radio broadcasting stations for a radio free Europe, the congress slashed the funds of the Voice of America from a requested $97,000,000 to a mere $9,533,939, which means that this important function of informing the free world will be cut to almost nothing. And all because, according to observers here, the congress was mad at Dean Acheson, secretary of state.

Congressional Quarterly an unbiased news reporting agency has compiled a record showing that dollar-a-year men are flocking back to Washington, some to work for the government without compensation, and others at a compensation up to $50 per day. There already are 450 such men from various civilian segments here serving as consultants, special assistants, advisors, industry analysts and experts of specific problems and already a congressional spot light is being beamed on their activities.

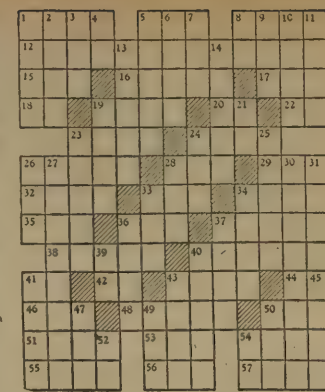

Testimony has been given before a house committee studying monopoly problems that some of these employees with the National Production Authority showed favoritism to certain large business concerns in allocation of scarce materials. Small business, too, has complained it is not getting a break on government contracts. As a result, it is likely that a pool of materials will be set up for small business, independent of any other consideration, so that these smaller manufacturers will stand a better chance in the allocation and priority process. Also defense agencies have been ordered to even make price differentials to aid small business get contracts.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

Little Cecil Wade always tells his daddy when his family gets ready to go places, "Let's fly, daddy, I'm in a hurry." . . . These blanket, blank, street lights are still giving the motoring public trouble. Greens out. Can't tell when to "Go." . . . Seeing a lot of familiar young faces back in town since the kids are home from college for the summer. Wonder how many recent being called "kids" . . .

During this weather, even a "kid" feels like Rip Van Winkle. . . . After he awoke, that is. . . . Sign in a Beauty Shop says: "When we get through with her, even your mother-in-law looks good to you." . . . Saw in another weekly newspaper where a fellow took his brother-in-law fishing. The "in-law" got a bite and was trying to land him. The fellow called and told the in-law to play with him. His companion returned, "I can't. I haven't got him in the boat yet." . . .

Everybody has heard of the Fuller Brush Men. Well, believe it or no, Clanton has a Stanley Brush Woman. She's Mrs. E. J. Morris. She sells Stanley Brushes and gives Brush Parties. You know cleanliness is next to godliness, but in some places in Clanton, it's next to impossible. It's a fact though Mrs. Morris is out to sell brushes and any little clean up campaign you want to start in your home she will gladly assist you—she'll furnish the brushes.

We had sure enough good news Sunday. The report got out around town Saturday that Hugh (Lally) Bates had been killed in action in Korea. Sunday we learned that he was only injured. That's bad, for sure, but it isn't as bad as the first news we received. Lally has been wounded several times already since being sent to Korea and each time returned to action immediately upon recovery. We hope this time they will let him come home for that well earned rest he deserves.

Hey, take a look at our Pat Huddleston. She is going places. Pat will sing before the Kiwanians at their National Convention at St. Louis, Mo., when they meet there June 17th thru June 21st. The young song bird is already immensely popular with Alabama Kiwanis Clubs and after the National Convention you can bet your bottom dollar she will be just as popular with the Clubs of the other 48 States.

Dief tells this one and he says it's not a story, it's honest to goodness facts. Back during the depression there came a long dry spell like unto the one we are now experiencing. Dr. S. J. Ezell who was pastor of the First Baptist Church met Mr. Diefenderfer in the post office. At that time the post office was located where Buck Bice and Melvin Mims have their feed store. Dief made the statement that we needed rain badly and Dr. Ezell told him that if he paid the preacher he would get his rain. Well, Dief went over to the window and asked Mr. Bean, then Postmaster, to give him a Peoples Savings Bank check and he made out a check to the Church for ten dollars. Dief says about three o'clock that afternoon the darndest rain came he has ever heard of in his life, and it continued to pour down until late that night. About nine o'clock Dief called Dr. Ezell and told him he didn't want that much rain, he was over-doing it. Well, Dief says Dr. Ezell remarked, "It cost you twenty-five dollars to have it stopped."

RESEARCH

With its prime objective as the prevention or treatment of illness, medicine strives constantly to outwit the people get sick, the cause of the sickness, how to recognize disease and how to treat it. The process is known as research, a constant hunt for more and more knowledge about disease. In its progress, medicine has determined the cause and treatment of tuberculosis, yellow fever, malaria, cholera, typhoid, plague and many other infectious conditions which once brought death to thousands of persons every year. New techniques in surgery, safer childbirth, anesthetics, and many other lifesaving facts have similarly resulted from medical research.

Searching constantly, the scientists in their laboratories continue their efforts to learn causes of diseases which as yet remain unexplained. Research is now going forward on cancer, on rheumatic fever, on various diseases of the nervous system and numerous other diseases.

Research brings knowledge; and knowledge is power, the power to save life and relieve pain. Research must be done experimentally first on animals of different types. Tests, operations and drugs all play an essential role in seeking new cures.

Dogs are indispensable for many phases of medical research work. They can live a healthy life in relative confinement. Like man, they eat all kinds of food, both animal and vegetable. Their bodies utilize food in the same manner as the human body. In structure and functions the dog is similar to man, thus permitting similar surgical procedure. He alone has chests walls nearly enough like man's in elasticity to allow experiments in artificial respiration. Many experiments are not conducted on dogs until the final stages. Guinea pigs, rabbits, white rats and mice serve for the initial experiments. Before being applied to man, the tests are then performed on animals most closely resembling man in physiology and anatomy. Often this is the dog. Almost as often it is the monkey.

The scientist seeking to find the cause of your disease needs knowledge to help you. Your knowledge and understanding can help him.

MARKETING HINTS FOR FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

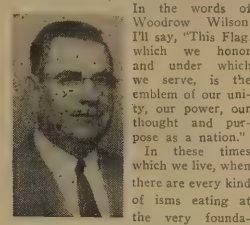

As the busy season for harvesting and marketing fruits and vegetables approaches, farmers are advised by John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension Service horticulturist, to use every possible means of saving time, labor and money.

As a suggestion, he points out that farmers transporting only a small part of a load to market will not make the highest profits, but neighbors who pool their loads will.

This Is Flag Day

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible with liberty and justice for all." For 174 years, the Star-Spangled Banner has waved over this land of ours, the land of the free and the home of the brave. Our Flag is the proud and sacred symbol of the freedom we enjoy, and the equality, justice and humanity for which the United States stands for the words of Woodrow Wilson I'll say, "This Flag, which we honor and under which we serve, is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation." In these times which we live, when there are every kind of isms eating at the very foundation of our great Democracy, I believe we should rise and pledge anew our allegiance to this Republic of ours. And may we hold high the sacred emblem of our faith; that which stands for liberty and justice for all.

The history of our Flag is the history of our nation; for it symbolizes not only the ideals, traditions and free institutions of our Country, but also the expansion and territorial development of the United States. The thirteen original stars have grown in number to forty-eight stars now, which stands for the Union of our Forty-eight States, which are held together by the bond of our National Government. May we never have to be warned again "That a house divided against itself cannot stand."

The design of our Flag, with thirteen stripes, representing the thirteen original States, and a Star for each State of the Union, dates from June 14, 1777, making it among the oldest national flags in existence. Wherever this Flag waves, its language is peace on earth, and good will to men; liberty and justice for all. But it speaks also of our determination to preserve this peace, liberty and justice for all. Men and women who love this Flag, not only are willing to live by it and for it, but are willing to die for it, and along beside it. Right at this time there is a struggle to preserve these sacred rights, but as a United people, believing in a common purpose, we can defeat our every foe. Long wave the Star-Spangled Banner over our land and sea of the free and the home of the brave—Hickman.

The New Baby

A friend of mine who is expecting a baby is planning to send her four-year-old daughter to her grandmother's when the new baby is due. The little girl will stay a month with her grandmother. It's a good practice or should the little daughter stay at home in order to feel that she is an important member of the family at a very important time?

In my judgment, you are correct when you infer that the little daughter should be kept at home so that she can feel that she is an important member of the family at a very important time.

It is to be hoped that the mother and father have talked very naturally in front of their little daughter about the coming into the home of the new baby, and that she has had some part in planning for its arrival. She will be interested in the clothing the mother is making for the baby, and in the possible name that may be given to it.

In the family discussion, let the reference always be to "our baby" so the little girl will have a feeling of possession toward the newcomer.

When the mother goes to the hospital and during the first few weeks after the baby comes home, it is exceedingly important that the little girl be given plenty of attention and affection so that she will not feel that the baby has usurped her place in the family. Be patient with her if she acts more "babyish" than usual. Praise her when she shows delight in and is kind to the new baby.

Remember that in spite of the best of planning, there will be difficult days for her as it is not easy to be content when mother spends so much time with the newcomer.

Moving to "the Sticks"

My husband and I want to buy a small farm but our sixteen-year-old daughter and fourteen-year-old son object. They say they don't want to move from the city to "the sticks." Can you advise us?

If the farm you contemplate buying really is in "the sticks," and if by moving there your children would be more or less permanently separated from their friends, it is not at all surprising that they should object to such a move.

They have their friends and have achieved a certain standing in the school and in the community. They dread the thought of having to go to a new school and to make new friends. They also are beginning to appreciate the many opportunities that the city affords.

It would seem to me, therefore, that you should give serious consideration to their objections. If you feel that they are the result of careful thinking on their part and not just the whim of the moment, you may want to postpone for the time being your purchase of the farm. After all, two more years will see your daughter ready to go to college, and four more should get your son ready for the university. When they are away from home, you and your husband can go to the farm and enjoy it to your heart's content.

There would seem to be another possibility, however, and that is to find a farm that is not so far from the city but that your children could continue to go to the same school and could maintain their present friendships. If the farm is not too far out, they probably would find that it had a real attraction for their friends, would furnish them with many interesting experiences, and would add to their own popularity.

If you could get them to help you pick out such a farm, it is likely that in so doing they would acquire an enthusiasm for it that is even greater than your own.

This Honesty Business

How can one combat the prevalent theory accepted by so many parents and children that "if you can get away with it, it's all right"? I am the mother of two sons, ages six and ten, and I have tried to teach them to be honest. Is it a hopeless task?

By no means is it a hopeless task, although it is not a particularly easy one. I judge that you already are using the two most effective methods of combating the theory you describe—that is, teaching and example. There is even evidence that boys and girls are im-

If you have a question about your child—from infancy through the teens—send it to Donald M. Maynard, 810 Broadway, Nashville 2, Tennessee, to be answered through a future column.

Influenced far more by the attitudes, ideas, and ideals of their parents than by those of associates, club leaders, or teachers. Continue during these early years quietly to instill in your sons the ideal of honesty.

Be sure, of course, that you observe this ideal in all your own relationships, remembering that your sons learn more from what you do than from what you say. They are both discerning and acutely observant, too!

Maintain a happy relationship with them; enjoy doing things together. See to it that your home is attractive, that there are interesting things to do and that they have desirable playmates near their own age.

Do not be too disturbed if your sons fail occasionally to see as clearly as do you what is honest and dishonest. Neither should you expect perfection in them. They may feel that you are carrying this "honesty business" to an extreme. As they get older, they may even accuse you of being old-fashioned.

But if you are a good sport about it all, if you are patient and understanding if you refuse to preach or to nag, and if you continue to have enjoyable family experiences together, you may be certain that they never will be able to get away from the ideals you have instilled into them.

PORTABLE FENCE

Portable fences from native sawed timbers require no post holes and are handy when pasturing part of a meadow and it is desired to move fence back and provide more pasture. Chicken pens may be made by attaching chicken wire to supports.

Once they've smelled of printer's ink
It seems they're here to stay.

There are some who take it seriously,
They wither on the vine;
But those like me who laugh it off,

Home Demonstration Club—

The ShoULTS Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Sam ShoULTS on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, June 21st. Everyone keep this date and place in mind and attend. Our devotional for this month is Acts 3:19, Psalms 40:8. Thought for the month, "Today is not yesterday—we ourselves change—How then can our works and thoughts, if they are always to be the fittest, continue always the same. Change indeed is painful, yet very needful; and if memory have its force and worth, so also has hope." Carlyle.

Hymn for this month, "Come thou fount of every blessing."

Our demonstration for this month, "Seasonal Refreshments." This should be a very helpful and interesting demonstration, as we need to know more about serving our families and friends healthful and tasty refreshments. Every woman in the community should be an active member of this club. We want to be better homemakers and accept the responsibilities it offers to be helpful to others and to create a more contented family and community life. So in the end, farm life will be most satisfying. We of the Club believe in God as the ruling factor in all life, a God who inspires us strength, endurance, tolerance and faith for our careers as mothers, homemakers, and community leaders. As we work together in a group we can enlarge the opportunities and enrich the life of rural people. The greatest force that molds character is the home.

Goings and Comings—

Many from this community attended the homecoming and singing at Friendship Baptist Church last Sunday and reported a very pleasant day.

Mr. Coleman Smith who has been away in the Army for several months is at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith, for a ten-day furlough. His many friends are glad to see him again.

Tech-Sgt. Phillip Hicks of Craig Air Base, Selma, Ala., visited here last Thursday with his mother, Mrs. Willie Hathcock. He made his routine flight to New York on Friday. While there he visited his wife and son at Cape May, N. J., where they are spending a few months with parents and grandparents. Phillip flew back to Craig field Sunday night.

We are happy to report that Mrs. Artie Hicks was able to leave a Selma hospital last week. Mrs. Hicks visited here with her daughter, Mrs. Thelma Hathcock, last week end and attended the homecoming at Friendship Sunday.

Tech-Sgt. and Mrs. Charles ShoULTS and children of Selma, Ala., visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam ShoULTS, last Sunday. Their little daughter, Vicki, returned home with them after spending a week with her grandmother and grandfather.

Mrs. Georgia Houston and Miss Lucy Walker of Clanton spent last week with relatives here and Maplesville. Miss Walker also visited her sister, Mrs. Lena Snead, at Centreville, Ala., while here.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith last Sunday were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Wardie Smith and son, Mr. and Mrs. Heath Fountain and baby of Selma, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Smith and baby of Piper, Ala.

Mrs. Sam ShoULTS and Mrs. Willie Hathcock spent one day last week with their sons in Selma, Ala. While there they were given a permit to fish in Craig Air Base Lake. They reported having caught a long string of nice fish. One trout especially, caught by Mrs. ShoULTS, was a very nice one which broke her pole just as she landed it. Mrs. ShoULTS hasn't stopped telling about her fine trout.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Hathcock last Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davenport and Mrs. Stough from Maplesville, Ala.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun Garner were their children, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Bill Evans (Novice Garner) and little daughter of Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala.

Hathcock-Leach—

A marriage of much interest to their many friends is that of Miss Laura Ella Hathcock to Mr. H. C. Leach, a few days past at New Orleans, La. Miss Hathcock is the daughter of Mr. Claud Hathcock of this community, a graduate of Bibb County High School, Centreville, Ala. She was attending school at Tulane University, New Orleans, at the time of her marriage. Mr. Leach was reared in Bibb County, also a graduate of Bibb County High, also a graduate of Massey Business College and holds a responsible position with a firm in New Orleans. They will reside in New Orleans where Mrs. Leach will continue her work as nurse.

Their friends here are wishing them many years of happiness.

The average girl finds a wolf call much like a train whistle; they love to hear it, even though they aren't going any place.

DeGRAFFENRIED IN EUROPE ON TOUR OF INVESTIGATION

Representative Edward deGraffenried of the Sixth District of Alabama has been selected by the Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Representative Carl Vinson, as one of a group of sixteen members of the House to leave for Europe Friday afternoon, June 8th, to study the need for continuation of the foreign aid assistance program.

Eight of the members comprising the group are from the committee on Foreign Affairs, four from the committee on Appropriations and four from the committee on Armed Services. Representative deGraffenried was selected as one of the two Democrats from the thirty-eight man committee to make the trip, along with Representative Overton Brooks, senior Democratic member of the committee from Louisiana. The other two members are Representatives Short and Cole, senior Republican members of the committee.

While in Europe the Joint Committee will interrogate General Eisenhower on the military assistance program in Europe and representatives of the State Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration in regard to foreign economic conditions of the European countries who will be affected by the President's request for an eight billion dollar foreign aid program.

Countries to be visited are England, France, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Germany and Italy and the trip will be largely by air.

The members of the Joint Committee on their return will advise the Congress and the country of their first-hand knowledge of present conditions in Europe and what need exists for the foreign aid program which has been proposed by the President as it affects members of the Atlantic Pact.

It is to be expected that Representative deGraffenried will be called upon by the Committee on Armed Services along with the other three members making the trip, to advise the Committee of his findings during his trip and he will be expected to participate actively in the Congressional debate on this legislation when it comes to the floor of the House.

Representative Vinson made the following statement with reference to the selection of Congressman deGraffenried as one of the Committee Members to make this trip: "Mr. deGraffenried is one of the most outstanding members in Congress, a man of sound judgment, and I am very anxious that the Committee and the House have the benefit of his views and conclusions after he hears General Eisenhower and the State Department authorities in Europe."

TELEPHONE SERVICE

is still a Big Bargain!

The price of telephone service in Alabama has increased far less during the past ten years than most other prices—far less than wages and family income.

The overall cost of living has gone up more than 80%. Hourly wages in manufacturing plants have more than doubled. Yet, Alabama's telephone rates in the overall have advanced less than one-third.

Meanwhile, throughout most of Alabama, the number of telephones you can call at the local service rate has nearly tripled. And service is faster and better.

Yes, telephone service is today a bigger bargain than it was ten years ago—and takes a relatively smaller part of the family budget.

REV. M. LOCKHART

Birmingham, Ala. — The Rev. M. Lockhart, pastor of the Baptist Church at Holtville, Riverside Community, R.F.D. Wetumpka, has been named Rural Minister of the Year in Alabama by The Progressive Farmer magazine.

The Rev. Mr. Lockhart sold his farm, gave himself to the rural ministry and became a church organizer and builder. Twenty months ago he organized a new church with six women, two girls, and one man as charter members. Today they have a new two-story departmentalized church building, a pastor's home, and a full church organization. He is continuing his education through Howard College's Extension Center.

In connection with the award, the Rev. Mr. Lockhart will receive a scholarship to the Town and Country School for rural ministers at Emory University in Atlanta in August.

TELEGRAM FROM PROGRESSIVE FARMER

Rev. M. Lockhart, Pastor
Randolph, Ala.

Heartiest congratulations on your selection as Rural Minister of the Year. Please send us your photograph. Preferably a glossy print immediately. Frank Green, The Progressive Farmer, Birmingham, Alabama.

The above telegram was received Monday morning by the Rev. Lockhart at his home in Randolph. It is a high honor for Rev. Lockhart and his many friends in Chilton County will join the Progressive Farmer in their congratulations.

It was a great pleasure to give a letter of commendation to the church building program in which I have been almost continuously engaged for the past two decades. I definitely feel that my spiritual call from God is to preach the Gospel, but at the same time I feel that church building is also a definite part of my work as a minister.

One of my first church building experiences took place at the Pates Chapel Baptist Church four miles west of Thorsby, Alabama, where I was pastor in the early thirties. The church building was wrecked during the terrible tornado in March of 1932. During March of the next year following, the Maple Springs Baptist Church building burned which called for another building program. Maple Springs is located about four miles south of Clanton, Alabama, and has been two of the happiest pastorates of my ministry. One service was held in a home in the community between the time of the burning and the next service which was held in the new building with a lock and key job. However, it was at that time only a fourth time church. It is now a full time church.

Our next building program took place at the Liberty Baptist Church in Autauga County on Highway 31. Rooms or wings were added to the building in order to give more space.

In 1939 while serving as pastor of my home church at Refuge near Clanton, Alabama, we engaged in one of the most interesting building programs of my entire ministry. Like the other buildings that preceded it was in the midst of a great depression, but one of the nicest rural church buildings in the entire association was soon completed debt free.

We have just recently completed the second church building program in Elmore County. One was at the Friendship Baptist Church near Tallapoosa, Ala. Educational rooms were added to the building there. That was indeed some of the most beautiful work that we ever engaged in.

Just a few months ago we had the happy privilege of being in an interesting building program at the Holtville, Alabama. We only had eight members to begin with, but a $9,000.00 building was soon completed.

We are now beginning on another building program which calls for educational rooms at Randolph, Alabama. This will be an annex to a beautiful auditorium just recently erected. Pray for us and come to see us—M. Lockhart.

Leland R. West, aviation electronics technician, second class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan E. West of Route 4, Clanton, Ala., is serving aboard the aviation structural repair ship USS Fabius in the Far East.

West entered the naval service in July, 1946, and was stationed in Guam during the World War II. On returning to the States after the war he was instructor at the Naval Air Training Center in Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. L. R. West and their two sons, Ray and Richey, live on Glendale Drive in Clanton, Ala.

Two Clanton, Ala., Navy brothers have been advanced in ratings while serving aboard the attack transport USS Bayfield in the Far East.

Otis and Harvey G. Scott, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper A. Scott of Clanton, were simultaneously advanced. Otis to boatswain's mate, third class, and Harvey to commissaryman, second class.

Harvey's wife, Mrs. Gladys Irene Scott, is residing in Toast, N. C. The Scott brothers have been serving aboard the Bayfield since the outbreak of Korean hostilities.

Aubrey D. Smith, Commissaryman, second class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Smith of Route 2, Mt. Creek, Ala., is one of a crew of 69 officers and men aboard the patrol craft USS 572, a unit of the Atlantic Fleet Service Forces.

These ships are used primarily in patrol and coastal convoy work, the 572 is a "hunter-killer" type ship, and carries submarine detection apparatus, used in locating the underwater craft. It is also armed to destroy the submarines after they have been discovered.

Fred W. Price, who was stationed in Norfolk, Va., has recently been assigned to the ship, Kula Gulf, and is in port at Geto Bay.

Lt.-Col. Thomas H. Lane, surgeon of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat team, has returned to the United States for a medical post in the XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C. The veteran paratrooper surgeon, considered the new assignment "similar to a country doctor leaving his practice to join a staff of a big city hospital." During World War II he was a battalion surgeon in the 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment. In Korea he has held top medical post in the 187th. He attributes the Korea medical records for lifesaving of wounded men, to the better training of enlisted corpsmen.

Col. Lane is the son of a Navy Flight Surgeon, and was born at the U. S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. He grew up in military bases in an atmosphere of military medicine. He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1936 and took his medical training at George Washington University under ROTC, graduated in 1940. He was called for active duty in 1941 and took part in the Louisiana maneuvers. After watching an airborne demonstration there, he applied for assignment to the para-medics. As a parachutist he took part in several major battles, and directed the removal and care of many wounded in the first World War. Returning to civilian life he was a resident doctor at the T.C.I. Hospital in Birmingham.

In 1947 he returned to active duty as Commanding Officer at Fort Bragg; served two years at Madigan General Hospital in Washington, later became surgeon of the 82nd Airborne Infantry Division and was assigned to the 187th shortly before it went to Korea.

Col. Lane has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross; Bronze Star Medal; Purple Heart; Parachute Badge and the Combat Medic Badge. Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Lane live at 110-5th Ave., North, Clanton, Ala., with their three daughters, Patricia, Margaret and Elizabeth.

Troops of the 31st Infantry (Dixie) Division will celebrate completion of their basic training this week end with a full-scale review for Lt. General John R. Hodge, Commander of the Third Army.

Completion of the fourteen weeks basic training coincides with the Dixie Division's First Command inspection, which commenced with the formal review on Saturday and continued on June 11, 12 and 13.

Following the command inspection the division will move into 13 weeks of unit and combined armed training. Commenting on the performance of his soldiers during the basic training, Major General A. G. Paxton, Division Commander, said, "The spirit of willingness and the ability shown by the men of 31st Division during basic training has been a source of great satisfaction to me." We have come a long way in forging together a strong, well-trained division, and I feel certain that this gratifying progress will continue during the remainder of our training.

Lt. General John R. Hodge, Commanding Officer of the 3rd Army, was there to watch troops pass in review at this annual inspection and the public was invited to witness the review which was held at the Fort Jackson Air Strip.

The Dixie Division's red and white emblem will be a familiar sight all over the nation soon as the soldiers begin taking their 10-day leaves. Major-General Paxton announced that a policy governing leaves has been worked out and would start after the division had completed basic training.

The fortnight leaves are broken down into seven periods, ten days apart, with not more than 15 per cent of any unit being away at one time. The first leave period starts June 14th and the last ends September 2nd. This arrangement has been set to avoid overloading civilian transportation facilities. Clanton's own 167th Infantry will start their leave on June 15th.

Charles M. Popwell, boatswain's mate, second class, U.S.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Popwell, of Clanton, Ala., and husband of Mrs. Irene Popwell of Brooklyn, N. Y., has reported for duty at the U. S. Naval Air Technical Training Center, Jacksonville, Fla.

Before entering the Navy in 1941 Charles was a student at Chilton County High School.

"COOKING-IN-LIQUID" HELPS HOLD VITAMINS

When meats are cooked in liquid, such as stews, there is approximately 50 per cent retention of thiamine and 100 per cent of riboflavin and niacin.

This "cooking-in-liquid" method is best adapted to less tender cuts of meat and for preparing meat soups," points out Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist.

She suggests that the meat first be browned, if desired, and then covered with water or stock and seasonings added. Put a lid on the cooking vessel and simmer the meat only until tender. Add vegetables just long enough before meat is tender to cook them. Remove meat and vegetables to a casserole or pan and keep them warm.

"For gravy," says the specialist, "thicken the stock with flour and bring it to a hard boil. Cook until thickened. Pour this hot gravy over meat and vegetables or serve it separately. The gravy is nutritious and flavorful and makes a real contribution to the taste and nutrition appeal of your meat dish."

DRYING-OFF COWS

Probably one of the best ways to dry-off cows is to stop feeding concentrates and stop milking them all at once. But when this is done, roughage should be fed daily. The udders should be watched carefully and if swelling occurs the cows should be milked out.

INCREASE PROFIT BY KEEPING LAND BUSY

Alabama farmers have a big advantage over friends farther north in that the growing season is long enough to produce two crops a year on much of the land.

Reference is made to double cropping land on which crops mature at this season of the year, such as winter legumes harvested for seed, grazing crops, and small grains.

These crops can be followed with grain sorghum, sudan grass, millet, and soybeans in the southern half of the state.

"Which crops to use depends upon needs of the individual farm," says D. R. Harbor, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist. "If more grazing or hay is needed, sudan grass or millet should be used. If grain is needed, grain sorghum may be harvested for grain or the whole plants may be harvested, cured, and fed. Grain sorghum is used for silage by some farmers. It is also grazed from the field. Soybeans are grown for grazing, hay, or seed production."

The specialist adds that one of the most important things about planting these crops is to prepare land and and plant them soon after the spring-harvested crop is removed from the land.

MAKE A TEST BEFORE
USING A NEW CLEANER

Any paint can be damaged by strongly alkaline soap or other cleaners, according to Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist.

She explains that coarse scouring powder and strong cleaners remove or roughen the smooth outer surface of the paint so that it soils faster and is more difficult to clean. Strong alkali can weaken and also discolor paint. Therefore, it is wise to try out a new cleaning preparation on an inconspicuous part of the paint first.

WATERING GARDEN

Two or three weeks of dry weather following a rainy period can almost ruin a garden. Gardeners who have strong wells and either electric, gasoline or windmill pumps can protect a small garden from dry weather damage at very little extra cost.

Diamond News—

If the Alabama Mills team of Clanton ever expects to defeat the mill team of Wetumpka, they will have to devise some means of eliminating the second inning of the game.

For the second straight time the Wetumpka lads tagged a big second inning rally to whip the Clanton boys. This time they scored seven runs after two were out. This proved to be too much of a margin for Clanton to overcome. They fought back and held their own, but Wetumpka was determined to be the victor and was. The final score was 14 to 7.

Blackwell was the winning pitcher while Henry Smith was the loser.

These two teams will meet again in the near future. The exact date will be announced later.

ROBERTA CURRY, soprano, and her young daughter, Patricia Minthorne, harpist, of New York City, were presented in concert by the Music Appreciation Club Sunday afternoon, June 10th, in the First Baptist Church.

CURRY-MINTHORNE CONCERT RECEIVES HEARTY OVATION

The vocal-harp concert of Roberta Curry and Patricia Minthorne was a notable event in Clanton. A capacity-auditorium of music lovers from Clanton and surrounding communities enjoyed the melodious beauty achieved through the rare medium of voice and harp ensemble.

The repertoire embraced a delightful mixture of the familiar and the exotic offered with sincerity of feeling and musicianship. The lyrical tonality of Miss Curry's voice and the flowing arpeggios of the harp accompaniment were a most pleasant musical innovation for the art devotees of the community.

For many, the occasion held a peculiar interest, as they have been privileged to enjoy Miss Curry's musical talent from the time she began her study of music with local instructors, throughout her successful concertizing in New York. Now, native Clantonians anticipate great success for the poised young daughter whose pronounced ability as harpist is receiving marked recognition in the East.

The Music Appreciation Club, sponsors of the concert, honored the artists with a reception following the program. Old and new friends enjoyed the opportunity given to visit with the honorees. Sharing honors on this occasion was Mrs. Clara B. Curry, mother of Roberta Curry. Associated Producers assisted the Music Club in extending the courtesies.

Here's a paragraph that young men should clip and carry with them on dates. A recent test was conducted to decide whether a woman is more beautiful before or after eating. The test showed unanimously that girls are at their best before eating steak, salads, and such. According to the study after eating even the prettiest girl droops.

SOUTHERN BELL CIO REACH AGREEMENT

Southern Bell Telephone Company and the Communication Workers of America-CIO on June 2, 1951, in Atlanta reach agreement on a new contract covering more than 45,000 telephone employees in 9 states, including those at Atlanta. The contract runs for one year.

G. D. Garner, Vice President in Charge of Personnel for the Company, said the contract provides pay increases of approximately 10 percent in every pay rate, the increases ranging from $3.00 to $7.50 a week, depending on length of service and job classification.

"The agreement will be submitted to the Wage Stabilization Board for approval," Mr. Garner said. "Terms of the agreement are believed to be within the Board's stabilization formula but because of some doubt as to the meaning of some of its provisions, the Board's approval is being requested."

Approximately 80 percent of the wage increase will become effective immediately. The remainder becomes effective upon approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

The agreement will add $12,500,000 annually to the cost of providing telephone service in the South, Mr. Garner said. He said that with costs already having gone up faster than telephone rates, increases in telephone rates have become imperative.

"Considering the new agreement, telephone rate increases authorized since 1939 are falling short by about $32,500,000 annually of covering the cost of wage increases granted over the same period, to say nothing of other increased costs," Mr. Garner asserted.

"The new agreement protects the interests of telephone customers and telephone employees. It places telephone wages in satisfactory relationship with wage levels prevailing in the south for jobs comparable to telephone jobs. A wage survey which we recently completed showed that there has been a general upward movement in pay scales in industry since the last Southern Bell wage increase. The wage increases for Southern Bell employees were, therefore, justified by the facts and are in the interest of the public so that highly effective forces of skilled telephone people can be maintained to render the service the public expects and demands.

"We are pleased that the Union and the Company have arrived at an agreement harmoniously at the bargaining table."

FAVORABLE OUTLOOK

FOR POULTRY OWNERS

Indications are that egg producers will be in a very favorable position during the coming months.

John Weeks, A.P.I. Extension Service poultry specialist, reveals that fewer pullets were started for layers this spring than last, very few eggs have gone into storage, and egg consumption is going along at an all-time high. All these factors point to good egg prices this fall and winter.

"By following a good management and feeding program while the pullets are growing, more healthy and profitable layers can be put in the laying house this fall," declares Weeks.

It takes green posts and timbers 60 to 90 days to dry and season thoroughly after being cut. After this, they are ready for treatment.

OPS REGULATIONS
COVER BARBER SHOPS AND BEAUTY PARLORS
Barber shops and beauty parlors definitely come under price control regulations, OPS District Director Charles G. Dobbins said today. He made the statement to correct an erroneous impression apparently held by many South Alabama barbers and beauticians that they are not subject to price controls.
"Barber and beauty establishments are governed by Ceiling Price Regulation 34, which covers the 'service' trades," Dobbins said.
Along with other service establishments, South Alabama barbers and beauticians are required to post their ceiling prices not later than Friday, June 15. They must file a statement of their ceiling prices with the district office in Montgomery.
The deadline for posting ceiling prices on beef in all South Alabama butcher shops is next Monday, June 18th.

Mrs. Dezzie Littlejohn spent the week end in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Dorous and family.
Mrs. W. J. Preston was in Birmingham on Monday.
All "service" establishments in the local trade area are required to post their legal ceiling prices in their places of business by tomorrow, Friday, June 15th, the district director of the Office of Price Stabilization said today.
"Service establishments include filling stations that grease and wash cars, auto and radio repairmen, dry cleaning plants, shoe repairmen and others," OPS Director Charles G. Dobbins said.
The legal ceiling price of firms that sell services is the highest price these services were sold for during the OPS base period, December 19, 1950, to January 25, 1951.
Service establishments in this area are also required to file a statement of their ceiling prices with the South Alabama District Office, 14 Commerce Street, Montgomery.
HOG PRODUCTION
The right number and size of hogs must be available to use feed crops when they are ready. Likewise, planned breeding is important so that litters are farrowed when weather conditions are favorable for saving pigs.

The Cow That Can't "Run Dry"
Sandy Johnson showed me his Jersey cows last week. It was a warm day and they were all under the trees near a watering trough. And darned if one cow wasn't pumping water into the trough! It's a fact—she'd raise the pump handle with her nose, and use her throat to push it down again.
"That's Mabel," Sandy explained as she moved away. "Sometimes they drink that trough dry, and she's learned how to fill it again. But she doesn't know her own strength—turns the place into a swamp if we don't watch her."
From where I sit, Mabel isn't the only one who sometimes doesn't know where to stop. For instance, people often carry personal opinions too far—like the person who wants everyone to accept his choice of political parties, or ball players... or beverages. I prefer a glass of beer with my meals. I know that a lot of other people prefer milk. But nobody ought to insist on "herding" others around to his way of thinking.

F.F.A. STATE CONVENTION AT AUBURN, ALA.

The State Convention of the Future Farmers of America met in Auburn on June 7, 8 and 9th.

The following members of the Clanton
Chapter attended the convention: Earl Smith, Russell Shelton, Douglas
Williams, and Roddy Lowery, accompanied by their teacher of vocational agriculture, Mr. W. A. Lecroy.

The Clanton Judging Team won first place in the State Beet Judging Contest. This team will represent Alabama in the National Convention at Kansas City, Mo., in October.

The entire program was educational and very much enjoyed by those attending. — Roddy Lowery, Reporter.

To peel cold ripe tomatoes, take a paring knife and rub the whole tomato with the back of the knife. Then peel. The tomato can be easily peeled in this way and the necessity of scald-ing is eliminated. Tomatoes may also be pierced with a fork and held over a hot gas flame until the skin cracks.

When making children's wash dresses, it is a good idea to sew an extra piece of the material to the underside of the hem. In this way the material will be washed with the rest of the dress and will therefore match perfectly for patching later.

Painted handles on knives and other kitchen gadgets should never be allowed to stand in water. The wood under the enamel will absorb water and cause the paint to chip off.

Hillson of Greenville, Ill., will bring the homecoming message at the 11 o'clock hour. Rev. Hillson is president of Greenville College, also of the Wesleyan Methodist College. His parents were natives of this community and members of Rocky Mount Church. They passed away in 1918 within a few hours of each other during the flu epidemic and the four children were placed in an orphanage. There were two boys and two girls. After reaching maturity J. B. and his brother became ministers and the girls became Missionaries. Rev. Hillson made himself what he is. He is an outstanding man and this community is proud of him. He has not been here since a very small boy.

Hope to see you and you and all at homecoming. Come and bring a well filled basket. — T. C. Harrell. 2ts

The time in the ad appears "L.P. or National Gas." It's only natural that you folks know the word should be "Natural."—The Editor.

DEFENSE PLANTS SOUGHT FOR ALABAMA

Senator John Sparkman and Congressman Albert Rains, Alabama Fifth District, introduced in the Senate and House respectively legislation that would make for a wider dispersal of defense production plants. Senators O'Mahoney (Wyoming) and Fulbright (Arkansas) are Senate co-sponsors with Senator Sparkman.

In the form of an amendment to the Defense Production Act, the legislation would require defense production authorities before making loans, granting tax amortization certificates or granting other Government aids to build or expand production plants to give consideration to:

- (1) Wise utilization of natural resources, such as minerals, metals, etc.
- (2) Availability of labor supply.
- (3) Dispersal of industrial plants for purposes of National Security.

Senator Sparkman and Congressman Rains pointed out that these requirements would particularly benefit Alabama, which is blessed with an abundance of human and natural resources. "It could mean," Sparkman said, "a greater industrial expansion for Alabama, higher payroll for our workers, and a more rapid development of the tremendous electric power potential of our great river systems."

Congressman Rains particularly pointed out that in our defense effort full use should be made of the power that can be produced on the Coosa-Alabama River system. "This amendment," he said, "would help to hasten the construction of the great, long needed Howell Mill Shoals Dam."

Sparkman and Rains pointed out that just as in World War II we are not taking necessary steps to avoid making the Nation's productive facilities an easy target for attack. "So far," they said in a joint statement, "about 38 percent of Government assisted industrial expansion since the invasion of Korea has been concentrated in the eight states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. These states already have a heavy concentration of industry."

"The distribution of tax amortization allowed since the beginning of the present preparedness program is indicative of the continued concentration of defense facilities in a small geographical area. In this regard, Alabama, potentially one of the greatest of industrial states, has been granted through May 21, tax amortization that amounts to only $118,000,000 out of a National total of approximately $4,144,000,000."

The two legislators stated that it is not their intention to take away existing plants from any region, and that their amendment would not do so. They emphasized, however, that proper dispersal of new industries would make for a maximum use of the Nation's resources and would insure greater economic and military security. Senator Sparkman, Chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, pointed out that the amendment would also aid small businesses. With Senator Hill and 53 other senators joining him, Sparkman recently introduced another amendment to the Defense Production Act that would aid small businesses by insuring them a fairer share of Government defense contracts.

STAINLESS STEEL IN THE KITCHEN

Important for the housewife these days is a knowledge of stainless steel kitchenware, believes Stella Mitchell, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist. She says that stainless steel is still rather expensive but practically indestructible. However, a utensil made entirely of stainless steel tends to become too hot in spots therefore, heat must be kept low to prevent burning food in top-of-stove pans.

For more even heating, copper or aluminum often is applied to the undersurface of the pan, or a special heat-distributing core is used in the steel.

PREVENT LATE BLIGHT INJURY OF TOMATOES

Auburn, Ala. — Tomato growers are urged to prevent late blight on tomato plants if they want to make the highest profits.

According to John Bagby, A.P.I. Extension Service horticulturist, late blight caused heavy damage of tomatoes in 1949 and 1950. He agrees that the cost of applying control measures may seem to be rather high, but farmers should consider the greater returns from the protected crop rather than the cost of prevention of late blight. And the tomato fruitworm and pinworm may be controlled at the same time. In fact many growers have estimated that the fruit saved from worm damage will more than pay for the material used and the cost of application.

"Sprays have seemed to give slightly better control than dusts and are somewhat less expensive," states Bagby. "However, for best results the sprays should be applied with a power sprayer. Of course, dusts may be applied with less expensive equipment, which means that they will probably be more economical for the small grower."

A dust recommended for the control of diseases and pests of tomatoes containing five per cent rotham and five to six per cent Zineb. It will give satisfactory control of early and late blight as well as control of worms. Regular applications of the dust must be made for best results. The Auburn Approved Garden Dust is also recommended. Other recommended dusts for pests only are 50 per cent cryolite or one that contains five per cent rotham or methoxychlor.

Hugh Bates Injured Twice In 11 Days

HUGH BATES

Word reached Clanton last Sunday that Hugh Miller (Lally) Bates had been injured in action in Korea on June 11th. That was the second telegram his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bates, had received within 11 days that Hugh had been wounded in action. The first telegram was received on June 1st informing them of his being wounded on May 31st. No other word was received of his condition until the second telegram came, announcing his being wounded on June 11th.

At press time no further word had been received by Mr. and Mrs. Bates as to their son's condition.

JAMES ARTHUR MIMS

James Arthur Mims, age 4 years, died at the Children's Hospital in Birmingham Wednesday morning, June 20th, 1951.

Funeral services, conducted by the Revs. T. D. Rachels and W. R. Bush, of Sylacauga, Ala., will be held at the Pinedale Church at 2:00 p.m., Thursday, June 21st.

The baby is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Mims; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Mims and Mrs. Emma Mims; two sisters, Lula Bell and Margaret Ann, all of Clanton.

Spigener Funeral Home was in charge of funeral arrangements.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

R. O. Williams, Ben Frucci, Dr. Thomas Hayes have land prepared and is ready to plant Costal Bermuda Grass.

James Hogan has mowed white dutch clover and will windrow to harvest the seed with a combine.

Henry Lucas made application for soil and water conservation farm plan. Timber, cattle, and hogs are the crops upmost in his mind.

Raymond Giles, Mineral Springs Community, will give you his experience in getting a few crops started. Sericea is the main grazing crop for summer and Kentucky 31 fescue will be the winter grazing crop. The proof that cows will eat and fatten on Sericea can certainly be proved at Raymond's farm.

John Robinson has the same experience as Raymond Giles, summer grazing his sericea, winter grazing fescue.

Charles Busby is in the process of establishing a permanent pasture of sericea, fescue, orchard grass and a reseeded clover.

W. A. Williams states, "I want fescue in all the bottom south of the house."

Land preparation should be started immediately for the late June or early July sericea planting. The wet land that goes to fescue should be fallowed and kept ready for early fall planting.

Pastor and Mrs. A. T. Hickman were called to North Birmingham Sunday afternoon for the dedication of a Sunday School Department building at the Sareyton Assembly of God Church. Pastor Hickman preached the dedication sermon, and officiated in the dedication service.

ALFALFA

A good stand of alfalfa can be used for two or three years. But with good management thrown in, it will furnish grazing and hay for as long as four or five years without reseeded. All that is needed to succeed with it are the few, simple, definite recommendations available at every county agent's office.

A KEY TO PEACE

Mr. Ben Tucker,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Tucker:

Mr. Jim Plott, your County Representative, and myself, have been submitted several local bills by various parties in your County for our consideration.

Among those bills is one for raising the County Commissioners' salaries substantially.

Another is a request from the Sheriff of your county for more deputies and still another is one for Mr. J. C. Pattillo, clerk of the Circuit Court requesting money for clerk hire.

In addition to these bills which come to my mind at the moment, we have various other requests for local legislation. We are writing you and several citizens of Chilton County to get their reaction of these bills.

I have no intention of burdening Chilton County with any bills for expenditures unless it is absolutely necessary.

I earnestly request your views on all of these matters. We have also had many requests from Chilton County citizens to enact a local bill to regulate the County Board of Commissioners which, in my opinion, is needed badly. However, we have not had the time to fully study the needs of the Commissioners Court. This will have my attention at an early date. Please write me as fully as possible as to your views of these different requests for local legislation.

Yours sincerely,

J. T. PHILLIPS.

A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE

Above is a copy of a letter received from Senator J. T. Phillips the past week. A similar letter was received from J. S. Plott, our Representative.

Every citizen of the county should express himself in the matters referred to in the letter from our representatives.

Personally speaking this newspaper and practically all of the local townsmen we have discussed the pending legislation with, agree, that the Bill giving the Circuit Clerk a secretary paid by the county is a fair and just move to better the conditions in the Circuit Clerk's office.

In the pending Bill giving the Sheriff's Office another deputy and raising the maximum salary scale, we find much agreement. The office is now operating on salary scales set-up many years ago when a dollar was worth more than fifty cents. Too, a deputy will pay his way in added fines and fees at the same time strengthening our law enforcement department in the county.

As to the proposed Bill changing the County Commissioners Court the average voter is not so sure. All are agreed that the Commissioners should be strengthened, but as to the ways and means, they are not ready to commit themselves.

We heartily commend both Mr. Phillips and Mr. Plott in the manner in which they are going about their work in our interest at Montgomery. Both are doing their utmost to give the voters at home the last say in any added legislation.

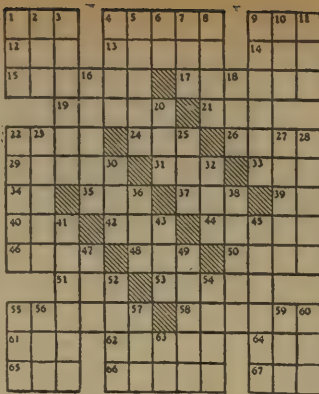

We hope the voter takes the opportunity to write the Senator and Representative and let him know his wish in the matters mentioned above.

Folks and Things About Town

--By BEN

We're mighty glad that the Town of Maplesville and the Stremling Veener Company have settled their difficulties and are working in harmony again for the betterment of all concerned. No man, or corporation, or municipality, or even nation, are sufficient unto themselves, anymore. With harmony, Maplesville can continue the wonderful growth it has enjoyed in recent years.

In less time that it takes us to put our pants on, Gene Gore, Sleepy Miller and Lawrence Calfee, were at the fire the other night when Dr. R. J. Eiland's office burned. Sleepy says Gene Gore was there when he arrived at the Fire Hall, and if that is true then he must have been standing up there waiting for a fire because the three firemen named were down the highway at the fire by the time we could slip into a pair of trousers and we mean by putting them on over our pajamas. We'll bet a nickel it wasn't five minutes. The whole fire department was close behind and then a good portion of the population followed immediately. More smoke was generated by that fire than by Dock Levines barbecue pit.

Mr. W. M. Polk has spoiled our day. Just because we arrived a bit late at the office this morning he scolded us and informed us the wee bit of beauty sleep we steal each morning will do us no good. He says he speaks from experience, and too, he has seen what it hasn't done for the writer. Mr. W.M. says to go on and take it like a man, admit you've seen your best days, and forget about it. Confidently we're not the man we used to be—and never was.

J. E. Easterling says he has seen everything now. He went fishing the other day with a friend and the fellow caught a rabbit. "You'd be surprised if you but knew, the awful things that rabbits do..." This dumb bunny was swimming across the river. That is, he had started across the river; but they scooped him up in a net. We know why chickens cross the road, but we do not know why rabbits cross the river. If rabbits had tails we would say that is another tale, but rabbits don't have tails. So that must be another story.

We see Dr. W. C. Golden has raised himself a receptionist, and a mighty sweet little receptionist she is too. She's his daughter, Louise. We are raising us a secretary and typist. She's got several years to go yet, but it won't be long. We raised one, but the United States Navy got her. Course we're perfectly happy about the whole thing as they are very happy, and would be a lot happier if they weren't separated by a couple of oceans and a continent. But that won't be long either, Seaman West will be back in the States in a couple of months. But back to Dr. Golden's receptionist, she was being most efficient when we saw her the other morning and we are pretty sure "Papa" Golden is mighty proud of her.

Thanks to Our Town Council

Mayor Jones and the City Council are to be commended for many things they have done, and are doing for the City of Clanton. The people are very grateful for the progress our city has made under the present administration.

And we are confident that such will continue. The Natural Gas system is going to make all of us feel like we are living in a real city. The streets of our city are in fine condition compared to some towns this size, and even larger. We are also supplied with a sufficient cars and trucks on our highways and city's streets, and really, it is no place for a "pet" to be loose to roam around, endangering its own life, and the life of people. On the other hand, if the dog is not worth the time and trouble that it will take to keep him at home, or keep him off the streets, then he is a nuisance to society, and should be put away forever.

No Flag On Flag Day

Last Thursday was National Flag Day. But many of us were a little disappointed in that we did not see the display of our National emblem from every business house in town. Certainly those who believe in Free Enterprise should honor the flag that grants such a way of life. What if such freedom were taken away, and we were thrown under the heel of communism, or some other kind of ism; then the Stars and Stripes would look mighty good, and every man would be delighted to display Old Glory if he had only an opportunity. Our appreciation for a thing is manifested by the recognition we give it. Wouldn't it be fine if some kind of Flag Day service could be held on such days, and thereby teach us to have more appreciation for our National Flag; and for the things it stands for? I am told that the Elks Lodge in places celebrates Flag Day every year. Why can't others do the same? — Hickman.

EPILEPSY

Epilepsy is a common disease, but because of its characteristic nature of developing into convulsions, individuals afflicted with the condition are apt to be shunned by general society.

There is probably more misunderstanding, more incorrect beliefs, more fear and more unjustified discrimination associated with this disease and the people who suffer from it than any other illness. This is particularly unfortunate because in 80 to 85 per cent of the cases it is possible with proper treatment to abolish or control the spells from which these patients suffer, permitting them to lead normal and active lives.

The word epilepsy means seizure. One type of seizure, Grand Mal, occurs as a result of an irritation of the brain. From the brain a nervous discharge spreads down from the brain through the spinal cord and then on through the nerves to the muscles in the arms, the legs and the body generally. The action results in a convulsion, causing the victim to lose consciousness and the muscles to stiffen and twitch.

The second type of seizure, known as Petit Mal or minor spell, is often so mild that it may pass unnoticed by people outside the family. The individual suddenly stops what he is doing and becomes unaware of what is going on about him.

Although the generalized convulsive seizures or major spells seldom cease permanently without treatment, the minor spells or Petit Mal are most common and most frequent during childhood, tend to diminish as the patient grows older and may even cease as he becomes an adult.

Grand Mal and Petit Mal are what might be termed ordinary epilepsy. There are other seizures which if noted for the first time in adult life may be traced to some other condition, involving insufficient amounts of sugar in the blood, insufficient supply of blood to the brain because of heart disease and so on.

Most cases can be managed adequately by the family physician. Where special tests are needed, it is the family physician who should be consulted.

Desire for Importance

HENRY MILLER, Chicago, told me once that there was a time when he was surely going insane. How? What did he do about it?

From the age of seven to twenty-three he was continually sick. He had begun life as a frail and weakly child. The other children taunted him about his condition and this worried him. So he exerted himself to do everything better than the other boys did, and when he succeeded. But he stayed as much to himself as he could. This practice kept him going around in the well known vicious circle: the more he held himself aloof from others, the less they liked him; the less they liked him, the more he kept to himself.

By and by he was living in a dream world, and his dreams, of course, were not pleasant. But all this time, he longed to have the boys like him; he wanted to be important to them.

At the age of eighteen, he joined the Marine Corps—the war was on its way to a close. He wanted to be a hero—dead or alive. He used even to dream about exposing himself to danger. But he came home safe, if not sound.

Then he fell in love, married. They argued and fought incessantly. There were times when he wanted her to die; even wanted to do the dreadful deed himself. Then he, too, would die. What was the use of living anyway. But somewhere down deep within him, a voice was telling him he was on the wrong track.

Finally, after all these years of suffering—after a third of a lifetime had gone by—he decided to do something about himself, not just think.

So he went to a psychiatrist, who told him to do the opposite of what he had been doing, naturally. He told him to go out among people whether he wanted to or not; to mix and to take an interest in others. Then he told him that an easy way to make a start was to join a class in public speaking, and to get on his feet and talk. His first attempts would be poor, said the doctor, maybe even ludicrous. But that wouldn't matter. They would improve. Henry said he would do as advised, tho he had no intention of carrying out his promise. But since there was no other gate open, he walked down the path that beckoned to him, and joined a public speaking class and paid for it. Now he would have to attend or lose his money.

Would you believe that during the three weeks that psychiatrist held out a helping hand that Henry Miller was changed from a man who couldn't think straight to a man whose thinking was clear and sound?

Well, Henry Miller was only demonstrating in a big way what learned philosophers and psychiatrists have long been telling us: that the desire for importance is one of the strongest urges—if not the strongest—in a human being. Because of it, men have done noble deeds, performed the greatest feats of courage, become heroes. Improperly guided, it can do what these same learned men advise us is being done every day, keep on filling our institutions with men who have never got a start on the right path.

BRAISED MEATS RETAIN MORE FOOD NUTRIENTS

Auburn, Ala. — Less tender cuts of meat taste better and at the same time are very nutritious when they are braised.

It is also advisable to braise tender cuts, such as pork and veal chops, steaks and pork liver, since they may be cooked well done by this method and still be tender and juicy.

Mary Hulsey, A.P.I. Extension Service nutritionist, points out that braised meats retain 95 per cent of their riboflavin and niacin and 65 per cent of their thiamine. There is little, if any, loss of the protein in braised meat.

"To braise successfully," says the specialist, "brown meat slowly on all sides in fat, season, add a small amount of liquid if necessary, cover with a tight-fitting lid and cook at a low temperature until the meat is tender."

TIME TO PLANT GRAIN SORGHUM IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala. — Grain sorghum is the very best crop to plant around the middle of June if a fair yield of grain is wanted.

J. C. Lowery, A.P.I. Extension Service agronomist, believes that more farmers will want to plant it this year because dry weather has injured so many grain crops. And in some cases cotton stands are so poor farmers may want to plant them up and plant grain sorghum. Planting dates are from around June first to July first in North Alabama and from June first to July 15 in South Alabama.

The crop may be harvested for grain, whole plants may be cut and saved for roughage, or it may be grazed by hogs and cows. Plant Martin's Combine in North Alabama and Early Hegari in Central and South Alabama if the crop is to be combined. If it is to be cut and fed green or made into silage, use Regular Hegari or Sagrain. Use about eight pounds of seed per acre when planting the low growing types and as little as three pounds of seed of the tall growing kind.

The seed should be treated with a dust fungicide, and the crop will need only one or two shallow cultivations.

Farmer's Question Corner

PREPARED BY American Foundation For Animal Health

What About Rabies?

Q: What is rabies?
A: It is a fatal, virus-borne disease which can affect both animals and human beings.

Q: How is it spread?
A: The virus of rabies is usually spread by the bite on an animal suffering from rabies. The saliva from a rabid animal contacting the eye or through scratches or cuts on the skin, can also spread it.

Q: What animals get rabies?
A: It is most common in dogs. However, farm livestock, wolves, foxes, coyotes, cats, squirrels and skunks may develop rabies.

Q: What does rabies look like?
A: Suspect rabies when dogs and livestock don't behave normally.

Gentle animals may become pugnacious. Dogs may either have dumb rabies, which appears like a bone in the throat and a paralyzed lower jaw; or furious rabies where the animal wants to bite anything within reach.

Q: Can the disease be prevented?

A: There is a very effective vaccine used by veterinarians to prevent the disease in dogs—also to protect valuable livestock in rabies areas.

Q: What should one do if rabies is suspected?

A: Contact a veterinarian immediately. Confine any suspect dog or farm animal. If a person is bitten call a physician at once.

Q: Can rabies be cured?
A: It is almost always fatal, but can generally be prevented by protective vaccination.

Q: How should a dog or other rabid animal that is biting livestock be destroyed?

A: Kill it by shooting, but never through the head. This damages the brain for testing in the laboratory. If an animal can be confined until death this permits more accurate diagnostic laboratory results.

NOTE—Due to space limitations, general questions cannot be handled by this column.

What About Anthrax?

Q: How serious a threat to livestock is anthrax?

A: It depends on the locality. Although anthrax has occurred in almost every state, there are only a certain number of regions where it is a constant hazard.

Q: Is the disease very deadly?

A: Yes. It is the most dangerous of all known animal diseases; and it kills human beings, too.

Q: What are the symptoms of anthrax?

A: Owners may not see any "symptoms". Often an animal is suddenly found dead, for no known cause. Then, unless prompt steps are taken, anthrax may easily spread all over the locality.

Q: What causes anthrax?
A: A tiny spore, which lives in the soil. The spore form of this germ can survive for years, and still kill.

Q: What can one do to prevent anthrax?

A: In "anthrax areas" livestock can be protected by vaccination.

However, vaccination should NOT be done except in these areas, or where an outbreak occurs. And in any circumstances, the vaccinating should be done by a veterinarian. Because the anthrax spore is very deadly, and careless or improper handling may actually cause an outbreak.

Q: If an animal dies of anthrax, what should be done?

A: Move all stock off the pasture where the animal has grazed. Call a veterinarian immediately to make sure of cause of death. Then follow his guidance on method of handling the rest of the herd, and on disposal of carcass, as the dead animal is a threat to all other stock in the neighborhood.

NOTE—Due to space limitations, general questions cannot be handled by this column.

Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

Questions About Death

"My three-year-old heard a neighbor and myself talking about a person that had died four days ago. Just now she had accident. 'How come did Let's mother die?' What would be your answer to this?"

Death does not mean a great deal to a three-year-old girl, although she may have had some contact with it by seeing birds or animals that were dead. Certainly death is not yet associated in her mind with a great sense of loss or of sorrow.

Therefore, in answering her question I would suggest that in a very matter-of-fact way you tell your daughter that death comes when a person's body is worn out or sometimes when it has had an accident. In this case you can say that Lee's mother died because her body wore out. That is probably all you need to say.

Do not go into any of the details concerning her death. Change the subject to something else. In this way you are not avoiding her question, you are answering it honestly, and at the same time you are avoiding that sort of dwelling upon death that might cause great emotional upset or fear on her part.

If you should find that after hearing your neighbor talking about this death, your daughter seems to be unusually nervous, can't sleep at night, and is restless and irritable, it may be that the idea of death bothers her more than you realize. She may have the idea, for example, that when one is sick he dies.

If you think there may be this misunderstanding in her mind, refer to someone who has been sick but who now is well because the doctors knew how to help her get well, and comment casually that most people who are sick get well.

Unhappy With Father

"My husband has never had any sympathy for our little girl—always laughed when she was sad or upset. Consequently she will never go to him except when happy. How can he overcome this? She gets so upset when I leave and unless she is happy never looks forward to being with him. He loves her dearly and I know this hurts him, even though he has been the cause."

I judge from your question that your husband now realizes that he should not have laughed at your daughter when she was sad and upset and that he is genuinely sorry that he did so.

He must realize, however, that because he has made fun of her in the past the little girl quite naturally has come to the place where she doesn't want to be around him when she feels unhappy. Nothing he can do will change her attitude immediately. Mistakes are not overcome that easily.

Let me suggest the following: The next time the little girl is upset or unhappy and with you, let your husband remain with you, also, and let him be unusually sympathetic and understanding with reference to your daughter's feelings.

At first she undoubtedly will cling to you and you may even express some hostility toward your husband for being present. If he will be patient, however, if he will at all times guard against

PLENTIFUL FOODS
The list of foods that are plentiful on Alabama markets this month are oranges, local vegetables, apples, and apple sauce, citrus juices, dried beans, peanut butter, dairy products, broilers, and fish.

CHICKEN LICE
Control of chicken lice can be had for just a few cents. Dust two pounds of sulphur in the litter of the poultry house for every 100 square feet of floor space. The treatment should last about three months.

laughing at the little girl when she feels bad, if he will try to increase the number of times they can have happy experiences together, it is likely that she will learn gradually to accept him at all times, not simply when she is feeling good.

It should be stressed again, however, that it will take time to bring about this change in your little daughter, but if the above procedure is followed it should bring results.

Teen Money Troubles

"We have a modest income. Our son, sixteen, is unhappy because he can't keep up with his school friends in social life. The girls expect corsets that cost for dollars, but after all there is no lesson we can't afford. Any suggestions?"

I have no suggestions for an easy solution of your problem. In fact, I don't think there is one. It isn't pleasant to be unable to keep up with financial expectations of one's own child, but after all there is no lesson in life that is more important than that.

Dr. Maynard's new booklet, Your Child Today, discusses twenty of the most common problems of parents. It's free; mail a postcard to Donald M. Maynard, 810 Broadway, Nashville 2, Tennessee, and ask for a copy.

of learning to accept one's financial position and to adjust to it accordingly. If the income of your family doesn't permit your son to keep up with his crowd, then he'll just have to accept that fact and make the best of it.

But something else needs to be said. Surely not all of those in your son's crowd are financially affluent. There must be other boys who are as embarrassed as your son. He'll know who they are.

Suggest that they get together and decide that on their dates they'll not pamper the whims of the weaker sex. Let them plan dates together. Adolescents with a little ingenuity and creativeness can have good times together without spending a lot of money.

And let's not be unfair to the girls. Many of them are sane and sensible and won't expect the boys to provide entertainment they can't afford.

It should be remembered, too, that a boy who has "something on the ball" that is, who has an attractive personality and is active in school affairs, can get by without buying corsets and always providing expensive entertainment. Furthermore, there are beautiful flower arrangements that can be had for a reasonable sum.

Granting that your son should learn to get along on the family income, it also is true that he should have the satisfaction that comes from an occasional "splurge."

Even with your modest income, for example, you probably can agree to pay for one or two corsets a year for special occasions. It can be understood that if he wants to give them more frequently than this, he must pay for them out of his allowance or get the money for them by working for it. By following some such plan, he will not feel entirely left out of his crowd.

IRRIGATION

Irrigation is becoming more and more a part of Alabama farming. Many progressive farmers are turning to irrigation for pasture crops as well as for commercial vegetables.

Mrs. J. J. Pickens has returned from a visit to Meridian. She had the pleasure while there of seeing Mr. William Fagel in person who is the producer of the telecast "Faith For Today." Mrs. Fagel who also appears in the telecast was with him.

Sunday night is the time to elect new B.T.U. officers for another year. Please be much in prayer in electing them.

There was a large crowd out for prayer meeting Wednesday night. Don't know why we had more present than usual, unless it was the nice shower we had. It might have reminded us that God was the sender and that we should be at church doing their duty.

There were 15 W.M.U. ladies met at the church Thursday for a day of prayer. We were glad that our pastor and wife could be with us, also Mrs. Russell Scott; the association president. Mrs. Scott gave a very interesting talk.

Mrs. Russell Scott will teach a stewardship book Wednesday night, July 18th, at 7:30 o'clock. The theme of the book is Living Abundantly. We would like for everyone in this community to be present. I am sure you will receive a blessing.

Mrs. Briggs Gibson met Thursday with the Sunbeams. There were nine present. Also Mrs. Jimmie Ward met with the G.A.'s with six present.

Everyone please be praying for our revival beginning the fourth Sunday in August. Rev. Fred Lowery will be the visiting minister.

There will be a cemetery clearing here next Saturday, June 23rd. Everyone interested please come as it is a very bad shape.

And then there was the man who said that gossip is just a matter of letting the chat out of the bag, but it is generally agreed that gossip is the art of saying nothing in a way that leaves nothing unsaid.

Quick magazine's comment on Rita Hayworth's demands for a three million dollar settlement for her daughter, Yasmine. "She wants the best things in the world for her daughter, including a rich mother."

Greenville was settled in 1819 by a party from Greenville, S. C., incorporated in 1820, and was given the name of Battusville in honor of a Georgia Indian fighter in the Creek War. The name was changed shortly thereafter to the present Greenville, to commemorate the home settlement of most of the early inhabitants.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. Mary M. Potter, Kensington, Md.: I remember when children used to spend a whole vacation making sand bottles. We would search until we found stones of different colors, then we would pulverize them between two big stones. Our fingers suffered, but when the various colored dusts were arranged in layers in our sand bottles, we felt well repaid. A ketchup bottle was a real prize, and often we would put one away before it was time to use it.

From Freda Kraft, Baltimore: I remember the horse cars of which the city was very proud. We children were prouder when we were allowed to hold the reins. I remember the big, white horses which pulled the brewery wagons. Also, the beautiful horses going to a fire pulling the old fire engines.

From Dora Bucklin, Orleans, Neb.: I can remember when the common people had corn fed beef seven times a week, and fresh home made sausage for breakfast every morning. We also had fresh home-churned butter and all the eggs we wanted.

From C. L. Miller, Vale, Ore.: I remember when father would take bundles of wheat and lay them on the ground in a circle and then put me on a horse and the horse would tramp the grain out and father would clean it and take it to the mill. I would go to sleep on the horse walking in a circle and fall off.

From Mrs. Marie Davis, Gary, Ind.: I remember when bread was a nickel a loaf.

From H. B. Law, Lebanon, Ohio: Do you remember when the grocer had only two brands of crackers—Butter and Star? In the oyster season, they had little round crackers, the size of a nickel, called oystercakes. There was no salt on them, and they came in a barrel.

was of white carnations. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Claudine Eiland, was her only attendant. The groom chose for his best man Mr. Bob Edd McKinney.

Only immediate members of the bride's and groom's families were present.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a buffet supper. After a short honeymoon the couple will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gregg, parents of the groom.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT PRO RATA SHARE OF THE COST OF SAID PROJECT

Article V

The State Highway Department pro rata share of the value of labor and materials which shall be actually put into the construction of Section B of said project, shall not exceed the sum of Twenty-One Thousand dollars ($21,000.00) requested of the State Treasurer as above mentioned, which does not affect the authorized share of Forty-Two Thousand dollars ($42,000.00); the approved total estimated cost of Section B of said project.

PAYMENTS

Article VI

As the construction of said project progresses, the Director shall from time to time draw warrants on the State Treasurer for the payment to B. E. Reeves, Treasurer of Chilton County, of the amount of the County's share of the project, hereby designated by the County for that purpose and authorized under the laws of said County to receive public funds of the County of Chilton of such sums as shall not, together with previous payments, exceed the State Highway Department pro rata share, as above specified, of the value, as determined by the Director, of the inspection and approval of the labor and materials which have actually been put into said construction work in compliance with the requirements of Article III hereof. Prior to final payment, all records and accounts of the project shall be audited by the Bureau of Finance of the State Highway Department.

The Director reserves the right to withhold any sum as he may deem necessary to insure completion of construction in compliance with said plans and specifications.

MAINTENANCE OF PROJECT

Article VII

The County hereby assumes the obligation of perpetual maintenance of the project beginning on the date same is completed and accepted by the State Highway Department. Such maintenance shall preserve the riding surface and typical section of the roadway by means of systematic routine and periodic repair, the nurture and replacement when necessary of grass, and ditch checks, or other devices for prevention of erosion, the protection of existing structures from fire, and maintaining in inlet and outlet ditches to drainage structures in such condition that the said structures may function properly at all times. The County agrees that failure on its part to maintain the project in condition satisfactory to the State Highway Department shall be cause for said State Highway Department to suspend payment in the County that may be under construction, or to defer beginning a new project, until the maintenance of this project has been brought to satisfactory condition.

In witness whereof the parties have hereunto affixed their signatures, the County on the day and year above written and the Director on the 27th day of April, 1951.

STEPPING UP EGG PRODUCTION

It's necessary for a hen to be fed all essential nutrients in the proper proportions if the owner is to experience profitable egg production.

Marion is one of the oldest towns in Alabama. It was first known as Muckle Ridge because Michael Muckle had a cabin near by in 1817. The name was later changed to honor Francis Marion, the "Swamp Fox" of the Revolution.

HILL PROPOSES OIL LAND ROYALTIES FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) has proposed that oil royalties from submerged coastal lands be used for national defense and educational purposes. The Alabama senator has been joined by Senator John Sparkman and nine other Senate colleagues in the introduction of an amendment to the controversial Tidelands Oil bill to have Congress dedicate the royalties to the long-range needs of primary, secondary and higher education.

"The decisions of the highest court have held that this oil belongs to the people of Alabama and to all the American people, not merely to the people of three or four States—California, Texas and Louisiana—whose claim is no more than that they were born next door to the oil deposits," Hill said. "The effect of the Tidelands Oil bill in its present form may be to nullify these court decisions."

In a major Senate speech Hill described "the vastness of the treasure" in under sea oil, calling the oil deposits "a great new land resource" roughly estimated at 15 billion barrels presently worth 40 billion dollars. "Like a Lost Atlantis rising from the sea—modern technology has created, from a source of which we had not dreamed, new public lands in these newly extractable oil deposits lying beneath the sea."

Hill told his Senate colleagues that "they offer the greatest opportunity to American education since the dedication of a large proportion of our public lands to educational purposes through the establishment of our prized system of land grant colleges."

"It is a part of the American tradition and belief in education that our public lands should be dedicated in substantial part to the creation of an even greater resource—an educated citizenry," Hill said. He explained that the amendment would authorize the use of the royalties for urgent defense purposes during the present emergency so as to relieve the "taxpayers" that amount of further tax burden."

Describing the "severe financial crisis" in American education," Hill said, "Every group, every sector of American education has its back against the wall. Our school buildings are overcrowded. The grammar schools in our nation are in the next four years to receive the largest number of students in the history of the United States. Our post-war babies have come of age—school age. This tidal wave of Year-Olds will soon inundate our schools of secondary and primary education. Our grammar schools need more classrooms. Our colleges are State grant colleges or private in equally severe financial straits. The Hill Amendment creates a National Advisory Council on Grants in Aid of Education, whose function shall be to study and develop a plan to be approved by Congress, for the equitable allocation and use of the oil money for primary, secondary and higher education.

DIXIE DIVISION COMPLETES 14 WEEKS
BASIC TRAINING

Fort Jackson, S. C. — The 31st Infantry Division has completed 14 weeks of basic training without a fatal accident or even a critical injury to any of the more than 20,000 troops in the unit, Major General A. C. Paxton, Commander, announced today.

The Dixie Division's safety record during the period was one of the best in the entire Third Army area, General Paxton said. During March and April, the injury frequency rate for all Class 1 installations in the Army area was 8.3. The division rate of 4.5 was slightly more than half the area rate.

During May, a rate of 5.1 was compiled by the former National Guard division from Alabama and Mississippi. Comparable figures from all other stations in Third Army area are not yet available but they were expected to be higher than the division rate.

The most serious training injury in the division was suffered by Private First Class Borden P. Gravette, of Talladega, Ala., assigned to the 16th Infantry Regiment.

Gravette received a flesh wound in the leg while serving as loader on a machine gun. A piece of cleaning rod had accidentally become lodged in the barrel of the gun he was serving and he was injured when the first round was fired.

As is all studies of accidents, the division's record presented some freakish conclusions and happenings.

Only a small percentage of all injuries occurred while the men were going through the potentially dangerous combat training. Athletics were responsible for the greatest number of injuries, with football heading the list of causes.

The bane of soldiers, KP, contributed more to the injury rate than hand-to-hand combat training, firing millions of rounds of live ammunition, or the infiltration course, where machine guns fire just 44 inches over the heads of crawling men.

Running up the injury score of mess-hall crews were such accidents as an oven door falling open and hurting a knee and a field range turning over while being cleaned and breaking the cleaner's finger. The usual kitchen hazard of cuts from mishandled carving knives also took place.

Darkness caused injury to one Dixie Division soldier. While on a night problem he fell into an open 40-foot well. Luckily, his only injuries were leg abrasions and a sprained foot.

Irony was also present. A file clerk working in the orderly room of 200th Infantry Regimental Headquarters cut his hand while filing a letter. He had completed his strenuous combat training without mishap.

A remarkable record in preventing motor vehicle accidents was also set by the Dixie Division. During March, the unit's .87 accident rate was considerably less than the 1.8 for all Class 1 installations in the Third Army area. April's 5 rate was just one-third of the 1.5 score for all other Class 1 installations in the area.

The accident rate for May dropped still further, down to .4, but no figures for the Army area are available yet for comparison.

General Paxton credited the division safety organization, headed by Major Charles R. Lewis, of Birmingham, Ala., and the cooperation by unit commanders at all levels for the divisions excellent safety record.

Safety officers are appointed for each of the division's three Infantry regiments, division artillery, and one each for separate battalions and companies. These six officers, with Major Lewis, constitute the division safety council.

Safety officers are also appointed in all companies and batteries, to stress the need for adequate safety measures, both on and off duty, General Paxton added.

"A little learning is a dangerous thing." Ignorance is better. That way you can be positive.

WALNUT CREEK MEETING HELD

Despite a small attendance, a good 4-H neighborhood meeting was held in Walnut Creek last Friday, June 8th, with Martha Faye Tracy, neighborhood leader, in charge.

After calling the meeting to order and discussing the business of the club, Martha Faye and Geraldine Partridge, who substituted for Frances Hughes, gave the demonstration on "The Pressure Canner." They gave the points that everyone using a pressure canner should remember, such as: Use two inches of water in the canner; place jars so steam can circulate around them; allow steam to escape for 10 minutes before closing the petcock; be sure the gauge registers zero before opening petcock; and raise the lid away from you when you open the canner to remove the jars.

Refreshments were served and games directed by Martha Faye. Others who attended were: Rose Mary Tracy, Faye Smitherman, Mrs. W. E. Tracy, local leader, and Myra Crocker, Home Demonstration Agent.

6-PRESSURE CANNER DEMONSTRATED

The pressure canner is being demonstrated to 4-H members this month in Chilton County by the girls 4-H neighborhood leaders.

When the Baker group met Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m. at the Baker School, Peggy Jean Parrish and Gulma Nell Payton had the equipment and information ready to present to the other ten members who came. They showed them how to put the jars into the canner, the amount of water needed, how to pen and close the canner, and how to remove the lid and the jars. They stressed allowing the steam to escape for ten minutes after it first starts before closing the petcock and the importance of watching the pressure gauge.

After the demonstration, they directed several games in which the whole group participated.

Those present were: Peggy Jean Parrish, Gulma Nell Payton, Johnnie Sue Culpepper, Annette Kane, Winnie Lee Turner, Barbara Kane, Betty Jean Milford, Shirley Wright, Norma Jean Lowery, Dorothy Franklin, Joe Parrish, Mrs. C. WITH THE 1ST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA

When the enemy attacked one night, Marine Private First Class James W. Flett pulled a sleeper.

A yelling mob of Chinese Communists burst out of the 3:00 a.m. darkness toward a Marine position. Artillery roared, machine guns rattled, grenades flashed, automatic rifles chattered.

Snug in his foxhole, Private First Class Flett slept.

For three hours the Reds blasted away, and the Marines blasted back. Within 100 yards of his foxhole, a fierce hand-to-hand struggle ensued.

Private First Class Flett, whose home is at 1919 Outpost Drive, Hollywood, Calif., slept serenely through it all.

Next morning he awoke, gazed with astonishment upon a counted heap of 112 enemy bodies.

"It's embarrassing," he gulped, "to have to ask your buddies what happened."

Interesting Meeting Of Jemison Home Demonstration Club

Members of the Jemison Home Demonstration Club found the June demonstration on "Seasonal Refreshments" to be particularly interesting for several reasons.

Since it was a foods demonstration, they decided to meet at eleven o'clock and use the foods prepared during the demonstration for lunch.

The foods which Mrs. V. O. Lenoir, demonstration leader, prepared and discussed were pimento cheese sandwiches, garlic cheese roll, egg sandwich, date nut bread, orange punch, and lime sherbet. Mrs. Lenoir was assisted with the preparation by Mrs. H. L. Shaw, demonstration leader, and Mrs. Winifred Jackson, hostess. The orange punch and garlic cheese roll, being the most unusual, caused quite a bit of comment among the club members. They liked both very much.

The business meeting was held with Mrs. W. J. Preston, presiding, after the demonstration and lunch. Those present were Mrs. B. C. Lenoir, Mrs. V. O. Parents' Problems

By DONALD M. MAYNARD

The Importance of Age

How important is it for a ten-year-old boy to play with boys his own age outside of school? The boys his age live several blocks away—and this association should be encouraged. As present boys play with a seven-year-old who lives in his block.

It is exceedingly important that your boy play with those of his own age. It is in the rough and tumble play with one's peers that a child learns that give and take which is so essential if he is to adjust himself happily to his fellow.

If he plays only with the seven-year-old, he is likely to dominate him that soon he will have an exalted opinion of his own powers and abilities. When he finds himself with those of his own age whom he cannot dominate and with whom he cannot help, his own way, he may develop feelings of inferiority and insecurity that will remain with him throughout life.

Let me suggest, therefore, that you have boys of his own age in your own home frequently—and encourage him to visit them. The seven-year-old neighbor can play with the older boys, too, and of course there will continue to be many occasions on which your son and the younger boy will continue to play alone.

Watch the Luxuries!

To what extent should parents provide their children with all the toys and luxuries the children want? Is there a danger that children will get to expect anything they may take a fancy to, and get the idea that in life they can have whatever they want?

You have placed your finger on one of the most frequent mistakes that parents make. In their desire to make their children happy and to see to it that they have some of the joys they missed as children, parents not only give them all the toys and luxuries they want, but in many cases more than they want. Is it any wonder, then, that children go out into life utterly unprepared for the hardships and deprivations that fall to the lot of all?

When children are small, therefore, let us guard against giving them everything they want. Our primary concern will be to help them discover how to be happy with what they have.

As children get older and the things they want become more expensive most family incomes automatically put a stop to the getting of everything they want. It is exceedingly important that boys and girls should learn to get satisfaction and happiness out of experiences that do not require a large expenditure of money.

Family Councils

Do you approve of family councils? If they are democratic, the majority opinion will rule. What about the needs of the minority—let us say the child who is overruled by the others? Should not his needs be considered?

Yes, I heartily approve of family councils if they are entered into willingly and cheerfully by each member of the family and if they are conducted on a democratic basis.

To be sure, majority opinion will rule, as you suggest, and yet it is likewise true that in a democracy the needs and wishes of the minority are taken into account. Certainly the needs of the child who is overruled by the others should be considered. At times he may decide to accede to the decisions of the majority. At other times, the majority should either accede to his desires, or make it possible for him to follow his own judgment, even though it may conflict with theirs.

It should be remembered that if the same child is more or less consistently in the minority, this may be his method of getting attention or by expressing hostility that has developed out of his feeling of emotional insecurity. It may be that he needs more love and affection from the parents, and the opportunity to engage in activities in which he is skilled, so that his own sense of worth may be enhanced.

Playground Quarrels

Is it natural for children to quarrel? Is our neighborhood the quarrelsome play sound as if they hated everybody—they continually quarrel, sometimes they fight. My husband and I try to encourage our small boys to be more gentle but without success.

I suppose that wherever you find live, wide-awake, alert, and aggressive children playing together without adult guidance, quarreling not only is inevitable but desirable.

The very fact that they quarrel indicates that they are normal, healthy youngsters who are in the process of learning how to express their own ideas, to persuade others of their correctness, and to stand up for their own rights. If occasional fights result from the aggressiveness of the children, there is nothing especially to worry about. If quarrels did not occur, it would suggest that too many members of the group were supinely yielding to the selfish demands of the more aggressive ones. At the same time, quarrels can be too bitter and too continuous. This is especially likely to be true when there is no adult guidance. Youngsters need to receive suggestions as to how they may settle their disputes in an amicable fashion and to have experience in doing so.

Sometimes these suggestions may come from parents, although parents need to guard against always trying to settle quarrels. Neighbors or teachers on the public school ground may be helpful at this point. Boys and girls need to learn how to make decisions on a democratic basis, how to take turns, and how to yield gracefully when the decision of the crowd is against them.

These lessons will not be learned suddenly or easily but they can be learned. Under wise guidance quarrels may be reduced to a minimum.

They also stated that the haze is not confined to this area alone, but extends from eastern Texas and across the Southern States to South Carolina.

On the "Care and Feeding" of a Tractor

Doc Wagner got up at the county agent's meeting the other night and gave some pointers on how to make farm machinery last longer.

"Farmers would sure save themselves a lot of time and worry," said Doc, "if they'd just take the time to read the instruction book from cover to cover."

"Another thing that's often overlooked," Doc went on, "is the lubrication of moving parts." He wound up by saying how important it is to make repairs on farm equipment right away—instead of trusting to luck and a patch job.

Fin-Fan Items

The Alabama Power Company reservoirs on the Coosa Tallapoosa Rivers are providing the nimrods, from near and afar, wonderful opportunities to test their skill with the finny tribe. As summer eases in and days become long and hot, early mornings and late afternoons prove most productive for fly and bait casting. White water crickets, popping bugs and dusters are all taking great numbers of Bream and White Lake Bass. Many large schools of White Lakes, on both Jordan and Mitchell have been seen during the past week and several nice strings were taken. Fighting Bluegills are also being taken in large numbers, especially, where willow flies are swarming about the water surface.

Entries in the current fishing contest are pouring in as outstanding catches are being registered from all lakes.

LAKE MARTIN—

W. T. Farrow's Store, Blue Creek Barge, reports: Roy Moore, Box 169, Dadeville, used a live minnow to snag a nice 6 pound 14 ounce Largemouth Bass from the waters of Sandy Creek. Olin Day, Jr., LaFayette, fished Blue Creek with live minnows and caught a 4 pound Largemouth Bass.

LAKE YATES—

Mrs. Pauline Orr, Storekeeper, Martin Dam, reports: Johnnie Roy Beam, Route 1, Dadeville, earned a Whoopie Catcher certificate by entering his 9 ounce Bluegill Bream.

LAKE LAY—

Paul Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: R. B. Buse, Box 14, Rt. 1, Siluria, caught a whoppin' 1 pound 7 ounce Bluegill Bream from Waxahatchee Creek, using red worms as bait.

G. O. Norred's General Store, Talladega Springs, reports: Randall Bugge, 703 Oakland Avenue, Sylacauga, fished near Rock Springs Fishing Camp with a fly rod and popping bug to catch a 6 pound Largemouth Bass. Glenn McCaffrey, Childersburg, used the same rig near by and came up with a 5 pound 4 ounce Largemouth Bass.

LAKE MITCHELL—

A. I. Powell's River Road Store, near Clanton, reports: Owen Riggins, Route 1, Clanton, had good luck with a black snake doctor on his fly rod when he pulled in a fighting 2 pound 3 ounce Largemouth Bass from Walnut Creek.

F. Z. Ward, Pennytoy Fishing Camp, reports: Young Eddie Ling, Jr., 1623 Granville Avenue, Bessemer, reeled in with the aid of a fly trailing a frog darter, a 4 pound 4 ounce Largemouth Bass. Eddie is only 12 years of age and this is his first catch on a rod and reel—nice start, I'd say.

LAKE JORDAN—

H. R. Evan's Store, Holtville, reports: Warren Holly, Route 3, Wetumpka, used a Hula Poppa to a mighty good advantage when he caught his 4 pound 7 ounce Largemouth Bass. Mrs. W. G. Raper, Route 3, Wetumpka, caught her first fish with a rod and reel when she hung a 3 pound 10 ounce Largemouth Bass with a Hula Popper.

J. B. Kelly's Store, near Wetumpka, reports: Alton Johnson, Box 23, Route 1, Wetumpka, caught a 3 pound 8 ounce Smallmouth Bass with a casting rod, Sim T. Stough, 806 Palmetto Street, Montgomery, fished Softkatchee Creek, near sway back bridge, with a silver spoon and picked up a 3 pound 8 ounce White Lake Bass.

Joe Smith, Log Cabin Beach, near Rockford Ferry, reports: Bob Hawkins, 4301 Parkway, Fairfield, tossed a chugger spook right into the mouth of a handsome 5 pound 6 ounce Largemouth Bass. Bob made the catch near the Ferry.

The above are very nice catches but just imagine how big those were that got away. This is, indeed, an encouraging list of catches and definitely proves that nice catches are available; so, why not try your luck? Catch'em and weigh'em, that's all you have to do in order to be eligible to win prizes galore.

Another big inboard speedboat regatta was staged on beautiful Lake Jordan last Sunday, and it was enjoyed by thousands of people from many places. Too bad if you missed it, because it was one of those star studded affairs that thrills you from start to finish.

During the past few weeks, Lake Jordan has been abnormally low. Perhaps you contributed this to the lack of rainfall, but actually, there was work being done in the lower element of Mitchell Dam which necessitated the draw down. While the water was down, a number of the many dangerous snags and stumps were removed from the Lake. It is our desire to make the lakes safe for recreational activities, but in the meantime, play it safe—be alert at all times; watch out for semisubmerged islands, stumps, drift wood and snags.

DEAD MOURNING DOVES ARE FOUND IN STATE

Auburn, Ala. — County Agent E. L. Stewart of Chambers County reports that mourning doves are dying in large numbers in Union Hill Community.

Commenting on this situation, Earl F. Kenamer, A.P.I. Extension Service fish and wildlife specialist, says that he believes the cause of death is trichomoniasis. The disease was first noticed in Alabama last year when dead and dying doves were found in at least one-fourth of all counties in the state.

Kenamer urges farmers and agricultural workers to be on the lookout for sick and dead doves. They should be reported to Dr. A. O. Haugen, leader, Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit in Auburn. If the doves are not spoiled when found, the dead or ailing birds should be sent to the above address immediately. No ice should be used for refrigeration, and carcasses should not be frozen.

DON'T MISUSE ANY LAND ON THE FARM

Misuse of land costs money, and if it makes the soil liable to erosion the loss is immediate and permanent.

S. R. Doughty, A.P.I. Extension Service soil conservationist, says that even if the misuse is merely failure to grow crops on the most suitable land, the farmer obtains less than the maximum returns for his labor.

The specialist asserts that such waste can be prevented by adopting crops to suit the land and using practices that have been tested and proved by the Agricultural Experiment Station and practical farmers.

"Finding the right crop for the right land amounts to a form of selective service for farm land whereby each acre is put to the use for which it is best suited," declares Doughty.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR DAIRYING THIS YEAR

Auburn, Ala. — The outlook for dairying in 1951 is much better than it was a few months ago.

The increase in consumer buying power and shortages of consumer goods have increased the demand for fluid milk.

Per capita consumption rose to 390 pounds per person in 1950, but use of milk is still far short of the 432 pound consumption in 1945.

On the other hand, dairymen will have to give much attention to their herds if they meet the new demand, especially since the milk cow population has decreased from 25.8 million in 1944 to 22.7 million, according to J. R. Pateish, A.P.I. Extension Service dairy specialist.

WARNING ABOUT FIBER GLENDS FOR CARPET

Found on the market now are rugs and carpets made of wool and rayon blended together.

Alice Peavy, A.P.I. Extension Service home management specialist, points out that one type of rayon used is specifically made for rugs and is called carpet rayon. It actually is stronger than wool and does not shed so much as wool in a new rug. Also, carpet rayon colors are softer and clearer.

But these facts are true only of the carpet rayon and not of rayon waste. When rayon waste is blended with wool—particularly with soft or inferior wool—the carpet does not wear well.

DISEASE AND PEST CONTROL FOR TOMATOES

A dust recommended for the control of diseases and pests of tomatoes contains five per cent rothane and five to six per cent Zineb. It will give satisfactory control of early and late blight as well as control of worms. The Auburn Approved Garden Dust is also recommended. Other recommended dusts for pests only are 50 per cent cryolite or one that contains five per cent rothane or methoxychlor.

A nut pick should have a place in every kitchen. It may be used to remove corks, to punch holes in sifting-cans, to untie hard knots, and to clean seams in cooking utensils. Or clean or small pickles may be easily removed from their containers with a nut pick.

SPRING FLOODS EXPENSIVE

Mobile, Ala. — The Army Corps of Engineers estimates that spring floods cost an estimated $1,268,000 along the Tombigbee and Warrior Rivers.

Floods occurring in early April damaged property, crops, livestock and public utilities. The total also included wages for time lost from business. The engineers said damage along the Tombigbee in southeast Mississippi and Western Alabama was estimated at $926,000. The total for the Warrior was $302,000, mostly in rural sections. More than 180,000 acres of farmland were inundated in West Alabama near Demopolis during the floods which isolated more than 600 persons.

According to the Boston Post a man wrote recently to a research laboratory and asked, "What are the Polyamide Resin Suspensions?" The secretary's answer was direct, explanatory, and right to the point. "Polyamide Resin Suspensions are cationic water dispersions of Polyamide Resins, which are formed by the consideration of dimerized vegetable oil acids with ethylene diamine." We like definitions of that clarity and brevity. If anyone asks us what Polyamide Resin Suspensions are, we will be able to inform them casually and intelligently.

WATERMELONS AND CANTALOUPS

Watermelons and cantaloups will be on the market during the next month and a half for those who enjoy these tasty products.

The first Alabama school of which there is record was founded in 1799 at the Boat Yard on Lake Tensaw by John Pierce, a New Englander. Pierce taught in a rude log cabin with punch-wood floors and rough log benches. From this "blab" school, taught by word of mouth, he made a tidy profit as most of his pupils were children of wealthy families.

Socks which have passed the wearing stage may be used in many ways. They make excellent soft cloths with which to apply silver polish. A dozen or so may be placed in a mop clamp, thus making an excellent mop. And, they may also be used as dust cloths for applying wax or oil.

GROUNDING FENCES

Livestock should be protected from lightning by grounding all wire fences. Connect ground rods with each lateral wire of the fence and extend into the ground for at least three feet. Fences joined to a building should be grounded at the spot nearest the building. Also, the ground rod of the structure should be connected to the fence.

If handkerchiefs are washed in a net bag (which can be made from two knit dishcloths) much time is saved and much inconvenience avoided. They will also go through the wringer in the bag.

FARM LAND VALUE

Dollar value of farm lands from March 1950 to March 1951 advanced 11 per cent in Alabama. This figure is compared with 14 per cent for the United States as a whole.

COTTON CARRYOVER

Right now the prospect is for a carryover of cotton on August 1 of only 1,900,000 bales, the lowest since 1925. Last year the carryover was 6,800,000 bales.

A can of scouring powder and some paper towels placed in the garage will not only save steps for men who tinker with car but will also save wear, tear, and cleaning on bathrooms inside the house.

The annoying noise of dripping faucets can be stopped by tying a piece of string on the end of the faucet so the water will slide down it.

HIGHLAND

Our Sunday School went on a picnic at Riverview last Sunday. There were 71 present. We missed those who could not go. Wish they could have been with us. A nice table of food was spread at lunch. Lemonade, iced tea and drinks were served. Ice cream was served in the afternoon. Everyone seemed to have enjoyed the day. We wish to thank everyone for being so nice and also thank those people for the use of the place.

We were sorry that Mr. and Mrs. Ed Langston's baby was taken sick and had to carry it home. We missed them and Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smith in the afternoon.

Remember Sunday School and preaching next Sunday. Let's all do our best to make it a perfect attendance next Sunday.
